The Peaceful Catskills.
Automobiles Pass Trains.
Dollfuss Farewell.
Marie Dressler's Last Call.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS IS WRITTEN in the Catskill Mountains, one hundred and sixty miles from New York by road. Here old Rip Van Winkle took his long nap, and heard the rumble of bowling by small mountain gnomes.

There could be no more beautiful country. Hundreds of square miles of sloping mountain tops bright green, close by, pale blue in the distance, offering homes worthy of intelligent human beings.

AT PRESENT the few that come from cities, live in the valleys, for climbing high mountains is hard, horses could not help, and there are no automobile roads to mountain tops.

But the flying machines will supply inhabitants for all these mountains, in generations not far away. Men and their families will fly from work in cities, or on level farm or factory land, to mountains and high hills where the air is always pure and cool.

Eagles and other superior birds fly to the high places to roost. A superior race of men will do the same, living on the earth's high places, flying down to work, and back to live, where men should live.

RAILROAD TRAINS come lumbering, puffing, groaning up these mountain regions, two locomotives hooked in front, painfully making fifteen miles an hour, while hundreds of small automobiles, on roads steeper than the tracks, speed along at fifty to sixty miles.

The train weighs more than one million pounds, carries about forty thousand pounds of passengers, if well loaded. The automobile, weighing thirty-five hundred pounds, carries one thousand pounds of passenger weight, plus baggage.

RAILROAD MEN, worried by automobile competition should think about that. Their rails are smoother than any highway, and free of crossroads.

A light automobile carries five persons to these regions and back for five dollars. Five railroad return tickets cost more than thirty dollars. The only thing that can meet such competition is brains. NRA cannot do it. Even Uncle Sam's pocketbook cannot do it, for more than a little while.

DOLLFUSS IS buried, pleasantly, on a hill looking over Vienna, which he will not see again. Men often choose high places for graves when they can no longer enjoy the view.

Many killings have followed the Dollfuss murder, of which the full story will probably never be told. Unimportant little men are stood up to be shot or led out to be hanged. More clever men that led them know when to leave.

HALF A MILLION Austrians lined the roads as Dollfuss passed, mourning for him, and the farewell speeches expressed true feeling and affection. The last words at his grave were: "Farewell! I call one word to you that ever was on your lips and in your heart—Austria."

LATER, A NEW public opinion may dig up Dollfuss' bones and scatter or otherwise disgrace them. That happened to Cromwell, after he rid England of a worthless king and made England's fleet "triumphant on every sea."

It happened to Voltaire, after he laid the foundations of the French revolution and of the freedom and greatness of France.

Fortunately, what you do to a man's bones makes little difference, if you do not interfere with his thought while he lives.

DOLLFUSS AND Hitler, both "of the lower class," prove, as did Voltaire and Cromwell, also of the lower class, that there is no question of class, or birth, where innate power is concerned.

The aristocratic Duke de Saint Simon condescendingly mentions, in his memoirs, a certain young man named Arouet, who calls himself de Voltaire, adding:

"I mention him only because his father served my father and myself faithfully as notary."

De Saint Simon had other unsuspected reasons for mentioning that young man, whose work was destined to drive many dukes and other "nobles" into useful labor.

MARIE DRESSLER is dead, after a brave fight against death. The world learns from her that success depends on brains and courage. She lost the good looks of youth shortly

Denney Matches Par With 72 in Public Links Play Here

BULLETIN.

SOUTH PARK, July 30.—Albert (Scotty) Campbell, Canadian amateur champion from Seattle, Wash., carded a 71, one under par, to take the lead for the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying test in the National public links tournament here this afternoon. Charles Ferrera, of San Francisco, the defending champion, had an 81.

By TOM BIRKS

SOUTH PARK, July 30.—Battling a tricky wind that at times reached the velocity of a gale, Gordon Denney, 27-year-old blond from Louisville, Ky., matched South Park's tough par of 72 to lead early finishers in the National public links tournament qualifying here today.

Eighteen holes are to be played today and 18 tomorrow, and the 65 low scorers in the 36-hole grind will begin match play on Wednesday. The tourney, which has attracted 184 players from 44 states and the Hawaiian Islands, and in which Charles Ferrera, of San Francisco, is the defending champion, will be concluded Saturday.

The boy from the blue grass country seemed to like the ever-changing gusts of wind that played queer tricks with the little ball, and two bad holes on the outgoing nine prevented him matching the record 68 shot in the practice by Clyde Finley, of Seattle.

Denney was out in 38 strokes, one over par, and came home in 34, one under. His play on the homecoming nine was brilliant. He never missed a shot, and the

VET TRAPPED AS MILL KILLER

Man 'Hating' Germans Held in Phantom Murder of 3

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 30.—The phantom killer of the mills has been captured, Steubenville police reported today.

The elusive slayer who murdered three workmen and wounded a fourth was apprehended in the dark of night outside the Wheeling Steel Corporation mill where he worked, according to the authorities.

He is a 49-year-old war veteran, one David Dascanio, alias Dasco, who formerly worked in Ambridge, Pa.

He denies the murders with

"I no shoot nobody."

Steubenville tingled with excitement as the manhunt ended. Sheriff Ray Long threw 30 extra guards around the county jail to disperse the crowds which surrounded the building.

TOTING REVOLVER

In a holster concealed under his overalls, Dascanio was toting a revolver when arrested. He had finished working and had punched the time clock at 1 a. m., when the watching police, suspicious of the unusual route he was walking through the mill, bore down on him.

Nearest the police came to a motive for the mysterious killings was that the prisoner had a phobia against Germans. Three of the four mill victims had German names. And when Dascanio was asked whether he had killed any Germans in the war, he replied:

"Yes. They all ought to be killed."

FIND MURDER CLIPPINGS

Besides the revolver, the police reported that in Dascanio's room in a rooming house they had found newspapers from Youngstown, Pittsburgh and Wheeling describing the mill murders, other papers telling of the attempted assassination of President Roosevelt in Florida by Zangara.

In a trunk the police said they found revolver ammunition, a black mask and a number of rocks. The keyhole was plugged.

Bullets taken from the bodies of the victims were examined by a ballistic expert in Cleveland, who correctly described the type of gun later found on the prisoner.

WORKMEN IN FEAR

For weeks workmen in the mill had gone about their jobs in a state of fear, suspecting one another, never knowing when the sniper might renew his muderous attacks. Powerful floodlights reaching out over the mills' five-mile area, had been installed.

Shortly after Dascanio had punched out on the time clock he walked to a nearby restaurant just outside the plant. He had been under surveillance for months. Leaving the restaurant, he walked to the plant entrance and was about to slip through the gate when special policemen, hiding nearby, grabbed him.

He said he had bought the revolver from a stranger for 75 cents.

Dascanio was a "sweeper" in the plant's new-process department.

There was a $6,500 reward offered in the killings, $5,000 of which was posted by the company.

FACES MURDER CHARGES

Dascanio today faced a fight to escape death in the electric chair. Prosecutor Arthur L. Hooper called a special session of the grand jury for Tuesday. He said he would ask for first-degree murder indictments for each of the three men killed by the sniper.

The sniper's first victim was Fred Melsheimer, 38, a train-service employe, slain last January when shot twice from behind.

Two months later James Barnett, 27, only victim to survive, was shot down. Just recently he returned to the hospital for additional treatment for his wounds.

On July 1, Ray Kochendorfer, 36, and William Messer, 42, were slain as they were walking to work.

RAIDERS FAIL TO FREE RINTELEN, WOUNDED IN HOSPITAL

BULLETIN

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

VIENNA, July 30.—Faced with death by hanging, Otto Planetta and Franz Holzweber went on trial at 6:15 p. m. tonight before a military court.

Authorities said Planetta had confessed killing Chancellor Dollfuss and Holzweber was charged with directing the Nazi putsch which plunged Austria into civil war.

Associated Press.

The rest of Europe stood by today, watching whether the new Austrian government could overcome the opposition of Austrian Nazis. These were the outstanding developments of the day:

VIENNA—Forty Nazis raided a hospital in an attempt to liberate Dr. Anton Rintelen, found wounded despite previous reports he had committed suicide. A former staff sergeant of the army, Otto Planetta, was said to have confessed that he killed Chancellor Dollfuss in the Nazi putsch of last Wednesday. Meanwhile, Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, the new chancellor, organized a coalition government in an attempt to restore peace in the nation.

BERLIN—Chancellor Hitler, at Bayreuth, conferred with Vice Chancellor von Papen, Minister of Propaganda Goebbels and Premier Goering of Prussia on the Austrian situation. It was indicated that Germany expects Austria to accept von Papen as minister later in the week.

LONDON—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin said he saw no immediate war change. Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, told the House of Commons that the British government has no intention of intervening to preserve Austrian independence.

ROME—Premier Mussolini attended memorial services for Dollfuss and thousands of Italian soldiers remained massed on the Austrian border.

PARIS—French officials foresaw a diplomatic battle to prevent Germany negotiating with Austria for a union of Germany and Austria based on a customs union.

M'NAIR BALKS POLICE PROBE

Mayor McNair today took another poke at the Police Research Commission, which is investigating his police department, by vetoing a bill giving the commission $5,000 for expenses. His Honor gave two reasons:

1—He thinks the money could be used to greater advantage elsewhere.

2—He first wants James N. (The Ump) Hoey, former police inspector, now a member of the commission, to answer the accusations made against him by Joe (Bozo) Lavery, former patrolman, and Frank R. BoByd, retired inspector of detectives.

At a meeting of the Henry George Club last Friday Lavery, sponsored by Boyd, charged that Hoey, as a police inspector, had virtually "protected" houses of illrepute. This was regarded as Boyd's answer to Hoey's accusation that Boyd was the "collector" for the ailing Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall.

In vetoing the bill, which Council had passed unanimously, the Mayor contended:

". . . The city is facing a very grave deficit . . . Various institutions like Mayview, Leech Farm and other activities are greatly hampered by lack of funds . . . I think this $5,000 would be a useless expenditure . . .

"Until these charges (against Hoey) are answered satisfactorily I do not think this commission should receive any of the city's money."

Al Smith Leases Swanky Apartment

NEW YORK, July 30.—(INS.)—Al Smith is deserting Greenwich Village for the "silk stocking" reaches of upper Fifth avenue, it was disclosed today.

A local real estate firm announced it had leased an apartment in the swank sixties on Fifth avenue to the former New York Governor and presidential nominee. For the last five years Smith has lived on lower Fifth avenue. He abandoned his Lower East Side residence during his last term as Governor.

ANNA DALL DUE TO ASK DIVORCE

MINDEN, Nev., July 30.—(AP.)—The marriage of a second of President Roosevelt's children may end in a divorce in the county courthouse today.

Mr. Dall

Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, only daughter of the President, plans to file suit before noon for a divorce from Curtis B. Dall, New York broker.

An immediate trial will be asked and it is regarded as probable that she will obtain the decree within a few minutes.

Her suit will be taken before Judge Clark I. Guild, the same jurist who a little more than a year ago granted Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, a divorce from the former Elizabeth Donner, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Dall, her attorney, Samuel Platt, said, will base her action on "incompatible relations," although the formal petition for divorce will give the statutory charge of "mental cruelty" as the grounds. This was the case in the Elliott Roosevelt divorce as well, Mrs. Roosevelt reportedly having testified in a deposition read into the record that

MRS. CARTIER FOUND DAZED

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP.)—Suffering a possible fractured skull, Mrs. Elynn Dahl Cartier, 28, widow of Louis Pierre Cartier, Wall street broker, was found lying in a hallway of an upper Manhattan hotel today.

Mrs. Cartier could not speak coherently. Her maid told police she had mumbled:

"This has happened to me before, but they got me worse this time."

Following emergency treatment at Bellevue Hospital, she was placed in the psychopathic ward.

Hotel attaches told police that Mrs. Cartier had spent last evening at the hotel's roof garden, and that about 2:30 this morning had taken the elevator to the tenth floor where she lived.

Mrs. Cartier's husband died last March. She was his third wife.

MORITZ QUITS AS MAGISTRATE

Theodore L. Moritz is no longer the man of many jobs in the McNair administration.

Moritz today resigned as police magistrate to which he had been appointed by the Mayor several months ago. He had never drawn any salary in that capacity.

His appointment as a member of the Traction Conference Board having been rejected by Council, Moritz is now back with the lone job in which he started in the McNair regime—secretary to His Honor the Mayor.

McNair sent the name of John B. Kearney, of 3485 Milwaukee street, real estate operator of the Fifth Ward, to Council as Moritz's successor for the police magistracy.

VIENNA, July 30.—(AP.)—Forty Nazis early today raided the General Hospital in an unsuccessful effort to abduct Dr. Anton Rintelen, former Austrian minister to Rome, who was found to be lying there, seriously wounded, despite the original report last Thursday that he had committed suicide.

Rintelen, known to have pro-Nazi leanings, was announced as "new chancellor" by the Nazis when they assassinated Chancellor Dollfuss last Wednesday.

Rintelen was immediately arrested and the announcement was given out that he

'FOE' ENTREATS FRAU DOLLFUSS

VIENNA, July 30.—(AP.)—Frau Gabriele Planetta, the wife of Otto Planetta, chauffeur and non-commissioned officer who is charged with firing the shot which killed Chancellor Dollfuss, demanded the privilege of talking to Dollfuss' widow today.

To an Associated Press correspondent she said:

"Frau Dollfuss, like myself, has lost the dearest thing she had on earth. I want to implore her to receive me; not to ask mercy for my husband, but to tell her how I sympathize with her.

"Above all, I do not want her to hate me."

'Big Time' Steeplechase Slated for Rolling Rock

Pittsburgh district will make its biggest public bow in the "big time" steeplechase world October 9, with the opening of the new Rolling Rock Hunt courses for a four-event racing meet, Richard K. Mellon revealed today.

The cream of gentleman riders and horses from the East and South will participate, as the race will be held in conjunction with the Western Pennsylvania Hunts race scheduled at Greensburg, October 12, Mr. Mellon said.

Two three-and-one-half-mile courses—timber and brush are being laid out on Rolling Rock Farm, near Ligonier, Pa. Construction of the courses was made possible by contributions from the Indiana, Rolling Rock, Sewickley and Fox Chapel hunt clubs.

Richard K. Mellon is chairman of the race committee, which includes Paul Mellon, Torrence Miller, George R. McNary, John W. Lawrence and William C. Robinson, Jr.

Fred H. Parks, of New York, is racing secretary, and Herbert A. May is the local secretary for the meet.

Chairman Mellon explained:

"By holding our meet near the date of the Greensburg event we hope to secure better and more racing events. All events will be open to the public."

Purses and cups totaling well over $2,000 will be presented to the winners of the four riding events.

British Monarchs May 'Warn' Hitler

French Propose Visit By Royal Pair to Marne Memorial

By HUDSON HAWLEY

International News Service.

LONDON, July 30.—A state visit of King George and Queen Mary, of England, to France for the twentieth anniversary of the first battle of the Marne, September 6, to show Hitler's Germany that the wartime allies are lined up as solidly as in 1914, has been proposed by France, International News Service learned today.

Although the foreign office is so far uninformed, it appears the subject came up during Inspector Gen. Maxime Weygand's recent trip to England, and Secretary of State for War Lord Hailsham's return call to France.

In the course of after-dinner conversations, the question of Britain's representation for the coming anniversary came up.

Soldiers of both nations suddenly realized practically all outstanding English war-time leaders—Field Marshal the Earl of Ypres, who as Sir John French, commanded the first hundred thousand "old contemptibles" at the Marne; Earl Haig, final commander in chief of the British Expeditionary Force; Sir Henry Wilson, chief of staff, who was the real founder of Anglo-French military co-operation in 1912; Lord Plumer, the Second Army commander—were all dead, while Field Marshal Viscount (Bull) Allenby, conqueror of Palestine, would be absent in Canada.

The Britishers were nonplussed until an imaginative Frenchman spoke up:

"Why not send us the present titular commander in chief of your army?"

The Britishers looked blank. The Frenchman named the man:

"Field Marshal George Windsor."

Would Show Berlin War Allies Still Stand Together

The Britishers, at first taken aback by that apparent lese majeste, reflected and admitted there was something to be said for it.

The portent of such a royal gesture grew upon them.

The King, in better health than for several years, left by special train today with Queen Mary for Portsmouth to attend the Cowes regatta.

Not even a tentative decision on the visit to France has been reached. British officialdom would require the most careful consideration from the political and diplomatic standpoints. The official invitation of France will not be forthcoming until acceptance is certain.

MARCONI INVENTS RADIO LIGHTHOUSE TO AVERT DISASTERS

'BLIND PILOT' GUIDES SHIPS FROM LAND

Scientist Calls Work His Masterpiece After Test

SANTA MARGHERITA LUGIRE, Italy, July 30.—(AP.)—Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, with a smile of triumph, demonstrated successfully today what he believes to be his greatest invention—a radio lighthouse.

Even as his invention of the wireless saved thousands of lives through the SOS, so he said, the radio lighthouse should save hundreds of ships from collision just outside ports.

'BLIND' PIOT

In the presence of Fascist provincial authorties and newepapermen, Marconi blindly, yet successfully, piloted the ocean-going yacht "Electra" into the harbor at Sesstri Levante.

His new apparatus is distributed in several points: First, an ultra-short wave transmission station on a high promontory about 300 feet above the sea here;

Then there are two radio lighthouses on large buoys floating at the entrance of the harbor a little more than 300 feet apart. Each buoy is equipped with a kind of relay station, being in effect a reflector.

MAKES PORT SAFELY

Finally there is a receiving station aboard the yacht which has two kinds of indicators, a dial divided into a red and green section, and a loudspeaker. So long as the ship pursued a direct course for the harbor, the dial stood midway between the green and red sections, but the slightest depression to one side or the other caused a corresponding movement of the indicator.

The ship entered the harbor safely, although Marconi and its captain were guiding it blindly.

STRIKERS END PACIFIC COAST WALKOUT

12,000 Going Back to Work Tomorrow; Frees Ship Tieup

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—(AP.)—The strike that has tied up Pacific Coast shipping for more than two months is ended.

Twelve thousand longshoremen in ports from Bellingham, Wash., to San Diego, Cal., have voted to return to work tomorrow.

Marine workers, who also have been on strike, have not announced their plans, but the belief prevails that they, too, will be back on the job tomorrow.

The announcement that the dock workers will end their strike Tuesday removed the threat that National Guardsmen would enter Portland, Ore., today to open the port.

Pending arbitration by the President's longshoremen's board, stevedores will be employed by employer-controlled hiring halls under the supervision of observers representing the board. Control of the hiring halls was the chief issue in the protracted strike which cost eight lives and untold millions of dollars.

Minneapolis Menaced By Food Shortage

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30.—(INS.)—A food shortage was threatened in Minneapolis today as a result of the truck drivers' stricke which has put the city under martial law.

Meats and groceries were becoming scarce as accumulated supplies gave out. Paul C. Johnson, vice president of the Minneapolis Retail Meat Dealers' Association, said many markets sold their last fresh meat on Saturday and others have only a small supply left.

Unless the military authorities relax martial law restrictions so that haulings of meat can be resumed at once, many markets will be forced to close, according to Johnson.

A serious situation is developing in grocery stores. Many stores have been unable to replenish stocks of flour, canned goods and other staples. John C. Sheehan, president of the Minneapolis Retail Grocers' Association, has communicated with Gov. Floyd B. Olson with the intention of arranging a conference to discuss the situation.

Military restrictions on the movement of several commodities, including dairy products, were loosened this morning.

Peace Drive Launched In Kohler Walkout

KOHLER, Wis., July 30.—(AP.)—Peacemakers drove today for a settlement of the strike at the Kohler plumbing manufacturing plant.

While 600 National Guardsmen, sent here after Friday night's rioting, performed police duties, four mediators of the Regional Labor Board looked for means of bringing about peace. A fifth arbiter may be sent from Washington.

Anton Brotz, president of this "model" industrial village, issued a statement saying that strike rioters were shot Friday night to prevent an attack on this nationally-famous community and to protect the lives of women and children. Two were killed and 39 wounded.

Means to Identify Undesirables Urged By Child as Aid in Ridding U. S. of Alien Trouble-Makers

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

THE KEY to plucking undesirable anti-citizens out of our decent citizenship—weeding the garden—is the identity of the weeds.

Over the wall!

That is where the sensible cultivator of the useful human crop in any fertile civilization chucks the weeds, the menaces to national safety. Over the wall across the boundary where the weeds came from—out of the active life of the country.

Mr. Child

No one believes that any chucking should be done unless our system of justice is used to confirm the fact that the hand of the law has grabbed what is really a weed.

The subject is one which has interested profoundly in the last few months Attorney General Cummings and the Secretary of Labor. Apparently they have earned a popular approval.

Why mince words about it? The means provided to enable the hand of the law to pick up the weeds are lame indeed—whether we pick the weeds up to throw them IN over the prison wall or OUT over the wall of the country.

OUR main trouble is that we cannot yet find the weeds, keep track of the weeds, classify the trouble-makers, identify what is poisonous foreign growth.

This applies first to criminals—the killers, the bandits, the desperadoes, the sneaks and the degenerates.

Even the sobbiest of those who believe that the criminal law is for the exclusive benefit of criminals—as the psychoanalysts—will have to admit that identification of the undesirable must precede any dealing with him, however we deal with him.

It also applies to those, whether or not on foreign payrolls, who seek to upset, corrupt, overturn or hamstring our government.

We do not take into our family homes strangers we do not know or who are known as undesirable!

UNCLE SAM HAS.

We do not let the pervert or the monster of brutality or the corrupter of family order play with our children in the park or in the nursery.

THE UNITED STATES HAD DONE IT UP TILL NOW.

We do not let the identified crook, the killer and the plotter of destruction whom we find in our homes go with a nasty scolding or a slap on the wrist. We lock them in the nearest closet or kick them out the door.

OUR CIVILIZATION HAS NOT SHOWN ENOUGH SPUNK IN DOING THAT.

WE HAVE opened our doors to a stream of pervert-breeding individuals along with good immigration. Why?

No identity records. No track kept of what we got.

Even now we know nothing about the stream which has flowed from Mexico—a stream large enough to repopulate the United States within two or three centuries.

We know nothing about the hordes who come in illegally, especially seamen who get shore-leave and disappear—without identity. That group contains many of the undercover Red agents.

The chief factor in our crime problem is our federation of forty-eight criminal jurisdictions, many of them larger than any country in Europe, but, unlike European divisions, we have no passports and no visas when crooks or subversive propagandists pass from one state to another.

Citizens and criminals alike float and flow over boundaries. A bad record is left behind in New York by the simple process of a ferry ride to New Jersey.

The Federal Bureau of Criminal Finger Prints which Attorney General Cummings is building up is good service. It has over some years of accumulation 4,400,000 finger prints. More than 2,000 new finger prints are now received per week.

This summer a convention of the American police chiefs and law enforcing agencies will try to set up an exchange system between states.

THERE is a prejudice in the United States against compulsory and universal finger printing or the issuing of identification cards. Why? No one seems to know. The American who readily assents to identification processes when enforced in Europe gives vent to vague words about "interference with traditions of liberty" when it is proposed at home. Why?

Is the liberty he seeks the liberty to do something wrong and give his name as O. B. Holy?

The identification of an honest man would have great use to the honest person and his family in accidents, loss of memory, proof of standing when falsely identified and in a dozen other ways.

What is the trouble with all of us knowing each other? Or the authorities knowing us and where we are and what we are doing?

It is a thousand times better in keeping track of the criminal and the mis-doer and the poison-spreader than paying informers and snoopers and hence blackmailers.

The Attorney General, to the extent he goes, is on the right track.

IDENTIFY IN ANY CASE, THE WEEDS!

It is the shortest road in our sloppy criminal system to jail or deportation, i. e., putting them in or putting them out!

ON THAT ROAD WE ARE FAR BEHIND ALMOST ALL THE MATURE CIVILIZATIONS IN THEIR STEPS FOR SELF-PROTECTION.

CATTLE STRIKE AWAITS MOVE BY JOHNSON

NRA Chief May Fly to Chicago in Crisis At Stockyards

CHICAGO, July 30.—(AP.)—Reports reached the strike-stalled stockyards today that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, would fly here tomorrow or Wednesday to attempt a settlement of the labor dispute paralyzing the yards.

Federal mediators sent here to try for peace said they "understood" this was Gen. Johnson's plan. Pat E. Gorman, international president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, said the report came from Washington.

Meanwhile the threat of a general strike which would take in union employes of the big packing plants was growing. Commission men who buy and sell stock in the yards met to decide whether they would attempt to resume business, now at a standstill, with non union handlers. Gorman said:

"If they do, it will be hard to keep strike sentiment down. It is crystalizing now, although the international offices of the meat cutters are opposed to it."

FORBECK QUITS IN UNION RACE

Earl J. Forbeck, McKeesport "rank and file" steel leader, today withdrew his candidacy to the presidency of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Mr. Forbeck

It was understood he would throw his support to George J. Williams, of Canonsburg, the original candidate of the progressive element in the steel union for the post held by veteran M. F. Tighe, president for the past 15 years.

In addition to Williams, another steel worker, B. F. Bennett, of Granite City, Ill., described as an independent, is seeking Tighe's post.

Forbeck's withdrawal was the only change in the list of candidates, as ballots were ordered printed by Secretary Louis Leonard, of the Amalgamated. The progressive element, chief contender for control of the union, has a complete slate for the various offices, with the exception of a candidate for secretary. Leonard, the present secretary, has no opposition.

ALUMINUM MEN DEMAND RAISE

Increased wages are asked by union aluminum workers, according to Paul Howlett, president of the Aluminum Workers' Union and vice president of the National Council of Aluminum Workers.

Denying that the union is concerned only with working conditions, Howlett said yesterday that employes were contending for a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour, instead of the 30 cent limit set forth in the temporary code for the industry.

Another demand of the workers, it was stated, is the provision of a system whereby union dues would be deducted from pay envelopes by the company. This would amount to union recognition.

Action on a threatened strike of 30,000 aluminum workers was delayed until Friday, when the Aluminum Company is expected to reply to the union proposals.

TREASURY HEAD QUIET ON JOBS

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., stopping for a short time at the County Airport, on his way to Washington, yesterday declined to say whether he would abrogate an order dismissing party leaders from Treasury jobs.

Retraction of the order, issued by Morgenthau in June, is sought by Democratic party heads.

The order demanded that Treasury employes holding party offices resign their political positions by September 1 or forfeit their Treasury posts. The edict brought protests from Democratic leaders interested in saving 60,000 jobs throughout the country.

Morgenthau particularly declined to answer queries in reference to David L. Lawrence, Collector of Internal Revenue here, and state Democratic chairman. Last week, Lawrence announced he had mailed his resignation from the revenue post to Washington.

Weather Conditions

Low pressure covers most of the country this morning with centers over the Great Lakes, Kansas and over Southern Alberta, while high pressure areas are centered over the northern plains, the Florida Peninsula, and off the North Pacific Coast. Light scattered showers occurred during yesterday and last night over the Rocky Mountains and the plains, and there was a more pronounced rainfall area over the Lake Region and the Atlantic Coast states. Generous rains occurred also over the Atlantic Coast states during the 24 hours ended yesterday morning. The weather is warm over the states east of the Mississippi River and cool over the northern plains in the high pressure. High maximum temperatures set in again over Kansas and Missouri yesterday with temperatures of 100 degrees or higher. The highest reported is 104 degrees at Kansas City and at Dodge City.

River Conditions

The rivers are about stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is minus three-tenths foot. Lock No. 7, Mon. 10.9; Pittsburgh, 16.6; Lock No. 2, 9.5; No. 4, 8.8; No. 10, 8.7; and No. 12, 9.6. The dams are up.

Zane Grey Joins In Censure of Bad Films

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—Zane Grey, author of virile stories of the West, today declared his approval of the campaign of churches and women's clubs against indecent and otherwise objectionable motion pictures. He said:

Mr. Grey

"The motion picture, if it glorifies the criminal, hallows the vampire and exhibits the perverted side of what would otherwise be a beautiful romance, cannot help but have a powerful effect on the minds of our younger generation.

"Sordid realism, complex sex problems, marauding gangsters and hoodlums should and do leave a bad taste in the mouth of every high minded citizen in the United States."

DILLINGER ACT STIRS PROTEST

International News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 30.—Presentation of the private life of the late John Dillinger, United States Public Enemy No. 1, upon a theater stage here by members of his family was under the fire of an aroused clergy today.

The appearance of the family of John W. Dillinger in the role of Thespians describing the activities of the notorious outlaw were denounced by the Rev. Richard M. Millard, pastor of the exclusive Broadway Methodist Episcopal Church.

Youth is being injured by an endless mass of foolish, morbid sensationalism, Millard said in attacking the stage appearance of the Dillingers.

More than an hour before the Dillinger act opened in the local theater police were called to handle the long line of ticket buyers. A greater crowd motored through Crown Hill Cemetery to look at the grave of Dillinger.

The members of the family who made six appearances on the stage here on a percentage basis were the elder Dillinger, 70 years old, his son, Hubert, his daughter Audrey Hancock, and her husband, Emmet Hancock.

State to Demand Life of Triangle Slayer

Universal Service.

WOODLAND, Cal., July 30.—C the ground that "the unwrit law is no excuse for murder," state will demand that Judson C. Doke pay with his life for the killing of his wife's poet-sweetheart, Lamar Hollinshead, 23.

Mrs. Doke

This statement was made today by Chester MacDonald, District Attorney of Yolo County. He said:

"The murder was premeditated and deliberate. The man who was killed was only a college boy and several years younger than the defendant.

"The letters, of course, tend to create sympathy, but there are other circumstances in the case which will be brought to light at the proper time."

The letters mentioned by MacDonald were the love messages that passed between Mrs. Helen Louise Doke and young Hollinshead.

Taxi Cab Company Defies Labor Board

CHICAGO, July 30.—(AP.)—John A. Ritchie, president of the Chicago Motor Coach Company, challenged the National Labor Relations Board's right to jurisdiction over his firm today.

Ritchie said there was no dispute between the company and its employes and that the 15 former employes whose reinstatement was demanded by the National Labor Board and refused by Ritchie and the 10 former employes whose cases have been taken for consideration by the National Labor Relations Board were discharged for repeated cause.

Cigar Workers Win, Return to Jobs

YORK, Pa., July 30.—(AP.)—Employes of the hand-making cigar plants of H. Heusner and Son, one located at Hanover and another at McSherrytown, return to work today after settlement of a dispute between employers and workers.

John Van Vaeranwyck, representative of the Cigar-Makers International Union, announced that 157 employes will resume their duties, saying the firm has agreed to pay the union rate of wages, the minimum scale being $7 per thousand cigars.

Putnams to Build Cabin in Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 30.—(AP.)—Amelia Earhart and her husband, George Palmer Putnam, visitors at the Frontier Days celebration, disclosed they have decided to build a cabin near the deserted mining town of Kirwin, 70 miles from a railroad, and spend an annual vacation there.

60th Rainy July 29 In Waynesburg Is 'Dud'

WAYNESBURG, July 30.—(AP.)—Remember the story Saturday about yesterday being anticipated as the sixtieth consecutive wet July 29, with two exceptions, in this city. Well, it wasn't.

Instead of the annual rainstorm on that date, a blazing sun kept Waynesburgers sweltering all day. Now, as Waynesburgers look forward next year for the sixty-first consecutive rainy July 29, there will be the added note, "with three exceptions."

Ponzi Loses in Plea To Balk Deportation

BOSTON, July 30.—(AP.)—The Federal District Court today denied the petition of Charles Ponzi, get-rich-quick exponent, to set aside the decision of the immigration authorites to deport him to Italy. Ponzi served more than 11 years in various jails and prisons as a result of his scheme to return 50 per cent interest on investments in 45 days.

Little Lucy Fights Wolf With $5,000 Monthly

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP.)—To the millions of Americans who may have wondered what they'd do if they had to struggle through life on $5,000 a month, the expense account of little Miss Lucy Cotton Thomas may afford an answer.

Miss Lucy is only nine years old, but so far—as shown by the accounting filed by her guardian and mother, Mrs. Lucy Cotton Thomas Magraw—has averaged more than $5,000 a month in expenditures.

Rent takes a chunk of the $5,000, running $1,500 (a month, not a year). Then there's the chauffeur, for one just must have a chauffeur; and a maid, and massages, and toys ($71, and not even Christmas yet!), and telephone ($37, but litle girls like to telephone, too), and the drugstore ($55, which might be for ice cream).

Groceries run about $200 a month. Then there's the Lido Country Club at $250, which is much less proletarian than Coney Island (but maybe not so much fun).

Between January 1929, and December, 1933, Miss Lucy required $272,734, and there is still something in the neighborhood of $1,800,000 left to keep the wolf from the ornate door. The child's father was Edward Russell Thomas, prominent sportsman.

MARIE DRESSLER, IN DEATH, SHUNS PUBLIC IN SEALED CASKET

STRATOSPHERE DATA FEARED LOST IN FALL

Precious Instruments Wrecked; Empty Bottles Saved

HOLDREGE, Neb., July 30.—(AP.)—Examination of a delicate spectograph which floated to safe landing before the world's largest stratosphere balloon plopped to earth near here will determine whether anything of scientific value was accomplished by the venture last Saturday, Capt. Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer, said today.

After releasing the instrument on a parachute, Stevens, Maj. William Kepner, flight commander, and Capt. Orville A. Anderson, co-pilot, abandoned the gondola and floated safely to earth with parachutes, last Saturday.

Other precious instruments carried by the balloon were wrecked. The barograph, however, was forwarded to Washington to be examined with the hope it might show the altitude reached before the bag ripped. The other instruments also were en route East and scientists hoped that some might contain a bit of film that may be helpful.

SHORT OF RECORD

After examining the wreckage yesterday, they held little hope that any of the photographic recordings could be salvaged.

Kepner and his companions believed they reached an altitude of 60,000 feet, half a mile short of the stratosphere record, but they were not even sure of this. Stevens said:

"The last time I glanced at the instrument, it showed we were at an altitude of 57,000 feet. We were climbing rapidly at the time, but in a few minutes we noticed the rip and agreed that we must come down."

All members of the crew were busy every second at the task of bringing the balloon to earth. More holes appeared in the bag and not until the "explorer" had dropped to 20,000 feet above sea level was it possible for the men to open the porthole, release the spectograph which was tied to the outside of the gondola, and jump with their parachutes. Things were happening fast and little attention was paid to the valuable instruments.

BOTTLES SAVED

Stevens, who tied parachutes to a couple of empty oxygen bottles and heaved them out of the porthole, commented:

"If I had had the sense of a goose, I could just as easily have tied parachutes to some of the films and records and saved them instead of the bottles."

National Geographic Society officials, who with the U. S. Army Air Corps, sponsored the flight, said the balloon cost about $60,000. The precious instruments carried by it were valued in the hundreds of thousands of dollars, but no accurate estimate was available, as more than 20 scientific organizations supplied them.

Some Army officers termed the 300-mile flight, which started near Rapid City, S. D., a half million dollar venture, but no authority for the estimate of the cost was available here.

AIR GRAVEYARD SCENE OF TESTS

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP.)—Forging new weapons for the warfare against two old enemies of flying—fog and rain—radio engineers of the Department of Commerce have selected Pennsylvania's Alleghenies, "graveyard of aviation," to test new safety devices.

The innovations included transmitter and two simple additions to the instrument panels of planes—one a needle indicator, similar to the ammeter on the dashboard of an automobile, and the other a red light.

Deviations of planes from their courses will be indicated by the needle and the red light is to serve as a signal when the ships reach an airport.

Pilots have been flying "blind," that is, by instruments only, for years. However, it has not been entirely safe.

Transmission of weather reports to airmen heretofore has necessitated interruption of the radio beacon signals or directional beams by which fliers followed their courses. This interruption, frequently of two or three minutes duration, often is confusing to a pilot flying "blind" because signals also cease directly over transmitting stations.

KIDS NOISY, HE STREWS TACKS

John Raprasky, 64, explained in North Side Polic Court today why he tossed tacks into the street in front of his home in Gerst way, and why he poured machine oil down the rainspout.

The tacks were aimed to discourage youngsters from playing there, and the youngsters were to slip on the oil for the same reason, he said.

Raprasky complained that the noise of the children interfered with his sleep. He denied the accusation of a dozen neighbors that he had thrown bits of glass into the street.

He paid a $10 fine.

Hepburn in New Play Wants to 'Show Them'

IVORYTON, Conn., July 30.—(AP.)—Katharine Hepburn, who made her legitimate stage debut here several summers ago, is coming back to "show them."

Miss Hepburn

The "them" are the critics who were far from laudatory when the star of "Little Women" and other celluloid successes left Hollywood last winter to return to the stage in "The Lake" in New York.

Directors of the summer theater here said Miss Hepburn, whose home is in Hartford and whose parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Hepburn, make their summer home near here, would appear next week in a new play of unannounced authorship, "Dark Victory."

Girl Dies by Poison, Kin Blame Error

Sixteen-year-old Minnie Albert, of Orchard place, Dravosburg, was dead today, apparently by her own hand.

She died in McKeesport Hospital early today, the hospital reported, from effects of poison she swallowed Saturday. The Coroner, who listed the case as "probable suicide," sought a motive.

Members of the family said she had taken the poison in mistake for headache medicine.

MRS. ROOSEVELT LEAVES FRISCO

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—As quietly as she entered the city, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt prepared to leave San Francisco today by automobile for Portland, Ore., where she will meet the President Friday, August 3.

The President is now en route to Portland aboard the U. S. S. Houston following a five-day visit to the Hawaiian Islands.

Mrs. Roosevelt was discovered at a small downtown hotel with her traveling companion and secretary, Lorena A. Hickok.

Tanned by the sun of Yosemite Valley, where she had been camping for the past three days, the First Lady was greeted by a score of reporters in the hotel breakfast room. Mrs. Roosevelt smilingly said:

"No interviews. I'm still on my 'off the record' vacation."

Pleas of photographers met another firm but gracious denial. Mrs. Roosevelt playfully told one insistent photographer:

"I could call a secret service man and you wouldn't get within a mile.

"Of course, if you want to take a snap as we go out the door," the First Lady suggested that would meet with her approval. She then pointed to the front entrance of the hotel.

Austria Bans Works Of Richard Straus

VIENNA, July 30.—(Universal.)—The Austrian government today had banned works of Richard Straus, noted German composer, from performance in the Vienna State Opera House because Straus declined to conduct at the annual music festival in Salzburg.

Straus conducted Wagnerian opera at the annual festival in Bayreuth, Germany, after several of world-noted conductors declined to take part in protest against Naziism.

their temperaments differed so widely that further living together was impossible.

Dall will be represented in court by an attorney, Sidney W. Robinson, but indications are that, as in most Nevada proceedings, no evidence will be presented in his behalf.

The court, Platt said, will be asked to approve a property settlement already arranged between the couple and which also provides for the custody of the two Dall children, "Sistie" and Buzzie." Details of the settlement have not been disclosed.

The two children have been in Nevada with their mother. She brought them from the White House where they lived with her for more than a year following the Dalls' separation.

Roosevelt Speeds To Meet 'First Lady'

ABOARD THE CRUISER NEW ORLEANS, EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO PORTLAND, ORE., July 30.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt sped through the Pacific today, 1,500 miles from Portland, Ore., where he will rejoin his wife, with his cruisers maintaining a fast pace of 22 knots.

A memory of their days in Hawaii stuck with the men on the President's ship as they rapidly left the tropical region behind, heading on a northeasterly course. Arriving in Portland Friday morning, he will be back at his desk in less than a week, returning to Washington August 9.

DALLS: SISTIE AND BUZZIE

BULLETS PERIL N. Y. CROWDS

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP.)—Pedestrians scurried to safety today when police and an alleged holdup man exchanged about 50 shots before the fugitive was brought down by a bullet.

Taken to Bellevue Hospital, the man was held on charges of attempted robbery and felonious assault. He identified himself as Gustave Busher, 39, of New York.

During the gun battle, which raged through Eighth avenue, between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth streets, and in Forty-ninth street in spite of crowds of pedestrians and numerous automobiles and trucks, Sergt. Albert Harriott suffered a slight flesh wound in forehead.

The shooting followed Busher's alleged attempt to hold up Achille La Blonde in his rooming house in West Forty-ninth street. La Blonde's wife grappled with the holdup man and in the excitement La Blonde jumped from a window to a basement areaway shouting "Hold up." Police heard the cry and gave chase as the man darted out the door.

9 MISSING TARS LAND SAFELY

International News Service.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 30.—A real life drama of the sea came to a happy ending here today and proved once again that human fortitude and faith can overcome the most powerful obstacles.

The central figures were Capt. Walter Crouse and eight men of the Lunenburg fishing schooner, Astrid W.

Six days ago a mysterious explosion wrecked the schooner while the ship was off the grand banks and the nine men took to the sea in two dories.

With only a meager supply of food and water they began a grim fight for their lives which did not end until late yesterday when the two dories drifted into Arichat, a small settlement on the Cape Breton Coast.

With their lips parched, their faces drawn and their arms so weak they could hardly grip their oars, the men kept on. After rowing for slightly more than 200 miles they sighted land and found themselves outside the harbor of Arichat.

Five other members of the crew were rescued by the Danish steamship Arichat and landed at Sydney, N. S.

'Hot Dog King' Wills Estate to Widow

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP.)—The estate of the late Harry M. Stevens, sports caterer who built his fortune around a "hot dog," has been left to his widow, Mrs. Mary Stevens, of New York.

Stevens, known as the "hot dog king," held the refreshment concession at New York's ball parks and at other sports places.

Where Can Lady Novelist Find Peace, Calm?

By FRANCIS CARPENTER

BAXLEY, GA., July 30.—(AP.)—An admiring public that just won't stay away from her door is making life a game of hide-and-seek for Caroline Miller, the Pulitzer prize winner, as she hunts for a peaceful spot in which to write a new novel.

Mrs. Miller

When Mrs. Miller went to New York several weeks ago to receive the prize for writing "Lamb In His Bosom," her visit was one grand rush, and she looked forward to getting back home to peace and quiet and a chance to resume her writing. But so far she hasn't written a line — she's been too busy seeing people. She says:

"It's no fun to win a Pulitzer prize, but I wouldn't take a million dollars for it."

Mrs. Miller has just returned to her home after a visit to St. Simons Island on the Georgia coast and a futile attempt to escape the public.

She swore the postmaster and grocer to secrecy at St. Simons. The first few days at St. Simons went off fine. Then the news spread. The prize winner says:

"It was awful, or it impressed me that way. Every time I went out people would point at me. I could hear them whispering behind my back. I tried to ignore it, but couldn't. I just had to come back home."

Mrs. Miller says she is going to leave again, but she adds:

"I don't know where."

WORLD MOURNS 'GRAND OLD TROUPER'

Private Burial Services To Be Marked by Simplicity

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 30.—While the world mourned, friends of Marie Dressler, "grand old trouper," prepared today to conduct private funeral services for her tomorrow in Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Miss Dressler died Saturday afternoon at the home of friends in Santa Barbara, loser of a long and gallant fight against a lingering illness.

Only a small group of Miss Dressler's most intimate friends from the social and professional worlds will witness the simple services to be conducted by the Rev. Neal Dodd, pastor of filmdom's famous Little Church Around the Corner.

Included among those attending the private ceremony will be men and women from the highest—and humblest—walks of life, society leaders, film executives, stars, waitresses, wardrobe attendants and loyal household servitors.

Honoring the memory of the star who arose to her greatest triumphs within its portals, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios will cease all activity during the funeral rites. The flag was lowered to half-mast on the studio standard.

'ABIDE WITH ME'

During the services Jeanette MacDonald, of the screen, will sing "Abide With Me," Miss Dressler's favorite hymn. The organ music will be by Miss Catherine Lewis, who played "sideline" music for Miss Dressler in the making of silent pictures.

Closing the eulogy, Rev. Dodd will read Miss Dressler's favorite poem. By Keith, it concludes:

"Perhaps she learned the truth when time was young!
And comes again with heaven-songs of mirth;
And leaves her gods and goddesses alone
To live with us a little while on earth."

This had been engraved some time ago upon a silver plate as a gift to Miss Dressler, and she carried it in her purse wherever she went. It is to be placed upon the crypt in which interment is to be made at Forest Lawn.

CASKET SEALED

Miss Dressler's body was brought to Hollywood yesterday from Santa Barbara. Accompanying it were the servants, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cox, who had cared for the actress for more than 25 years.

The body of the beloved actress lies at a mortuary in a simple bronze casket lined in white velvet. She is to be buried in her favorite dress, a plum-colored taffeta afternoon gown.

In respect to Miss Dressler's wishes, the casket is to remain sealed and is not to be placed upon public view.

She wanted her friends and the public to remember her as she was in the bloom of health, at the height of success. There will be no lying in state or mourners filing past the bier.

Although Miss Dressler knew three years ago she was doomed, she continued her valiant battle, and starred in many pictures that are still playing in various parts of the country.

KNEW DEATH NEAR

With death near, Miss Dressler gave the world "Min and Bill," "Tugboat Annie," "Reducing" and "The Late Christopher Bean." She was ready to make another production, working only a few hours daily, but three months ago physicians ordered otherwise and she went to Santa Barbara to engage in her courageous stand against the illness.

"Grand Old Lady," "Veteran Trouper," and "Queen Marie of Hollywood," were affectionate titles she won after the world of the theater had forgotten her earlier stage successes, her success in silent pictures, and her gradual drop into obscurity from which she battled her way to the top of cinema fame in talking pictures.

Competing against the most lovely ladies of the silver screen whose beauty and gowns made them world famous, Miss Dressler won the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as the leading actress of the industry.

She accepted the high honor modestly and went on, to continue making friends of everyone who met her.

Dog That Vainly Awaits Lew Cody to Be Sold

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 30.—(AP.)—Traffic is an 11-year-old fox terrier that doesn't know what liquidating an estate means.

All she knows is that the big house that has been her home for many years is undergoing the most unusual changes. Not only is her master gone, but furniture is being moved into unaccustomed places. The glassware and dishes and knives and cocktail shakers are arrayed on the dining room table and sideboard. No party in this house, which belonged to the late Lew Cody, ever required the use of every dish and every glass and every tablecloth.

Traffic hasn't seen her kind, exuberant, laughing master for two months.

Whenever the door bell rings, Traffic runs toward the door, barking, only to again be disappointed.

Traffic is part of an estate. Not a part of it that will bring much at the auction of the late screen actor's property. She will be sold this week, just like a lot of furniture, some real estate, clothing and personal effects. She will have to be sold, like so many other things, because Cody neglected to make a will.

Her affection for Cody—so apparent even now, two months after his death—began when Traffic was a helpless puppy that had fallen out of a car. Cody had his chauffeur stop the car to rescue the frightened black and white bundle. That was about 11 years ago.

Traffic has been the mother of countless puppies, many of which resembled her not at all.

THREAT OF WAR STILL HOVERS, SAYS EXPERT

(H. R. Knickerbocker, noted European correspondent of International News Service, who earlier this year, after a trip to every significant point in Europe, wrote a series of articles entitled "Will War Come?" today deals with the same question in the light of last week's occurrences in Austria, Italy and Germany.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1934, International News Serv.)

VIENNA, July 30.—Austria has a new government today.

Dollfuss is buried.

The Nazis of this country are crushed.

But confidence and peace have not yet been restored to Europe and the attention of the continent is turned now, six days after the murder of Dollfuss, to the anxious question:

"What of war?"

FACTORS FOR PEACE

Against the chances of war speak the following considerations:

Firs., the independence of Austria is safe for the time being. By his death, Dollfuss secured his country's liberty. War was most likely to come if Germany took Austria. But that is now remoter than ever.

Second, important elements of the French government believe that Hitler is driving Germany rapidly to bankruptcy and breakdown. They consider Hitler is doing France's work for her. Therefore, war is unnecessary.

Third, fear is still paramount that the next war, whether it begins today or tomorrow or in 10 years, will bring Communism to the whole continent and there are reasons to predict even now that war is not imminent.

WAR THREATS

On the other hand, the factors that speak for war are disturbingly strong.

There are powerful elements in France that want to fight Germany now when they think they can win in order to prevent war tomorrow when Germany will, perhaps, be strong enough to win. These elements see their chances to attack Germany with the approval of the world greatly improved today.

This is by far the most menacing factor in the question of war or peace at this moment. There are many reasons why France has not yet attacked Germany. The most important reason was because Italy's attitude was uncertain. Today Italy has become the leader of European public opinion in condemning Germany and there is no longer any question of Italian support for Hitler.

Thus, although there is no occasion for war to preserve the independence of Austria, there is some danger that France might take this opportunity while European hostility against Germany is at fever heat, to strike.

NAZIS HELD MURDERERS

Mussolini presently is using language which might encourage France to believe that Italy is ready to support a war against Germany. Mussolini's own newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, writes Germany has gooose-stepped its way into the hatred of the whole world." The paper declares:

"Germany's government does not deserve the name of government. What are Nazis? They are murderers and perverse creatures—nothing else."

Lavoro Fascista declares:

"The information and the facts do not leave the slightest doubt that the National Socialist leaders of Germany must be made responsible for the murder of the chancellor of Austria."

MUSSOLINI'S PLAN

As a matter of fact Mussolini does not want war with Germany, but he does want to frighten Hitler into absolutely and forever giving up the German campaign to get Austria.

Mussolini sees this moment as a golden opportunity to force Hitler to break up the Austrian Nazi organization on German soil.

To this end, Mussolini advised the Austrian government not to accept von Papen as minister until Hitler first dissolves the Austrian Legion, numbering about 10,000, who hitherto have been housed and supported in Bavaria; second, to liquidate the Austrian Nazi political organization in Germany which through the Munich radio station led the propaganda attack of Dollfuss, and third, to give binding and public announcement that he will leave Austria alone.

HITLER RUMORS

Characteristic of wild rumors being circulated today was the report that a steamer in Fiume picked up a radio message that Hitler had been assassinated in Bayreuth. An atmosphere conducive to rumor was enhanced by the fact that Vienna mobilized again on a report that the Nazis were reorganizing to attack the barracks in Morocco street to free the Nazi prisoners held there. The report was false but the city again bristled with machine guns.

It was further reported that the Heimwehr was planning a putsch if their leader, Prince Rudiger von Starhemberg, was not made Chancellor. Today, however, Starhemberg has accepted the vice chancellorship while the new Chancellor, Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, enjoys Starhemberg's confidance.

Schuschnigg was Dollfuss' best friend and became prominent in Austrian politics when two years ago he organized the Sturmscharen in competition with the Heimwehr. There was some rivalry between the two organizations, both of which were intended to fight Nazis and Socialists.

Schuschnigg's assumption of the chancellory means among other things that if it were not for the opposition of Juga-Slavia, Otto, of Hapsburg, probably would be restored to the throne very quickly.

LEADER VISIONS AUSTRIA PEACE

International News Service.

LONDON, July 30.—(INS.)—"War clouds have passed so far as Austria is concerned," Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, the new Austrian Chancellor, declared through an official of the Foreign Office today in a telephonic interview with the Evening Star.

The official, Dr. Kleinwaechter, talked under the instructions of Chancellor Schuschnigg, the Star declared. He was quoted as saying:

"There is absolute unity among the cabinet members who are driving toward one end —peace."

GERMANY ALERT AT BORDER

MUNICH, Germany, July 30.—(AP.)—The border between Germany and Austria is open today, but German officials are maintaining a strict vigilance.

For the second time since civil war broke out in Austria the frontier was closed yesterday, but was thrown open again some hours later.

The latest closing was believed intended to prevent Nazis from going into Austria to enlist under the banner of revolution and to bar communications between supporters of the cause in the two countries.

American Jews Told To Fight Hitlerism

CHICAGO, July 30.—(AP.)—American Jews were called upon yesterday to "prevent the forces of Hitlerism from engulfing this nation."

Addressing an assemblage celebrating Jewish community day at the world's fair, Congressman Samuel Dickstein, of New York, charged that Hitlerism maintains a bureau of foreign propaganda to infest and poison national life in other countries.

Hitler Wept, Duce Amazed At Parley

(Copyright, 1934, Universal Service, Inc.)

LONDON, July 30.—An authentic outline of the June talks at Venice between Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler disclosed today that the two dictators, far from laying the basis of continued peace in Europe, as then reported, found themselves at loggerheads over Austria's future.

In quarters close to both Mussolini and Hitler it was stated the German Chancellor broke down and wept while he was conversing with the Italian Premier. Hitler said both he and Germany had been misrepresented. Mussolini watched the flow of tears with amazement.

Hitler then declared Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria, who died last Wednesday at the hands of Nazi assassins, should call a general election to permit the Austrian Nazis to express themselves at the polls. Hitler said they constituted a majority of the electorate. If Dollfuss did not want to do that, Hitler suggested he take a number of Nazis into a coalition government.

Mussolini energetically opposed both suggestions, declaring their realization would be virtual political suicide for Dollfuss.

Italy's Naval Plea Put Before Britain

LONDON, July 30.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini's special naval emissary, Capt. Raineri Biscia, will explain to the British this week why Italy needs two new 35,000-ton battleships.

Captain Biscia is here to exchange technical data on Italo-British naval programs and will also keep his ear to the ground and write a report for Il Duce on the outlook for the 1935 naval conference.

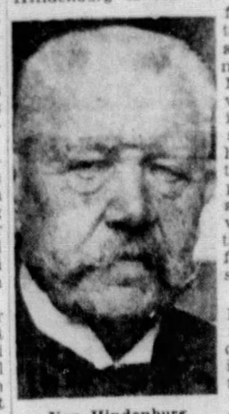
Third German Spy Seized by French

PARIS, July 30.—(INS.)—French secret service men today arrested another alleged German spy, Theodore Dieffenthal, at Stirinwendel, near Metz, according to a dispatch to the newspaper Ami du Peuple.

Dieffenthal is the third person arrested in four days, accused of attempting to learn details of the new French fortifications along the German border.

HINDENBURG'S ILLNESS DENIED

BERLIN, July 30.—(AP.)—Reports that President Paul von Hindenburg is seriously ill were followed today by a statement from Neudeck, where he is in his summer home, that "apparently all is well with the aged field marshal.



Von Hindenburg

The Neudeck reports did not go into details as to whether the President had recovered from an illness—as he has several times in the past—or whether the first information was incorrect.

From Beyreuth, where Chancellor Hitler has a temporary headquarters, word that "a certain old gentleman is very ill" had caused considerable alarm.

POPE GRIEVED OVER AUSTRIA

VATICAN CITY, July 30.—(AP.)—Bishop Daniel J. Gercke, of Tucson, Ariz., found Pope Pius grieved by the Austrian situation today when he had an audience with the Pontiff.

It was the bishop's quinquennial audience with the pope. Bishop Gercke said:

"The holy father referred to Chancellor Dollfuss in terms of the deepest admiration. He said Dollfuss was a good man and had labored well for his country and his church.

"I found the pope tremendously agitated and grieved over the Austrian situation."

Torture, Atrocities by Heimwehr Charged

BERLIN, July 30.—(INS.)—Indescribable tortures were perpetrated on Austrian Nazis by Heimwehr troops during the fighting in Vienna and the provinces of Styria and Carinthia last week, according to the semi-official German News Agency which distributed dispatches today from Budapest and Belgrade.

In lower Austria about a hundred prisoners were slain in cold blood, the dispatches asserted, and 70 others, including two children, were massacred in Styria.

NAZIS ON TRIAL FOR DOLLFUSS SLAYING

had shot himself fatally in jail.

Today, when the raiding party entered the hospital, a nurse notified the police who arrived in time to capture several of the raiders. The rest escaped.

Because of the extraordinary measures of defense against a threatened Nazi putsch taken throughout the city last night, the general hospital temporarily was left without its strong guard while police and Heimwehr members were concentrated around such strategic public buildings as the war ministery and police headquarters.

SLAYER CONFESSES

Otto Planetta, a former staff sergeant in the Austrian army who was among the Nazis who raided the chancellery last Wednesday, confessed today that he fired the shot which killed Chancellor Dollfuss—the crime of which he was already accused.

He said it was his revenge for having been dismissed from military service on account of his Nazi sympathies.

It may be recalled that Rudolf Dertil, who shot and wounded Dollfuss last October, was a former army bugler who had been dismissed from the service two months previously for suspected Nazi sympathy.

Restoration rumors flared through the city again today with the arrival of unverified reports from Lacenburg, near Vienna, that the Hapsburg summer palace was being renovated prior to its reoccupation.

It is to be recalled that the late Emperor Charles and the Empress Zita, mother of the Archduke Otto, spent some time there after the revolution of 1918.

MARSHAL ARRESTED

A World War field marshal was placed under arrest for Nazi activity.

He is Karl Bardolff, one-time chief of the military cabinet of the Grand Duke Franz Ferdinand. Usually, when the possibility of a Nazi-controlled Austrian cabinet has been discussed, the name of Bardolff has cropped up as the possible minister of war.

Under the leadership of Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, newly-appointed Chancellor, the fourth cabinet within a week began its work. Dollfuss was still Chancellor last Wednesday. For a few hours he was succeeded by Schuschnigg. He in turn yielded to Prince Ernst von Starhemberg as the acting chancellor. Now Schuschnigg is back in power.

CABINET TAKES OATH

He and his fellow ministers appeared before President Wilhelm Miklas in the early morning hours and took the oath of office, von Starhemberg again serving as vice chancellor.

While Schuschnigg has an army semi-military organization which he leads, his vice chancellor could practically checkmate this power, by his own control of the police, gendarmerne and large Heimwehr force.

If Austria should give its agreement to the appointment of Franz von Papen, German vice chancellor, as minister to Vienna, it appeared likely that he would have no easy task for a Heimwehr man has been appointed foreign minister.

The new minister, Egon Berger-Waldenegg, is a strong supporter and subordinate of Von Starhemberg, who, in a speech Friday, declared emphatically that there can be no compromise with National Socialists (Nazism).

If this attitude continues, obvious difficulties confront von Papen when, and if, he arrives as Chancellor Hitler's personal peacemaker.

MONARCHIST AT HELM

While, on the whole, Sunday was observed as a day of rest by the warring factions in Austria, reports from the Jugo-Slav border indicated that trouble was still continuing there.

At 4 a. m. a skirmish was reported at Andritz, near Graz, between Heimwehr men and mobile security police on one side and a group of insurgents apparently composed of Nazis and Communists, on the other. The skirmish was short-lived, however.

As Dr. Schuschnigg, a monarchist, took the leadership of Austria today, the guns of civil war which had cracked for four tense days were silent.

DOLLFUSS POLICIES

The new government headed by Dr. Schuschnigg, 37 years old, and an ardent supporter of the martyred Dollfuss, is regarded at best as only a continuation of the compromise by which Dollfuss ruled.

The appointment of Schuschnigg by President Miklas was cheered by monarchists, with whom he has been identified, although he is a member of the Christian Social Party.

Monarchists were reported to have met over the week-end in Switzerland seeking a plan to place Archduke Otto, the Hapsburg pretender, on the throne.

Although Schuschnigg is an outspoken legitimist, it is considered improbable he will take any step to further Otto's case while the international situation remains unchanged.

PLEAS FOR OTTO GIVEN ALLIES IN SECRET

LUCERNE, Switzerland, July 30.—(AP.)—Austrian and Hungarian monarchists are reported to be drafting a plan to pull a throne for Archduke Otto out of the troubled politics of Vienna.

Supporters of the Hapsburg Archduke — unconfirmed reports said today—met secretly over the week-end at Vitznau to form a plan for restoration acceptable to Italy, France, England and the Little Entente. Secret agents of foreign powers, these sources said, were called into the conference.

Col. Randin, of the Austrian army; Felix Dunkel, Austrian monarchist, and Count Hojos, a Hungarian named intimate friend of Otto, are said to be leaders in the movement.

Their first object is to secure the approval of Premier Mussolini, of Italy.

Ready to Save Austria, Otto Told Knickerbocker

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Austrian throne, whose chances of grasping the sceptre his ancestors wielded for centuries have improved immeasurably as a result of recent events in his homeland, is convinced that restoration of the monarchy will save Austria and Europe from another war.

The youthful archduke, now reported ready to fly to Vienna on a moment's notice, made clear his views in an interview early this year with H. R. Knickerbocker, famous roving European correspondent of International News Service. It was the first interview he had ever granted, and has not spoken for publication since. He told Knickerbocker:

"Central Europe cannot stand another war, so the preservation of peace in Central Europe is most essential.

"But to preserve it the first condition is the preservation of the independence of Austria.

"Restoration is not reaction. Restoration means the preservation of the things that were good in the past and their application to the situation that now exists.

"Surely no one can imagine that the prospect of assuming the burdens of government at a time like this in Europe could be pleasurable. It is only because I feel the absolute obligation of the task that God has assigned to us that I am prepared to accept it."

700 Nazis Disarmed At Jugo-Slav Border

BELGRADE, July 30.—(INS.)—The government announced today that 700 Austrian Nazis, mostly youths, crossed the Jugo-Slav border between Naribor and Dravograd and were immediately disarmed. The Jugo-Slav border patrols confiscating 200 rifles, one machinegun and hundreds of pistols.

ITALY BLOCKING VON PAPEN, BERLIN CRIES

BERLIN, July 30.—(AP.)—While German newspapers charged the Italian press with "working against" Austrian acceptance of the appointment of Franz von Papen as special envoy to Austria, Chancellor Hitler conferred on the Austrian and foreign situation today at Bayreuth with von Papen, Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, and Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier.

Herr von Papen

On official of the propaganda ministry told of the conference.

Official circles expect that Austria will accept von Papen as new minister to Austria later in the week. It was understood that the conference was concerned with the extraordinary powers which von Papen will be given in going to his Vienna post. He is to report direct to Hitler instead of in the customary manner of through the foreign office.

'LYING CAMPAIGN'

Meanwhile, the Montagspost, which, with the Dermontag, condemned the Italian press as untruthful and misinformed, asked:

"Is this an aid to European peace?"

In a front page editorial entitled "A Word Against the Lying Campaign of Italian Newspapers," the Dermontag declared Germany's peace gestures are being studiously ignored. It asked:

"Why do not they say exactly what they mean; namely, that Austria shall be oriented to the south and never to the north?

FEAR CONSEQUENCES

"Land, air and military forces along Austrian borders indicate clearly Italy's intention and guarantee that any attack on Austria's independence will be met with the direct interference of Italy."

The Montagspost charged sections of the Italian, French and English press with "accusations that may have political consequence." The German government, it said, is solidly in accord with Rome, Paris and London in condemnation of the murder of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Allies Hold von Papen Mission 'Occupation'

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

LONDON, July 30.—The British, French and Italian governments have urged President Miklas, of Austria, to reject Franz von Papen as German minister extraordinary to Vienna.

While the British Foreign Office hummed with almost warlike activity, it was learned on high authority that the great powers had warned Miklas again von Papen's mission, in response to queries by the Austrian President in London, Paris and Rome.

Reports from an authentic source that von Papen would attempt to advise the Austrian government to cease arresting Nazis and to try a moderating policy have strengthened the impression in high London circles that his presence in Vienna would be dangerous to the stabilization of the Austrian crisis.

In allied circles, von Papen's mission is regarded as something in the nature of a German "occupation" of Austria.

FRANCE WARY OF VON PAPEN

PARIS, July 30.—(AP.)—A battle of diplomacy to prevent negotiations between Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, and the successor to Chancellor Dolfuss, of Austria, for a union of Germany and Austria was foreseen today by French officials.

The danger of a new Nazi campaign of diplomatic persuasion for an Austro-German alliance through a customs union would be revived, said authorities, if the new Austrian government accepts Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen as German minister to Austria.

Although Chancellor Schuschnigg, of Austria, is expected to continue the Dollfuss policy of opposition to the Nazis, Von Papen is regarded here as "a clever diplomat," who might "play his catholic cards in the Anschluss game"—the Anschluss being a union of Austria and Germany.

French quarters suspect that Von Papen's mission might be primarily the negotiation of a customs union between Austria and Bavaria.

LITTLE ENTENTE VOICES ALARM

By WILLIAM PARKER

International News Service.

PARIS, July 30.—Alarmed at continued presence on the Austrian frontier of Italian forces variously estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000, the ministers of Jugo-Slavia and Rumania called upon Foreign Minister Louis Barthou this afternoon to learn France's attitude in the face of the Italian concentration.

The evening newspaper La Liberte declared that the little entente powers allied with France—Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia—are becoming increasingly nervous over Italian military moves and insist that any intervention in Austria must be by the great powers and the little entente and not by Italy alone.

Il Duce Grim Over Berlin Attacks

ROME, July 30.—(AP.)—Despite reassuring reports from Vienna, Italy's fighting forces remain encamped on the Austrian border today.

One official said the troops would remain in the north for about two more weeks. Traffic between the two countries is said to be resuming normal proportions.

Premier Mussolini is devoting his full attention to the Nazi-Fascist hostilities in Austria, determined that Nazis shall not dominate the country.

He spent his 51st birthday yesterday studying reports on the situation. He had planned to be at a sea resort with Engelbert Dollfuss, the martyred Austrian chancellor.

PRESSURE DENIED

A government official denied reports Italy is exerting pressure on Austria to refuse to accept Franz von Papen, German vice chancellor, as a special envoy to Vienna. This, the spokesman said, is an internal Austrian affair and one in which Italy will not meddle.

Italian newspapers are urging France and England to combine with Italy to take steps to prevent a recurrence of trouble in Austria, but the government spokesman said no note to Berlin asking dissolution of Nazi Storm Troops is planned.

Mussolini was reported to be in a bad humor after reading clippings from German newspapers attacking Italy for sending troops to the border.

DOLLFUSS MEMORIAL

Grim-faced and apparently lost in memories, Il Duce attended memorial services today for Dollfuss.

Dressed in the Prime Minister's uniform, Mussolini followed the services at St. Ignatius Church.

At several points during the mass celebrated by Msgr. Vincentini, patriarch of Antioch, and at the blessing given by Cardinal Marchetti Selvaggiani, vicar of the Rome diocese, he reverently bowed his head.

A representative of King Victor Emanuel and the entire diplomatic corps, including German Ambassador von Hassel, were present. Two hundred Austrian boys who are guests of Mussolini at Ostia served as ushers.

DANGER OF WAR SOON SCOUTED BY BALDWIN

LONDON, July 30.—(AP.)—Stanley Baldwin, acting prime minister of Great Britain, said in the House of Commons today that there is no immediate danger of war in Europe despite the difficulties and perplexities of the present situation.

He made his statement in defending Great Britain's recently announced plans to increase its air force.

He opposed the Labor Party's motion of censure, declaring:

"In the Saar, in Memel and in Danzig there have been disturbing events, and the recent and most tragic incidents in Germany itself, and, last of all, in Austria, which showed there was a spirit abroad in parts of Europe which, if it could not be curbed, might some day make the task of which their thoughts centered impossible of achievement.

"It was in circumstances such as these that we have seen in the majority of nations who are working on this question of disarmament—whether actively at Geneva or with sympathy, as in the case of the United States, which is not a member of the League of Nations—within the last year or two rather move toward increasing their armaments than decreasing them.

"The future is uncertain."

Austria Told Britain Of German Propaganda

International News Service.

LONDON, July 30.—Evidence has been presented to the British government showing "considerable German influence and propaganda against the Austrian government." Sir John Simon, foreign minister, told the House of Commons this afternoon in response to a question as to whether proof existed that the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss and other recent events in Austria were inspired by Germany.

After the Vienna riots of last February and again recently, Sir John said, the British Foreign Office had received from the Austrian government a collection of material "indicating German influence and propaganda against the Austrian government and a series of outrages committed on Austrian territory."

EXTRA SESSION TO COST STATE $350,000

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service.

HARISBURG, July 30.—Another special session of the Legislature this year will boost the state's expenditure for law making during the present administration to beyond $5,000,000, figures showed today.

The cost of the 1931 and 1933 regular sessions and the three previous special sessions called by Gov. Gifford Pinchot during his second term has been in excess of $4,750,000, according to figures in the budget and fiscal offices.

COST $350,000

A fourth special session this month will add approximately $350,000 to the total.

The latter figure, based on the expectation of a session lasting about six weeks, is comprised of salaries, transportation, printing, per diem employe costs and incidental expenses.

It was probable that more "lame ducks" will sit in the House during the next special session than during any previous extraordinary session in the history of the state. There have been 16 other special sessions since 1775, four of them since 1926.

HOUSE LINEUP

More than one-fourth of the House membership is not running for re-election, either because of voluntary retirement or defeat at the primary. Of the 62 "lame duck" members, 24 are Republicans and 13 Democrats who did not seek re-election at the primary. Sixteen others are Republicans and nine are Democrats defeated at the May 15 election.

This gives the House a political makeup as follows:

	Rep.	Dem.	Soc.
Voluntarily retired	24	11	..
Defeated at primary	16	9	..
Seeking re-election	98	45	2
Resigned	..	2	..
Dead	1	..	..
Totals	139	67	2

Six Republicans and one Democrat will be "lame ducks" in the Senate, all of them by virtue of the fact they did not seek renomination. The Senate roster now contains seven Democrats and 43 Republicans.

Americans Fight to Rule As Social Czars of Paris

European Royalty Pawns in Battle Of Rich 'Yanks'

By STANTON B. LEEDS
Universal Service.

PARIS, July 30—Bitter controversy has broken out between rival American social factions here. One group wants to revive the days in which James Gordon Bennett ruled as king, while the other insists that snobbery is done forever.

King Alfonso

The second group, reputedly headed by wealthy Mrs. Henry Symes Lehr, intends to use former King Alfonso of Spain as a social arbiter. Mrs. Lehr's late husband, remembered as the "Immortal Harry," was the most famous cotillion leader of New York's "4 0 0." Mrs. Lehr's income is still around $450,000 a year.

MRS. HENRY SYMES LEHR

Much is expected to happen when she and Alfonso move to establish a new society dictatorship, but she is not expected to have things all her own way. The other group, in which Mrs. Burke Roche and Mme. Jacques Balsan, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt and later the wife of the Duke of Marlborough, are significant figures, has a card up its sleeve.

This "card" is Juliana Cutting, New York's famous social secretary, who has been preparing a "final list" of which Americans on the Continent are socially "elite" and "first class." It is understood she has shown great interest in an attempt to establish a Parisian American "Who's Who."

The battle between the two groups has been a source of great joy to outsiders and even to insiders with a sense of humor. Among those whose activities have been considered "unfortunate" by the old-timers are the titled people who are said to be "getting out of hand."

These old-timers say that Bennett knew what was what socially, that he was a friend of Queen Amelie of Portugal, and the other Bourbons, and knew real royalty when he met it.

The new Americans don't know, the old ones say. They complain that there are too many grand dukes at parties, and that only French royalty and some of the English nobility are of the same caliber as well born Americans. They say it is necessary to have someone like Miss Cutting prepare a list "showing who is really who."

They also deplore what they call the "clubwoman complex," for which they blame Mme. Balsan's mother, the late, very wealthy Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont. They say:

"These are worthy women, but worthy activities have nothing to do with society."

Preaches Sermon From Snow Pulpit

SOMERVILLE, Mass., July 30.—(AP.)—The Rev. Harold W. Arthur, pastor of the Union Square Baptist Church, has gone the 20-degrees - cooler - than - outside amusement palaces one better.

While the city outside sweltered yesterday, Arthur preached from a bank of snow and members of a cooled congregation sat in comfort and sang hymns about winter. The snow was manufactured for the novel service by an ice company.

Man Found Shot, 3 Suspects Held

Found shot in the right leg in the 3000 block of Webster avenue, early today, Thackeray Rodgers, 31, Negro, of 520 Wickiow street, was under arrest in the West Penn Hospital. The shot broke Rodgers' knee. Three other Negroes were arrested, Harry Ballard and Virginia Davis, both of 4848 Mossfield avenue, and William Morgan, 5348½ Columbo street.

POLICE HOLD 5 IN HILL FIGHT

Five men were being held for investigation today after a stabbing fracas which resulted in the arrests of nearly a score, at Shomin and Hazel streets Saturday.

Two Mexicans and a Negro were stabbed, just before they and 12 others were taken into custody, charged with inciting a riot.

The fray began, police said, when Lozano 25, a Mexican, of Maryland avenue, struck David Lewis, 17, Negro. Sam Monroe, 25, and William Dorsey, Negroes, ran to Lewis' assistance. In the melee, Monroe was stabbed. Manuel Lozano, Frank's father was also cut. At a hearing yesterday, Magistrate Howard McNutt detained the two Lozanos, Monroe, Dorsey and Lewis. Ten others were discharged.

U. S. DRIVE SPURS PARIS FILM HOPES

Universal Service.

PARIS, July 30.—The drive of the league of decency in the United States against objectionable motion pictures has given the French the idea that this is the correct moment to break into the world market with French films.

Mr. Fairbanks

An official committee, headed by former Premier Edouard Herriot, will study one aspect of the question, while every effort will be made to enlist the interest and approval of Cardinal Verdier, archbishop of Paris, in another.

MADELEINE CARROLL

American and English movie stars, notably Douglas Fairbanks and Madeleine Carroll, will be invited at high pay to appear opposite such French stars as Gaby Morlay and Annabella. The movement is progressing so fast that Charles Boyer has been recalled from Hollywood, with his American wife, and soon Maurice Chevalier will be asked to show that he is a French patriot by returning to his native land.

The French think that they have something to sell which others cannot produce as well as they. As one producer expressed it, "we can do naughty things without giving offense."

No chances will be taken. American pictures which have scored successes are being studied with a view to doing "something French along the same line," and as soon as possible.

SEIZE BEDROOM SLUGGER OF 2

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 30.—(AP.)—The slugging of Stanley Selover, Morning Press reporter, attacked as he lay asleep in bed in his home last May 27, was explained today with the confession, police said, of Tony De Leon, 19, former CWA laborer.

Selover's skull was fractured.

Leon's arrest came after a similar attack early yesterday on Miss Norman Kane, who was beaten about the head with a bottle when she awoke and discovered Leon in her room. Miss Kane was not dangerously injured.

Leon told police they said that he slugged Miss Kane and Selover because they awoke and caught him in their homes, which he was about to rob.

1¢ buys the electricity to operate:

Electric Appliance	Hours	Mins.
Washing Machine	1	18
Vibrator	10
Percolator		22
Sun Lamp S-2	1	15
Heating Pad	5

The length of time the appliances named in this advertisement can be operated is based on 4c per Kwh, in which classification a large percentage of our customers come. If your use of electricity entitles you to the advantages of a 3c rate you can operate the same appliances proportionately longer. However, those who pay 5c for electric energy can operate these appliances only four-fifths of the length of time stated.

Your electric penny buys more than twice as much electricity today than it did twenty years ago. The cost of electric current has consistently decreased over that period until today you enjoy the use of a low-priced commodity which makes possible the use of dozens of labor-saving, time-saving electric appliances. Your electric washer for instance, costs only 1c to operate for 1 hour and 18 minutes—49 minutes longer than it could have been operated at the electric rate of 20 years ago. What other household commodity today offers so much, so inexpensively, as electricity?

GIANTS' RETURN REQUESTED BY HOME FOLKS

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 30.—(AP.)—The Cardiff Giant—New York state's greatest contribution to the history of hoaxes—is wanted back home.

The Chamber of Commerce has written its sister organization in Fort Dodge, Ia., present home of the great what-is-it, that "a committee of citizens would like to know if we can buy, borrow or rent the giant, and if so, how much?"

The great stone figure, "the American Goliath," "the prehistory man," "the fossil giant," as it was variously dubbed, was unearthed 65 years ago on a farm 14 miles south of Syracuse, not far from the drowsy little hamlet of Cardiff.

P. T. Barnum offered $150,000 for it, and when he was turned down, had a copy made and exhibited it on two continents.

The giant was 10 feet 4½ inches tall and weighed 2,990 pounds. More than 6,000,000 people paid to see it on its extensive tours through the country.

What was this giant? A petrified man, said the excavators.

Then the hoax blew up. The giant had been cut out of gypsum quarried at Fort Dodge. It was shipped to Binghamton and brought at night by wagon to the Newell farm, there to be buried where it might be found conveniently by workmen digging a well in—of all places—the middle of a swamp.

But Syracuse wants him permanently.

PITTSBURGHER DIES IN POLAND

Stanislaw Osada, 66, editor of Sokol, a national Polish sports weekly, with offices at 97 South Eighteenth street, died today in a Warsaw hospital, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Mr. Osada

Osada, one of the oldest Polish editors of the United States, had gone to his native country to attend a convention of Polish residents abroad. He left Pittsburgh July 5. Becoming ill he was taken to the home of his brother, Nikolai Osada, a member of the Polish Parliament. A few days ago his condition became worse and he was taken to a hospital.

Osada had been a resident of the United States for 48 years, and of Pittsburgh for eight years. He leaves a wife, son and daughter, the two later of Chicago. He resided at 517 Sylvania avenue.

after forty, so Mr. Ziegfeld decided that he could not give her work, as he had hoped to do.

She struggled, unsuccessfully, for fourteen years, lost all her savings, never lost her courage. And when she died, at sixty-two, she was one of the greatest successes in moving pictures, most highly paid, respected and admired, with no help from any beauty parlor.

Moving picture men should notice that Miss Dressler was able to earn great profits for her producers, in plays NOT immoral, clean plays dealing with the normal interests of normal human beings.

SOVIET RUSSIA finds herself in possession of a great treasure, thanks to the Greek Church, which she has treated so harshly. The churches and cathedrals, now government property, are said to contain hundreds of millions' worth of precious objects, sacred images, "Ikons" framed in solid gold, and huge doors of massive silver. One image of the Virgin is said to have been ornamented with more than two thousand diamonds, of which many had been stolen.

CHARLES L. FLICK, correspondent of Universal Service, reports anti-religious outbreaks in Austria as savage as any in Russia. Because Dollfuss was a devout Roman Catholic his Nazi enemies have assumed that Austrian priests were all his allies, and a number of priests are reported killed. Universal Service described Nazis firing on priests in Carinthia because the priests refused permission to establish Nazi machine gun nests in church belfries.

"At Leoben," says Universal Service, "Nazis broke into a church and wounded a priest. From the church belfry they then poured a withering fire on advancing Fascist Heimwehren. The Heimwehr troopers, mostly all devout Catholics, hesitated before bringing artillery to bear on the church."

CANDY STORE, DANCE HALL ROBBED

Safecrackers secured more than $1,000 when they broke open two safes in a building at 6214 Penn avenue in the latest of a series of week-end "jobs."

Forcing entrance in the same manner which has characterized their previous efforts—through a skylight—they lowered themselves with a rope to the third floor of the building and entered MacDougall's Dancing Academy.

After taking $20.35 from the safe, they ransacked the second-floor offices of Dr. George A. Urling and the Allegheny Finance Company. The loss was undetermined in these places.

LARGEST HAUL

Going to the first floor of the building, they knocked the combination from a safe in the Candyland establishment where they made their largest haul. They obtained $608.93 of post-office funds, $130 in bus receipts and $265 of the company's cash. Also missing were old coins valued at $35, $10 worth of stamps and a $200 ring.

Thieves broke into a restaurant of J. W. Adams, 6010 Broad street, and stole $150 from the cash register, whisky valued at $350, $25 worth of cigars and cigarets from a vending machine. Entrance was gained through a side window.

SQUIRREL HILL THEFT

At the confectionery of Joseph Poli, 2607 Murray avenue, robbers removed a screen from a rear window and secured loot totaling nearly $100. Reported missing were $50 in cash, $14 worth of cigarets and $30 worth of whisky and gin.

Charles Voinnovich, of Bridgeville, reported to police the loss of a $39 radio while he was sleeping in his auto at Fontella and Hamlin streets yesterday.

A thief broke into the store of Nathan Fireman, 62-64 Logan street, and stole 15 live chickens and $6 worth of cigarets, police reported.

Mary Balint, of 900 Smith lane, Munhall, reported loss of her purse containing $1.15, which she had placed on a newsstand while waiting for a street car at Diamond and Grant streets.

MAN STRONGARMED

Gaining entrance with a passkey, thieves obtained $30 worth of wine, cigarets and cigars at the Valentine Restaurant, 605 Grant street.

William Hufferess, 3630 Liberty avenue, was strongarmed by two men at Thirty-sixth street and Mulberry way last night and robbed of $12.50.

An unidentified man snatched the purse of Mrs. Thomas Brown, 900 Lincoln avenue, at Brushton avenue and Susquehanna street, and fled with $20.

CIGARET PAPER STABBING CLUE

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 30.—(AP.)—A four-word description, scribbled on a cigaret paper, is the only clue in the possession of state policemen to the identity of a vagrant who stabbed and critically injured a railroad employe.

David Jones, 38, of Vandergrift, was knifed in the neck as he attempted to oust the vagrant from a railroad freight car early yesterday in the "jungle," a siding between Vandergrift and Pine Run.

Bleeding profusely, Jones started for a dwelling nearly a mile distant. Collapsing en route, he wrote "man with white hair" on the cigaret paper. The note was found nearby after searchers discovered Jones unconscious near the tracks.

Flames Sweeping Western Forests

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—(AP.)—Fires swept thousands of acres of dry timber, grain, brush and pasture lands of the West today.

The greatest concern was felt in the northern tier of states from the Cascade Mountains in Washington to the Rockies in Montana where rich timber and grain lands were blackened as hot, dry weather favored the flames.

Hudson Tube Builder Dies in N. Y. at 79

GREAT NECK, N. Y., July 30.—(AP.)—John F. O'Rourke, 79, engineer who built the tubes of the Pennsylvania and Long Island railroads under the Hudson and East rivers and who also made the plans of Los Angeles Harbor, is dead here today.

GOVERNOR VOTE CLOSE IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Tex., July 30.—(AP.)—Two neighbors who cast votes in the same ballot box—James V. Allred and Tom F. Hunter—watched final vote tabulations today that may send them into the second Democratic primary August 25 for the Texas governorship.

Allred, fiery and youthful attorney general now completing his second term, boasted a 40,000 vote advantage over Hunter, his closest opponent in a field of six candidates, but still was reluctant to issue a "victory statement." They live in Wichita Falls.

Congressman Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., sent congratulations to United States Senator Tom Connally. Connally had 388,616 votes to 246,796 for Bailey at the last count.

In the Congressional races in the 14 districts where there were contests, most of the incumbents had commanding leads, although several of them faced the necessity of going into the run-off primary.

Diplomat, Artist In Duel Over Beauty

PARIS, July 30.—(Universal.)—A diplomat's flirtation with the flimsily-clad model of a Russian artist who was painting her in the romantic setting of the moonlight-flooded Tuileries Garden today at sunrise brought the two men face to face with drawn swords.

Joseph Clerici, attache of the San Marino legation, pinked the artist, Serge Signori, twice in the arm. Physicians thereupon halted the duel and the tow men embraced and drank a champagne toast to the girl.

She is reported to be a beautiful native from French Martinique.

Bridegroom for Day Killed in Auto Crash

WINDBER, July 30.—(AP.)—A car crashed over a bank last night, killing Russell Isminger, 19, who was married Saturday, and seriously injuring Russell Lockhart, 21.

The youths, both from Indiana, Pa., were rushed to a hospital, but Isminger was dead upon arrival.

CRIPPLE SHOOTS DOG BEATER

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—(AP.)—A paralytic crawled to a police station on his hands and knees early today and told officers he had just shot a friend for beating his pet dog.

At the home of the paralytic, John McCash, 24, police found George Meier, 40, shot six times and critically wounded. McCash, who because of his affliction is forced to crawl, told ponce Meier beat his dog, then said:

"I'll give that cripple the same treatment I gave his dog."

McCash said he asked Meier why he beat the dog and an argument ensued, climaxed by the shooting.

Winant New Head Of Motor Company

Edwin C. Winant, formerly treasurer of the Lange Motor Truck Company, has been elected president to succeed E. L. Atkinson, resigned. The company will concentrate on servicing, Winant stated.

2 Nudists Sentenced In Coney Island Coup

NEW YORK, July 30.—(INS.)—"Nudism has got to stop at Coney Island."

That was the assertion of Magistrate Jeannette G. Brill in Coney Island Court as she sentenced two men to serve one day in jail for swimming a la natural at New York's famous seaside resort.

Held as Accomplice In Narcotic Case

George Sarkas, 21, of Whitcomb street, was arrested by county detectives today and turned over to government authorities to face a charge of violating the narcotic act. He was sought as an accomplice of five others arrested two months ago.

'BRAIN TRUST' HIT FOR CURB ON INDUSTRY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — A slashing attack on the "brain trust" policy of increasing imports and curbing "inefficient American industries," was made public today by Francis P. Garvan of New York, chairman of the Chemical Foundation.

Garvan disclosed details of the controversy over a new Southern newsprint industry which was opposed by the "brain trust" on the ground that it would curb imports and prevent foreign nations from backing American cotton.

ROW STIRRED

Garvan unloosed caustic criticism of Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, department of agriculture economist; Dr. Willard L. Thorpe, former director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and Prof. Claudius Murchison, the new director.

In his original letter turning thumbs down on the proposed Southern newsprint industry Ezekiel told Garvan that international trade must be developed so that the farmer can sell his product and added "for this reason we cannot agree with you that it is to the advantage of farmers to adopt arrangements such as you propose in your letter."

After Southern congressmen raised a row and demanded that the proposed Southern newsprint industry be encouraged, Dr. Ezekiel on June 7 agreed that a study of utilization of Southern pine would be carried on "as rapidly as possible in the face of reduced appropriations."

CITES BENEFIT

Garvan asserted that Dr. Charles Herty had already shown that a great newsprint industry could be established in the South using pine which had been wasted. He said the United States imports $170,000,000 of newsprint each year and argued that the farmers would be benefited in the new industry were it established in this country.

Garvan labelled the Ezekiel-Thorpe-Murchison theory that international trade must be increased and opposing a "self-contained America" as "bunk."

Garvan asserted that depending upon foreign trade "ruined" Cuba and Chile, and that a similar theory would ruin the United States.

Police Hold Three In N. S. Stabbing

North Side police today were holding three men resulting from Henry Seibenrock, 38, being stabbed with an ice pick in a rooming house at 421 Arch street, last night.

Those held were Samuel McConnell, 36; John Murtha, 29, and Pat McHugh, 37, all of the same address. Seibenrock was treated at Allegheny General Hospital for a flesh wound and later taken to the police station on a disorderly conduct charge.

VIENNA SCIENTISTS CLAIM SERUM TO KILL CANCER

Universal Service.

VIENNA, July 30.—An antidote for cancer, a substance which dissolves and kills the cancer cells, is said to have been found by Vienna scientists working under the guidance of Dr. Adolf Edelmann, director of the Vienna Cancer Research Institute, founded by the late S. Canning Childs, American millionaire.

Dr. Edelmann and his associates have produced from human cancerous tissues an organic substance, which is believed to dissolve cancer cells just as the "bacteriophage" dissolves that bacilli of its own kind.

"Bacteriophage" or bacteriumeater, discovered by the French bacteriologist D'Herelle, is a special type of cell produced only by organisms attacked by a contagious disease. The bacteriumeaters can be found in the blood of diseased persons and constitute a sort of counter-attack on the organism of the disease germs.

The "bacteriophage" can also be produced artificially in a culture of bacteria. This fact is said to be of great importance, because it is believed to enable bacteriologists to prepare serums against various contagious diseases.

Dr. Edelmann and his colleagues, of whom the most prominent is Dr. Fritz Silberstein of the Vienna University, believe they have found the "bacteriophage" of cancer. They have named it "autolysin" or "self-solvent" because they can not yet prove whether a cancer bacterium really exists.

But whether cancer cells contain parasitic microbes, or are just diseased cells of the human organism, Edelmann claims that "autolysin" dissolves them and prevents the growth of new cancer cells.

The new anti-cancer substance is now being carefully tested in the institute as well as in various clinics, and it is claimed that the results are exceedingly encouraging.

Aged Woman Faints, Burned By Soup

Mrs. Josephine Tynan, 65, of Federal street, was in Allegheny General Hospital today suffering from burns received when she fainted before her kitchen stove upsetting a pot of soup over her self yesterday.

A short time after the accident Mrs. Lena Ruth, Mrs. Tynan's roommate, returned to the home and found her unconscious. Her condition was reported as critical.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Girl Friday Jots Down Notes.

Dear W.: The Mirror ran a story datelined Denver about one Albert Worth. He used your name and got 15 days in the jug for doing so. Hizzoner gave him plenty of heck before passing sentence, too, which is about time. Sending you clipping of it . . . How do you like this for a provocative song title?—"Serenade for a Wealthy Widow" . . . A new composition by Reginald Forsythe of England. It has no lyrics, no definite melody, but is a modernistic pseudo-symphonic creation . . . Some name for a ditty, though . . . Don Bestor is doing it, th'ass how I know . . . Jack Berger was in with this: The difference between the average critic and average censor—the critic sees a picture, and either likes it or doesn't. The censor sees a picture and doesn't like it.

That mother who came from Palestine to find her missing son H. J. Myers, has to go back soon—the quota, you know. He once did sketches for Earl Carroll and may be in H'wood. Sad case—told the lawyer you'd try to locate him there . . . What's the lawyer's name, again—misplaced it . . . Did you edit the column of actual movie dialogue by Nunnally Johnson? Please return to me . . . I hear that Ethel Somerville of the Casino de Paree is finally getting the license to wed Wm. Hood, son of a minister . . . Cute twist by Annette Hanshaw on Shirley Temple. Annette says she should be renamed Shirley Cathedral.

Preston Sturges is writing songs—veddy sophisticated . . . The Vic Flemings are rattle-shopping . . . The Buddy Colmans (he's Frank Capra's asst.) are dittoing . . . Gov. Lehman is making quite a survey of upstate sentiment before announcing his candidacy for re-election . . . Jack Lait did some grand stuff on the Dillinger matter . . . Who's the columnist out there Barbara Stanwyck is gunning for? Vowing she'll do some lambasting when they meet.

Mrs. Maurice Chevalier, the ex, will return here in September, which is when Maurice plans to return to Paree . . . By the time you get this, Howard Deitz probably will be out of the Dr.'s Hosp. . . . Dora Maughan says a rumor, unfounded, is around about her being beaten up by gangsters. . . . Arthur Godfrey now has an orchestra in a Washington spot—his ambition, he says . . . Lots of mail about the orphans being forced to submit to inoculation for a serum experiment. I sent it to the Governor . . . General Hugh Johnson's Girl Friday, Frances Robinson, doesn't take her job seriously—much . . . While Congress was in session, I hear, she refused to budge out of her seat for Mrs. Roosevelt and party, making them split up . . . I heard another version of the Mae West picture . . . With so much censoring, they say, the picture should be called: "It Ain't No Good!"

When I phone the crowd—they tell me they're writing direct to you . . . I just found that item of only recently—it read: "Dillinger will be Vincent Coll'd any day now" . . . It certainly was obvious he'd wind up that way . . . Don't they always? . . . Coll died with his entire fortune in his pockets, too—less than $100 . . . Mr. K. wants to know when you are taking your vacation. I told him the weeks of August 13th and 20th—and that you'd resume August 27th. Correct? . . . I just read one of those movie scriveners, who said that John Beal was signed for Hepburn's next—and that Beal was lucky for an unknown, etc. . . . Unknown? He merely played in hit shows in New York! . . . Such as "She Loves Me Not" . . . What stupidity!

Cute gag on D. Fairbanks, Jr. . . . His dresser noticed a crowd of people outside the stage door in London . . . He asked: "Are you fans of Mr. Fairbanks?" . . . One replied: "We're fans of Gertrude Lawrence, but we'd like to get a look at Fairbanks, too". . .

Ashton Stevens has been ill, again . . . Too bad about Ernie Byfield and Frank Bering being out of the Sherman in Chi. For years their menage was the haven for all the biggies in the show biz and literary field, they were such gracious hosts.

Nice goings-on in Austria, as you probably know . . . I don't blame you for saying you have no desire to go to Yurrop—but from returning friends—I hear London is the place these days . . . More money in circulation and plenty of jolly times . . . A sort of boom is on, and there is no such thing as a miser or cheap skate . . . Everybody spends . . . They all buy British as much as possible—which is why everybody has coin . . . I hear, too, that one gay place in London gets $6.60 a seat to look at a dozen of N. T. G.'s one-time beauties, which just goes to show.

Mark helps me edit every day by taking a look at things before the presses roll . . . He's very happy because you said the rushes on his "Broadway Bill" movie are so good . . . Ruth is expected back Sunday from her holiday in Florida (some place for a holiday in this weather!) . . . But she met her husband's kin for the first time. Buddy lives in Daytona . . . Just shows you what a girl will do for love, at any rate . . . Nothing else to make notes about . . . Except the gag around town that some editors are punishing reporters (who get drunk or misbehave) by making them read columns THAT FEATURE CAPITAL LETTERS!

Second Rap Comes for Girl

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 30.—Hello! "If at first you don't succeed—" Well, it's an ancient, but mighty good slogan to stick to, especially in Hollywood. Two years ago Phyllis Fraser, Ginger Rogers' cousin, arrived in town to see the movie village. She was just sweet 16, wide-eyed, amazed, slightly ga-ga (that comes from living in the country), and terribly excited when Ginger's ma finally consented to her appearance in pictures.

But the little red school house, back in Oklahoma, was ringing its merry bell, so Phyllis choo-chooed back home with a happy heart. Hadn't she appeared in two films? Maybe another chance would come. And so opportunity broke its aged rule and knocked twice.

Phyllis is back at RKO, where Ginger works, and she hopes to follow in red-headed cousin's dainty but famous footsteps.

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Harry Richman pulled the prize mistake of the year. When he called on Clara Bow, one of the "It" girl's brunette friends answered the door. Harry grabbed the amazed young lady in his arms and embraced her, exclaiming: "Why, Clara, you look marvelous!" When he noticed the mistake, he remained so confused throughout the visit, he said "Goodby, Miss Bow" to the maid, banged his head on the door while making his exit and then almost collapsed on the street! . . . Barbara Stanwyck brought her adopted son, Dion, on the set at Warner's. The youngster saw Frank Shaw, assistant director, wearing a white suit and cracked: "Say, mama, is that the milk man?" . . . Lyle Talbot must be going in for a flock of entertaining. He's rented a 12-room shack in Beverly Hills. . . Irene Colman smacked an agent on the nose, but if I reveal his name his gal friend won't like him any more.

* * *

Down Gabby Street . . . Dr. Franklyn Thorpe snatched Rosita Moreno's appendix . . . Dolores Del Rio is going to Mexico City (her first visit in nine years) for the premiere of her new Warner flicker, "Madam Du Barry," Aug. 9 . . . Dick Powell's police doggie, which he used for an alarm clock, is in the hospital after losing a street bow-wow brawl—and so that explains Dick's tardiness at the studio . . . Erie Schoedsack and RKO have parted company . . . Warren William is a-sailing away to Mexican waters for wifey's health . . Babe Marks and Bert Wheeler would make it a romance—if she could find a chair for him to stand on!

* * *

Boulevard Buzzings . . . After struggling under the monicker of June Vlasek for nearly two years, the young lady has decided to make a change. She'll be known as June Lang from now on.

* * *

He who waits does not always wait in vain . . . Sometime ago Frank Fay startled the wise guys of the film city by sinking a flock of his dough in his own movie. "A Fool's Advice" (which some said was aptly titled). On completion of the movie, Warner Bros. consented to release it. Inside gossips said Barbara Stanwyck (Mrs. Fay), under contract to the studio, had something to do with the deal. At any rate, the picture was promptly shelved—and Frank hasn't worked since.

With the current censor trouble, Frank's picture has been dusted off and is now ready for the market. It was once dubbed as "too sweet" for modern audiences. It may now prove quite the opposite.

Walsh Monkey Totes Pup High Into Tree

By LLOYD PANTAGES

HOLLYWOOD, July 30.—A barely averted tragedy in the Raoul Walsh household came about when the butler discovered that their pet ringtail monkey, Ozzy, had become captivated with one of a litter of Scottie puppies, that he adopted the puppy and took it high into the crotch of a tree, where it was discovered by the butler, frothing at the mouth, possibly from the excitement or the altitude. The purp was rushed quickly to the veterinarian's shoppe, where an ozone treatment saved its life. In the meantime, while the entire family and puppy were done up at the vet's ozzy, still in a paternal frame of mind, adopted one of a litter of kittens and had it in the same spot in the tree, until the Walshes returned for more rescue work. Insane I know, but true, nevertheless.

Edmund Lowe has probably the best philosophy about our Hollywoods of anybody in the industry. He says the one secret of success for a screen actor or actress, to keep one's mind and nerves intact, is to make at least three trips a year out of the movie mecca. The association with the same faces and the hearing of the same conversations day after day, if continued too long, will eventually drive a body "nerts." How's about we scribes? It couldn't be truer.

It is refreshing to find a lady of the cinema who, instead of handing you a bit of plain and fancy bologna about what she loves to do, actually tells the truth. Such is the case of Lyda Roberti. She hates to get up early, she hates to exercise, particularly swimming and horseback riding, she detests good books, she will not put her hand to cooking and she would love to play a guitar, but is too lazy to practice. So what can you do?

* * *

At last the old maestro of the bathtubs has been downed. Cecil B. DeMille, who, when behind the cameras, will put on the greatest show possible for visiting firemen, when he had to get in front of the camera for a special trailer on his new opera, "Cleopatra," had all the doors to the set barred and a big sign set up saying, "No Visitors." He just couldn't take it himself.

* * *

After a season of being a Sennett beauty and the recipient of many Sennett custard pies, Carole Lombard swore off the tasty dish forever, but a culinary expert finally broke down her reserve, and it is now her favorite pastry. Furthermore, she whips them together herself. How domestic!

* * *

Odd bits of twitchery: It is nice to know that Toby Wing receives more fan mail from sailors than any other gal in the cinema. Edward G. Robinson is Hollywood's greatest hobbyists. He collects first editions of English novels, rare pipes, antique furniture, amateur photography, oil paintings, old music albums, Chinese jade and caricatures. Elissa Landi may soon warble for us; she is now taking operatics from Nina Koshetz.

* * *

Helen Lowell has just received a fan letter from an old couple in New York who have seen her in every stage play in which she has appeared for 25 years. Which means that they have seen Miss Lowell in some 85 footlight give-outs. Charles Ruggles is a pool fan, and not the swimming variety. Josephine Hutchinson's only form of exercise is ballroom dancing.

Gene Raymond's ambition is to own a stock farm and breed horses. At the moment he is looking for just such a spot, which will probably bring a rush of real estate agents to the head. Sleep is Alice Brady's ambition. When she has enough money to move away to the French Riviera, she expects to sleep 24 hours a day. That should be amusing.

* * *

One scene you will definitely not see in "Broadway Bill" is one where Director Frank Capra forgot himself while the "mikes" were turned on, and yelled out to Skeeter, a rooster which plays an important part in the picture, "Crow, you so-and-so!" To anyone who thinks the making of the cinema is fun, let it be known that Walter Connolly is playing a captain in "The Captain Hates the Sea," by day on the boat and in "Broadway Bill" at night.

New 'Apple Annie' Type for May

May Robson will return to Columbia studios to co-star with Carole Lombard in "Orchids and Onions," an original by Dwight Taylor adapted by Jo Swerling. Miss Robson will be seen in a role similar to that of "Apple Annie," which she portrayed in "Lady For a Day," the production which made a star of her. She portrays the character of a broken-down, liquor-sodden street woman who brings regeneration to a young girl just starting along the wrong road in life.

'Beach Boy' Is Musical

Modern Hawaii will be brought to the screen in an elaborate medley of music, dance, drama and romance entitled "Beach Boy," a story by Daniel Evans, purchase of which has just been announced by Paramount.

Carl Brisson, Kitty Carlisle, Charlie Ruggles, Mary Boland, Jack Oakie and Evelyn Venable will be in the cast and Norman Taurog probably will direct.

The production will be the most elaborate musical on Paramount's forthcoming production schedule. It is considered likely that the company will be sent to Honolulu, where full pictorial advantage will be taken of Waikiki, the famous resort hotels and the naval station.

Walt Disney Now 'Loans' Stars

"The Orphans' Benefit," newest of the Mickey Mouse films, has gone into production at the Walt Disney studios. With pens and cameras poised to go, Disney has assembled one of the most noteworthy casts he has ever presented. Donald Duck waddles over from the Silly Symphonies to participate in this Mickey Mouse presentation, thereby establishing a new "loan" arrangement at the Disney studios and a new interchange of stars. Minnie Mouse will not be seen in "The Orphans' Benefit." She has gone to the mountains for a week's rest.

Open Air Concert In Park Tonight

There will be an open air band concert tonight in Schenley Park. These municipal musical events are free to the public, and there are ample seating facilities for large attendance. The Schenley Park bandstand is close to the Wilmot street entrance to the park.

Nelson Dance Band In West View

Ozzie Nelson and his band will play tonight only in West View Park ballroom. Harriet Hilliard, blonde radio artist, is with the band and she will sing several numbers.

Your Theater and Mine :-: By KARL KRUG

GREEN ROOM GLEANINGS

The Alvin will open the third week in August as you will hear when George Tyson returns from a short vacation with his family in Atlantic City . . . Homestead's Matt McHugh, brother of Frank, will appear on the screen again in Universal's musical, "Wake Up and Dream" . . . This is the picture that gives the crooning Russ Columbo, who was a bitter disappointment to Darryl Zanuck, another chance at stardom . . . When Shirley Temple went with her mother to see "Little Miss Marker" she slept through the entire picture! . . . Practically all of those "movie talent hunts" you read about are so much applesauce . . . The State Censor Board has finally passed "Of Human Bondage," but remains mum on the status of "Dr. Monica" . . . Beatrice Saxon, of the singing sister team, is Vincent Lopez' constant companion . . . That revival of "All Quiet on the Western Front" in the Family gives you what will probably be your last opportunity to see the late Louis Wolheim on the screen . . . Wolheim's Captain Flagg of the stage version of "What Price Glory" makes him one of the immortals of the American theater . . . Mickey Mouse will be in the next edition of the Encyclopedia Brittanica.

Lopez is trying to lure that sensational baritone, Perry Como, away from Freddie Carlone's Orchestra, which closed in Kennywood Saturday night . . . First Division will release the product of seven independent producing companies in the Pittsburgh territory next season . . . Speaking of the independents, W. Ray Johnson, president of Monogram, will snub Pittsburgh on a transcontinental tour on which he will visit all other Monogram exchanges . . . Dick Powell's fan mail is said to be getting out of hand . . . It's a small world . . . When Fred Lowry, the blind whistler, visited Byerly Crest the other night, he ran smack into Ruby Heath, one of the singing trio in that spot, whom he hadn't seen since he was her high school classmate back in Austin, Tex. . . . J. Hull Wilson has journeyed East to line up some shows for the St. Mary's Players, of which he is business manager and director . . . I hear that Mae West scans her horoscope every morning and then does as she dern pleases! . . . Henrietta Crosman, old Pittsburgh acting favorite, gets a prominent role in Mary Roberts Rinehart's "The State vs. Elinor Norton" . . . What has become of Bobby Jarvis?

Another note from Jerry Howard tells me that Jimmy Durante has received a Hindu flute from a group of admirers in Calcutta . . . It is played by the nostrils . . . Local acting groups attention: The Pasadena Playhouse has revived "The Virginian" . . . Night club managers will probably thank me for telling them that that blonde gal who represents herself as a newspaper columnist is not . . . She got away with it in the Villa Royal the other night . . . Bing says Dixie gave him the double-Crosby as he announces the twins will not be titled until they are christened . . . Have you noticed the falling off of juicy divorce notes from the film colony since the clean-up drive got under way? . . . Even Johnny and Lupe are reported reconciled . . . Lew Bernstein is telling about a woman patron fainting in a late spot the other sunrise, and a waiter had to hot foot it to a drug store for a glass of water! . . . If Joan Blondell is to play opposite Rudy Vallee in "Sweet Music," for the Warners, it will be sometime before the picture goes into production . . . Despite her success in "Lady For a Day" and other pictures, May Robson still has to ask the Hollywood associate producers for work.

The "extra" girl goes fashion-minded as she chants: "Give a girl an inch and she'll make a dress out of it!"

Film Musical Cast Enlarged

The latest cast additions to the Jerome Kern-Hammerstein II operetta, "Music in the Air," now in preparation at Fox Movietone City, are Roger Imhof and Sarah Haden. Others in the cast, which will be directed by Joe May, include Gloria Swanson, John Boles, Douglas Montgomery, Al Shean, June Lang, Nick Foran, Reginald Owen and Hobart Bosworth.

Career.

THEY'RE burying Billy Montgomery today. They found his body in a vacant lot in Paterson, N. J. He will be buried on charity.

Strange man. Sad career...

It was in 1914. I saw Montgomery and Moore for the first time. They were great vaudeville headliners, one of the truly great acts on the powerful Keith circuit. Salary $1,500 a week. Tremendous for those days.

Moore was Florence Moore. In private life she was Mrs. Billy Montgomery. They had been together as a team for some eight years, rising from burlesque to the heights of musical comedy and vaudeville. As the stars of "Hanky-Panky" in 1912, Montgomery and Moore were one of the ace acts of show business.

If you were a vaudeville fan in those days, you will remember them well. You'll remember Billy's huge fur coat, his nimble piano-playing, and his burlesque dance in oversized shoes. You'll remember Florence Moore as an expert comedienne with a wise delivery that would send her audiences into gales of laughter.

"Why don't you go home?" Miss Moore would ask Montgomery toward the middle of their act.

"I haven't any home," Montgomery would reply.

"Well," his wife would say, "I'll dig you one."

The 1914 audiences thought that hilariously funny. I wonder if Florence thought of those lines the other day when, after being notified that her ex-husband had died a pauper, she offered to pay for the funeral.

No home. She'd have to dig him one...

* * *

1916. Billy Montgomery became a changed man. He had always been a heavy spender, living high, wide and handsome. His wife loved life too. They lived in splendor, demanding the very best in every town they played. Their salary, even when it was up in the four figures, was gone before it arrived.

But now Billy became unreliable. He missed a show here and there, the unpardonable sin in show business. He made important appointments, only to break them at the last moment—if, indeed, he bothered to break them at all. He became moody, irritable, queer.

Florence Moore went to court. Very shortly she was a single woman. Alone, she continued on the stage and has been a star ever since. Alone, Billy Montgomery kept sliding and sliding and sliding.

The man had picked the swiftest chute to hell. Dope...

* * *

1925. Florence Moore was the bright, particular star of the Greenwich Village Follies. She arrived at the theater every evening in her huge limousine.

Next door to the stage entrance to Miss Moore's theater was a little speakeasy. It wasn't a pretentious place. Just a little hideaway that was patronized mostly by the stage hands who worked in the vicinity.

In the center of the speakeasy stood a little piano. At that piano, every night, sat an elderly man with an unhealthy pallor. Twenty dollars a week was this man's salary, plus the coins that people threw him for his playing. And Billy Montgomery was happy to have a job.

It was easy for him to see his former wife. He had but to walk through the dingy hallway into the street. And there, if the doorman permitted, he could gaze through the stage door—and he could hear and see Florence Moore as she sang the songs that brought her $2,000 a week.

He'd go through the ritual almost every night. And then he'd come back to the speakeasy and play the piano madly. And crazily. And wildly...

* * *

1927. A newspaper truck stops on the corner of 43rd street and Seventh avenue. A crowd of men surround the machine and cry loudly for their papers.

It's a peculiar crowd. Newsboys all. Children of 12 and younger. Men of 50 and older. As each man receives his papers he scurries away to his favorite corner and loudly cries his wares. The heat is terrific, but they do not seems to care. Papers mean pennies, and pennies mean bread.

Billy Montgomery is one of those who fight for papers. His hair is iron gray, and he is nervous and very poorly dressed. The sweat rolls down his face.

As he passes me, I speak to him.

"Hot night, Billy," I say.

He doesn't hear me. He's too busy hawking his wares.

"Mirror, News, American," he cries. "Getcha mornin' papers here."

Taxi horns blow. People rush this way and that. Huge auto buses glide by. The noises of the busy city swallow his shrill cry. Fainter and fainter comes his voice.

"Mirror, News, American," cries the voice that once packed theaters. "Mirror, News, American."...

* * *

1929. Billy Montgomery is on the Island again, convicted of the possession of heroin. He writes me and asks for a few dollars for cigarets and things. And in his letter is the almost hopeless cry of the derelict.

"Don't you worry, Mark. I'll come back. As soon as I get out I'll take a reduction cure for the drug habit—and I'll be a new man in no time. Then I'll come back, Mark. You watch. I'll come back stronger than ever."

So, so hopeless...

1933. "Whatever happened to Billy Montgomery?"

"Don't know, Joe. Haven't seen him around in a long time. Just as well though, I guess. The poor bum was dying on his feet."

* * *

1934. They've buried Billy Montgomery. They found his body in a vacant lot in Paterson, N. J. He was buried on charity.

Strange man. Sad career...

Ambitions Of Stars

Hollywood came clean about a few of its suppressed desires today. A poll of "little ambitions" taken in the studios disclosed the following:

Gary Cooper—To play the saxophone, shoot a tiger, beat Bing Crosby at golf.

Carole Lombard—Make a parachute jump, taste poi, see a volcano go "pfft!"

W. C. Fields—Run an elevator.

Mary Boland—Whiz to a fire on a hook-and-ladder.

Charlie Ruggles—Stick out his tongue at hotel clerks, ride a camel up Fifth avenue, belong to a lodge where he could wear a sword.

Cecil B. DeMille—Meet an actor in Hollywood.

Mae West—Thank Horace Greely in person.

Charles Laughton—Touch the floor without bending his knees.

Jack Oakie—Play the oboe, turn backward handsprings.

Bing Crosby—Find a four-leaf clover.

Francis Lederer—Remember where he left his hat.

Joan Bennett—Finish Anthony Adverse.

George Burns—Try solitary confinement.

J. P. McEvoy—Find somebody who will not turn writer on him at a moment's notice.

Roscoe Karns—Grow a long beard.

No Paris Gowns For Fay Wray

Depend on Fay Wray to do things differently! When the Hollywood star went to New York to make Dashiell Hammett's "Woman in the Dark," with Ralph Bellamy and Melvyn Douglas, everybody waited in expectation of hearing that Fay had bought an elaborate wardrobe of new Paris styles for herself in the several smart New York shops which feature importations. Fay, however, fooled them by not buying one Parisian creation. Instead she relied on several costume designers in New York for her new gowns.

"Paris styles are nothing to our own creations," she explained. "I am for sticking to home products."

Alice Faye's Cousin Gets Film Role

Barbara King was assigned a minor role in "365 Nights in Hollywood," which will co-star Alice Faye and James Dunn. Miss King is a cousin of Alice Faye.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

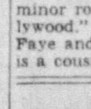
If you feel low-

remember, loss of strength... sleeplessness... nervousness... paleness... lack of appetite... and general run-down condition quite often may be traced directly to low blood strength—that is, the red corpuscles and vital oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood are below normal. S.S.S. is the great, scientifically-tested medicine for restoring this blood content. By all means try it for better health and more happiness. Unless your case is an exception, you should soon enjoy again the pleasure of appetizing food... sleep soundly... feel strong... and regain the pride of clear rosy cheeks.



Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

S.S.S. the world's great blood medicine

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Use Sympathy, Not Rod, To Train Children

Here is a mother who believes thoroughly in the ROD, and a grandmother who opposes it . . .

The mother is indignantly aroused with what she terms her own mother's interference, and writes to me to make the old lady behave . . .

Miss Brunot

Her husband also is a rod user, and naturally he is riled when mother-in-law leans over the division fence and differs with him in the corporal punishment . . . There are six children in this woman's family, and she believes they must be well brought up, and to attain this the whip must hang on the wall, and furthermore be taken down and used. . . .

She has become so disgusted, that she has confided in some of her friends, and all in one accord say grandparents should stay out of the home training of their grandchildren. . .

LIVES TOO NEAR

Of course the trouble lies in the grandmother living too near to her daughter . . . if she were only in another part of the town, she could see neither the whippings nor have her ears disturbed with the sobbings of the child in the throes of his chastisement.

And yet somehow, although I agree with the friends of the parents, that grandmothers should stay out of the training of their grandchildren, I have sympathy for the "old lady," as her daughter calls her . . .

There is something very uncontrolled about a parent who has to resort to the rod . . . Whips usually are taken up in anger . . . there are very few times when they are yielded in just and sincere contemplation . . . It takes the emotion of fury to keep the stick going, and hard enough.

And I do not believe any parent should punish a child when the parent is angry . . .

ROD SAVES TIME

It is no easy matter to train six children in the way they should go . . . And when one also has a house to look after and social obligations to one's friends, it is often an easier way out to have a whip handy . . . It saves a lot of words and much meticulous reasoning . . .

"I'll whip you, Johnny, if you do that again."

And when Johnny still goes on with his misadventure, bringing your threat into action is the simplest way out of the difficulty. Especially if you are strong and need to work out your emotional spleen.

And in the case of the sister writing to me, all this could be accomplished if it weren't for her own mother, looking on, and disapproving.

The old lady must have considerable weight. Maybe she is even winning the grandchildren's real love . . . she may have a jar of cookies handy, and a bottle of ointment with which she rubs the little backs . . . Straight road to the youngsters' regard . . . and it angers the parents.

GET KEY TO HEARTS

Also she may have learned some discipline in her day . . . Perhaps she even has been made aware that to make other people even children really obey, you must have the key to their sacred little hearts . . . And that is never attained by corporal punishment.

And she only wants to bring the light of all this to her own daughter.

So you see, sister, my advice to you is to lay the rod away . . . and learn self control, you and your husband . . . It is a big task you have . . . the responsibility of six human beings. They must be trained to be useful and companionable men and women . . . and will whippings ever do this? . . . Example from you and your husband . . . Love and sympathy . . . These are what these youngsters need.

Also six children is a community within itself . . . Develop this. Give each of the older children a certain responsibility to the younger ones . . . Create a small municipality, and include grandmother . . . And instead of bringing outsiders into your confidence, get the real confidence of your own group . . .

And the day will come when the whip will hang on the wall only as a reminder, instead of a menace . . .

And when such does arrive, give your mother some credit for it . . . She was the real pioneer in doing away with it.

LET HIM GO

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am only 15, and maybe too young to write. About three years ago I met a boy who worked in a store. We did not speak often, but lately have begun speaking regularly. He delivered orders from the store. We went swimming together, and other boys tell me he is clean-cut and wonderful. But I have found out otherwise.

Lately he has been avoiding me. What shall I do? He tells me he loves me and always will, and yet he acts strange. What shall I do? My girl friend says for me to forget him, and she is older than I am.

LITTLE MISS E. S.

Do as your girl friend says, and forget this boy . . . If he did or said something which makes you know he is not the nice fellow people think him, it is all the more reason why you should let him go.

You are very young, and there are so many fine, upstanding young men in every community, that it never proves worthwhile to go with the other kind.

WAIT, MEN: CAN OUR SWEETIES BE WHAT FAY KING WARNS OF?

I THINK A HUSBAND SHOULD BE THE BOSS
I REFUSE TO BE A HOUSEHOLD "SLAVE"
WHEN I MARRIED YOU I THOUGHT YOU WERE A GIRL WHO LOVES A HOME
HIS FRIENDS BORE ME TO TEARS I WON'T HAVE THEM AROUND
BUT SHE MADE A GREAT FUSS OVER HIS FRIENDS BEFORE SHE MARRIED HIM
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Alas, many a young man has been cleverly deceived by the conversational powers and pretended characteristics of the girl he is courting.

Some girls will say that they adore cooking, housekeeping and home-making until they have captured their husbands. Then the poor fellows find themselves living in furnished-room houses and eating in restaurants.

Some girls will pretend to adore children if their young man is fond of youngsters. He marries expecting that he will have a fine family, but finds himself childless by preference.

Some girls will infer that a husband should be boss, that he should have freedom, and the men who marry them think they have found exceptional wives, only to be run and ruled even more than other husbands.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Guaranteeing the Contract

Today's hand is one in which an outsider who did not know much about the game would certainly have accused the Declarer of peeking. South made a play which enabled him to fulfill his contract with two overtricks, whereas had he adopted another line of play, which would have seemed more normal, the contract could very well have been defeated. Expert analysis, however, would show definitely that South's play was correct and one that any good player would make without having had the slightest peek.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 5 ♡ Q 8 2 ◇ A 10 6 3 ♣ K 3 2
♠ J 8 ♡ A 9 6 4 3 ◇ K 9 ♣ J 6 5 4	North West East South	♠ 10 9 7 4 3 2 ♡ K 5 ◇ J 8 7 4 ♣ 7
	♠ K 6 ♡ J 10 7 ◇ Q 5 2 ♣ A Q 10 9 8

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇ (1)	Pass	2 N T (2)	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The only possible bid on the North hand. It is too weak for a vulnerable notrump.

2—A bad response. South was one of those players with a bad notrump complex. Obviously, the more normal and correct response would be two clubs.

Against the final contract of three notrump, with South as the Declarer, West opened the heart 4. East won the trick with the King and returned the five-spot. West quite properly decided to hold up his Ace on this trick, as if his partner had a card of re-entry he wanted to leave him with another heart if he actually had three to start with. Even though East held originally only two cards in the heart suit, West knew he could not lose by not playing the Ace of hearts as South had one trick in the suit anyway and it mattered little whether it was won earlier or later in the play. West attempted to deceive South as to the length of his heart suit by playing the six, not the three, on the second trick.

After South won the second trick with the Ten of hearts, he took a rapid inventory. He realized that he had three spade tricks, a diamond trick and a heart trick, and if he could win four club tricks without letting West in, the contract would be insured. To the third trick he laid down the Ace of clubs to possibly drop a blank Jack, and then led the Ten of clubs, and when West played low South played a low card from Dummy.

Admittedly, since West was long in hearts it did seem unlikely that he would also be long in clubs, but South's safety play absolutely guaranteed the winning of the contract. If East won the second round of the clubs with the Jack, four club tricks would be set up for North and South, and the East player would either have no hearts to return to enable West to run the suit, or if he had a heart, the suit would break 4-3, in which case only four tricks could be lost in all—three hearts and one club.

The way the cards lay, South's eight of clubs held the trick. He unblocked the club suit by playing the King, and returned to his own hand with the King of spades. He cashed his two good clubs, discarding diamonds from Dummy, and then ran his other two spade tricks. At this point South had already won nine tricks, and so he was able to risk throwing West in with the Queen of hearts for an end-play. The end-play worked as West had been forced to bare down to the lone Ace of hearts and the King and nine of diamonds. After winning the Ace of hearts West was forced to lead away from his King of diamonds, and South won the trick with the Queen and the last trick with the diamond Ace.

A well played hand, indeed.

Tomorrow's Hand

DOG PATTERN 601

This cuddly dog with the curly ears and tail—whether you are convinced that he is a Pekinese or a Poodle—makes as charming a mascot as he does a toy. Though he looks amazingly well done in dots, he is equally droll in stripes, plaids, or any figured material. He is 14 inches long when finished—just the size to be cuddled comfortably under the arm. His tail—quite the feature of his appearance—does indeed stand up just as perkily as shown, for that is the way it is constructed.

Pattern 601 comes to you with a pattern for the dog and full directions and yardage requirements for making it.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Stepping out for autumn will be smart suede shoes. An advance pair is of brown suede with narrow bandings of bronze kidskin. Heel and appliques at the side are of bronze kidskin.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Electrical Accidents in Home

Several years ago the American Society of Safety Engineers organized a committee to study the everyday dangers of electrical fixtures in the home. Careful investigation revealed that many of the accidents reported throughout the country could have been prevented. They would not be so common if more persons were familiar with the dangers of improper handling of electrical appliances.

Dr. Copeland

Of all the accidents reported, electrical shock in the bathroom was found to be the most common. This is a serious accident and often proves fatal. As a rule it is caused by reaching for an electric light or switch while standing in the bathtub.

A wet body and moist fingers coming in contact with a defective switch or fixture, allows the current to pass through the body. Since the current is usually of at least 110 volts it may be sufficient to cause severe damage to the heart. The current sends the heart into rapid vibrations, interfering with its normal action. If this occurs to an elderly individual or the sufferer from chronic heart disease, the shock may be sufficient to cause instantaneous death.

Never reach for or touch an electrical outlet while the body or hands are moist. If the body is dry, contact with an electric current is not as dangerous. It is true a severe burn may result, but death rarely results.

Even outside the bathroom the same sort of accident may occur. When washing clothes or dishes never try to adjust a bulb or lamp. Always dry your hands and, to be on the safe side, turn off the current. Even if not using water remember that on a hot day your hands may be perspiring and sufficiently moist to permit an electrical shock.

All electrical appliances, such as heaters, electric fans, curling irons, lamps and heating pads, should be periodically inspected. Loose connections or worn wires should be replaced with new ones. Unless you are familiar with electric wiring do not attempt to repair electrical appliances. When in doubt turn off the main current and have the appliance examined by an electrician.

Loose fixtures, inadequate wiring and poorly insulated electric outlets, are a menace to the household. They may lead to fire. But the greatest danger is that of accidental electrocution.

Safeguard your home and family by rigid inspection of all wirings in the house. Warn all members of the household of the danger of permitting a moist body to come in contact with an electrical current.

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Arrive at Hiding Place

At my father's command to make haste in getting the blankets, pillows and empty suitcases which Hank had suggested as camouflage for the Chinese whom we expected to bring back with us from the woodland glade, the boy wheeled so quickly that he stumbled and fell flat on his face.

"Oh!" I exclaimed. "Did—" But my father's hand tightened warningly upon mine, and I left the query as to the lad's possible injury unasked. The next instant Hank was up again and running toward the other car, and I was glad that I had not added to the chagrin which had sent a brick-red flush around to the back of his neck, by asking if he had hurt himself.

He dashed up to the other car and muttered a few hasty words, then Bill, Ron and Bob tumbled out and raced with him to the house. They must have found Lillian immediately, for they were back with their booty in such record-breaking time as she only could engineer.

At a quiet word from my father, Otto climbed down, leaving his engine running, threw open the door, and then looked with dismay at the load of things the boys were carrying.

EXPEDITION STARTS

"All those things can never go in here," he said, startled for once out of his machine-like demeanor. "Where will you put your feet?"

"That is a problem for you to figure out," my father said nonchalantly, but with a touch of firmness. "They must be carried in here, and my daughter and I will rest our feet on top of them. You can arrange them, I am sure."

Otto looked extremely dubious, but he was too well trained a servant to make any further protest.

He fell to work immediately, and to such good purpose that in two minutes the empty suitcases, blankets and pillows were piled so compactly in the wide space in front of us that we had plenty of room for our feet.

The four boys, who eagerly and unobtrusively had stood by the car handing the things to Otto, turned and sprinted for their respective places as soon as the last article was in place. Hank climbed to the seat beside Otto and the others took their places in the other car, which we had commandeered from the Chinese. My father then gave Otto the signal to go ahead and we swept out of the driveway, closely followed by the lighter car.

My father had told Otto not to speed, because he wished to do nothing that would attract attention on the road. But the distance was so short that, despite the moderate pace, we were there in what seemed to be an incredibly short time.

Hank spoke to Otto when we were within a few rods of the opening to the winding road, and the chauffeur drew his car to the side of the road. The other car went past us without stopping and turned into the opening, but we saw that Bob was kneeling on the rear seat looking out of the rear window, and that Ronald, seated beside Bill, was keeping a similar lookout ahead.

My father turned his head and gave a quick look at the road behind.

NOTHING IN SIGHT

"Not a car in sight, nor anything else," he said. "They did the right thing in driving right in. But before we try it, we must know how far in the others are."

He turned to the tube near him and spoke to Otto.

"Ask Mr. Henry to come back here a minute," he said, and in a trice Hank was out of the front door and was opening the rear one.

"Yes, sir. What is it, sir?" he asked with all the effect of a salute.

"We'll wait here while you go and make a report," he said. "Tell the boys to get the car turned around facing this way before they start looking for the Chinese. Don't show either yourselves or the car in the open space. Divide your party, two going one way, and two the other, through the underbrush, circling the glade until you come upon the place where the men are bound.

"If everything is all right, send your fleetest man back here. Then we'll drive in, and Otto can go down and help you get the Chinese into the car. You'll need all the muscle available. That's all. I don't think I need to tell you to hurry."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bride's Note of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been married since last October and have just received a present from my husband's aunt down in Panama. As I have never met this relative, I would like to write a letter introducing myself and thanking her for the gift. I am at a loss to know how to word such a letter, so I am asking your help.

L.

To this kind aunt of your husband's you might write:

Dear Mrs. Graham,

It was such a special pleasure to hear from you, and to have you send us such a generous thought and such a beautiful gift for our wedding present. Jack has told me so often of you, of his great devotion to you, and of his wish that we might meet soon. I have come to love you, through his delightful interpretation of you. I almost wrote "Dear Aunt Mary" at the heading of this letter, for that is the way we always speak of you . . . maybe sometime you will give me, that privilage, will you?

When I saw the Panama postmark on your package I was thrilled at the thought of hearing from you, and when I opened the package, I was enchanted at the beautiful vase. It has the place of honor in our living-room, and just this minute is delightfully holding some yellow roses. It is lovely, Mrs. Graham, and Jack and I are deeply proud of owning it. We both thank you, with all our hearts, for your goodness to us and for your wonderfully friendly thought.

Please do plan to come north soon, and plan to stay with us as our guest in our new home. The latch-string will always be out for you, most welcomingly and hospitably.

Dearest love from Jack and me, and again our deepest thanks.

Make This at Home

It Makes a Hit With Mother and Daughter

Pattern 1824

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

Any little lady will love this frock—it is so very lady-like. Look at the paneled front—isn't it exactly the sort of thing grown-ups wear—and the puffed sleeves—and the ruffled neck? Everyone of these things will make a hit with Mary-Elizabeth. The thing which will appeal to her mother is of quite a different sort—the innate simplicity and girlishness of the whole chic little affair. And the fact that it is easy to make will not count against it. It is nice in a printed fabric—cotton or challis.

Pattern 1824 is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 6 takes 1¾ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

And while you are writing, why not include an order for a fascinating book, crammed from cover to cover with stunning illustrations and captivating descriptions of new fashions, fabrics and other things that make a woman chic . . . Children's Program Presented Today

Dr. Stanley T. Brooks, of the Carnegie Museum, continues his talks on parasites and how they work—some for the good of mankind, in the museum's educational series from WCAE at 6 o'clock.

At 4:45, the Sun-Telegraph Family is broadcast, and at 5:30, the children get another treat in the dramatization of the latest events in "Serial of Eight," which deals with Pirates in the South Seas.

At 7:15 the Pittsburghers specialize in special arrangements of popular and semi-classical numbers.

Jazz Tunes Irritate Terhune

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE
Famous Author and Authority on Dogs. Finds Inviting Foe Articulate.

I date back to the revered vagus days of radio. Days when we didn't know whether it was the A batteries or the B batteries that had gone wrong. Days when the slumber hour endured for 60 sweet minutes, days when the long-dead phrase, "please stand by for your station announcement!" was shinily new.

Yes, and I heard radio's first recording of non-canned grand opera, from Chicago, the night when one of the Civic Opera's bankers made such a long speech that the opera—"Faust"—was held up till midnight or so. (At that, the recording seemed a miracle.)

Nearly nine years ago our first radio was installed, here at Sunnybank. With no vast enthusiasm I watched its assembling. I was glumly certain I never should be able to work the complex thing, and I was not at all sure I cared to.

Every now and then, after nine years as an avid addict, the impossibly miraculous element hits me and hits me hard.

MASTER'S VOICE

Yes, I date back to the far-off radio days when I was left in doubt as to whether I was listening to Strauss' "Elektra" or merely to static.

I date back to the dark ages when it was considered something of a compliment to ash a bush league celebrity to talk over the air for no payment at all.

I had a 15-minute interview stooged by Phil Carlin, over WEAF. The wretched performance began at 8 p. m. My wife sat in front of the living room fireplace at Sunnybank, to hear the worst. At her feet sprawled two of the house collies. In her lap snored her temperamental gray Persian cat.

But she missed Mr. Terhune the first half of my dreary talk. For at the sound of my voice the two dogs and the cat went into action. They who never took the trouble to listen to the radio's various stunts. All over the lower floor they raced, the dogs barking and howling in crazy excitement. Presently they located the sound. They realized their more or less loved master was hidden in that mahogany box and that he was saying things. So they charged the radio. Almost they had rent it asunder before they could be driven outdoors.

Night after night, from six or more successive stations comes the mosquito whine of Jazz. Now, I am not kicking against Jazz. It must have its uses; or God would not let the foul pest endure long.

But—if a jazzomaniac should twiddle the knob to six successive stations, and if he should be greeted at each of them by a rendition of Handel's "Messiah" or by Beethoven's Fifth—well, can you guess what a screech of protest he would launch to the press how he would launch to the press, how he builders who had forced radio to go highbrow.

He would all but stand upon his constitutional rights. He would put on enough pressure to make changes.

How about the rest of us?

Suppose you go to a restaurant and glance over the card. Suppose you find "boiled eggs." "Eggs a la creole," "Eggs Jeannette," "stuffed eggs,"—eggs in six different forms, and at that hour of the day no other kind of food. How often would you infest that hash-palace?

Globe Trotter

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

Now that we have Good Samaritan Day and have distributed thousands of watermelons to the various institutions in Pittsburgh and vicinity it becomes obvious that we ought to know something about the watermelon as a fruit.

Leo G. Altmayer, known for 15 years as the "watermelon king" and now as "Good Samaritan No. 1," reveals that a 45-pound watermelon has 1,016 seeds and contains 43 pounds of water, and is good for the children as well as the grown-ups.

In spite of what Emily Post may say, Mr. Altmayer, who by this time can be considered the authority for anything that has to do with melons, says that the proper way to eat them is to cut them in smiling eighths and dive in teeth first and then "squinch" out the seeds.

* * *

Boake Carter, who wrote Allentown's column last Saturday, was wondering what the attitude of the Federal Communications Commission members would be on free speech.

He said it is a little early to predict, but that the old Federal Radio Commission was miserably fair in the question of free speech.

The new law provides that a sub-committee of two members and the chairman administer the control of broadcasting.

More Women Are Using the LAYAWAY PLAN
In Buying August Sale Coats

Budgeteers—women who want to spend "little at a time"—more women than ever before are using the Layaway plan to buy Furred Cloth Coats and Fur Coats in the August Sales.

WHAT THE PLAN IS:

Simply select your coat. Pay a moderate deposit (10%) and we will hold it for you till October 1. Pay the remainder when you take out your coat in October—or in small payments before, while we keep it for you. When the first cold day comes, it will be paid for—ready to wear!

If you have a charge account, we may prefer deferred payments after you receive your coat. These may also be arranged.

52 HURT AS RUNAWAY PICNIC BUS UPSETS

NEW YORK Day by Day

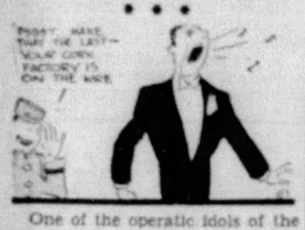
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 30.—Diary: Up and out, coming upon Morris Gest who walked with me to David Belasco's office and presented a trophy from D. B.'s desk. So picking up Tommy Millard, from Shanghai, and to breakfast at a club, but a fellow, flown with wine, so annoying we could not enjoy the food.

The late afternoon Dick Berlin came by, having been to London since I saw him three weeks ago. And later Roscoe Peacock, too, and Frazier Hunt, who told of the fun with Tex Austin's cowboys in London and how he is setting off for his Canada ranch to write of the Prince of Wales.

To dinner with Billy and Phyllis Seeman, the Paul Whitemans there, and Joe Cook and Harold Ross. And we sat about telling of youthful pranks in the whistle stops. Home after the clock struck 12 and the dog with his face to the wall pouting over our absence.

• • •



One of the operatic idols of the season was Bernardo de Muro, whose singing at the only so-so Hippodrome song-fest this summer stirred music lovers. He was long a star at La Scala, but little known to American audiences until his appearance here. Unlike most of his temperamental guild he is a successful businessman with a large cork factory at Milan. His wife is an American. O, yes, he's a monoclist.

* * *

Most dramatic critics—several have country establishments—are resting on their oars this summer and allowing second string reviewers to attend to the Rialto's scattered chores. Gilbert Gabriel, Brooks Atkinson and Burnes Mantle are finishing up novels. John Anderson and John Mason Brown are filling lecture engagements. Bernard Sobel is seeing if there's anything left in Europe to tick, and the drama dean, Percy Hammond, is catching up with his veranda rocking at East Hampton.

* * *

There is specious reasoning as to what would happen to critics, regarded by many as holding newspapers' sweetest berths, in case of complete collapse of the theater. Most are fairly well established as magazine and novel writers along with lecturing and, in case of enforced exodus, could triple their output. Those who haven't such outlets are financially secure. Dramatic critics are signally and proverbially abstemious and thrifty. Anyway, they shrug at the wolf cry. It has been dinning their ears for four years.

Personal nomination for journalism's most thorough cosmopolite—Karl K. Kitchen.

The most carefully selected traffic cops in New York are those stationed along Fifth avenue from Washington square to 110th. They gave the entire force the sobriquet "the finest." They are not only hand-picked for their physique, but facial contour, charm of voice and neatness. All have the build of heavyweights. In better days, Christmas offerings more than doubled their yearly salaries. But last year most of them got only handkerchiefs, ties and orders for hats and shoes. The next most desirable of the Adonis posts in copdom are the mounted men in Central Park. They often marry heiresses.

From an essay on eating: "Writers invariably love meat and vegetables and are haters of sweets and all desserts."

Yeah? Come up to dinner some time and see me have an affair with a floating island.

WITHEROW SET FOR NEW NRA DUTIES

Code Simplifications Seen as Policy of 'Economic Cabinet'

W. P. Witherow, Pittsburgh civic and industrial leader, was planning today to begin his new duties as a member of the National Recovery Administration's Industrial Advisory Board.

Mr. Witherow

Witherow was selected by Secretary of Commerce Roper as one of the five resident directors of the "economic cabinet" which will direct the NRA toward a permanent recovery program, aiming to bring together the interests of labor, industry and consumers.

The Pittsburgher was also appointed to the National Advisory Council, which is under Roper's direction. The council will have nine members, three each from labor, industry and consumers' interests.

The appointment, announced yesterday, was made 10 days ago.

WITHEROW HERE

In a brief visit here yesterday, Witherow said:

"One thing is clear now. All the various groups want a program. It remains to be seen if the board can develop a comprehensive plan, meeting in a charitable, understanding and reasonable frame of mind, and face all of the multiform and complex problems which have grown out of the operation of the codes."

The necessity for continuance of minimum-wage, maximum-hour and child-labor sections of the codes, is generally conceded by industry, he added.

The changes of the past few weeks in the NRA set-up, which led to the naming of the resident directors of the Industrial Advisory Board as a kind of "executive committee," indicate a move to give industry a more prominent part in NRA activities. Hitherto, industry has been behind the labor and consumer groups, both of which have seemed to grasp the advantages of the NRA more quickly than many branches of industry.

GEN. JOHNSON TO QUIT

Also indicated in the changes is the coming resignation of Gen. Hugh Johnson, which in turn foreshadows the likelihood that NRA control in the future will be exercised by President Roosevelt directly through the Department of Comerce.

Operation of the Industrial Advisory Board, which is composed of 21 nationally known business leaders, has been constrained in the past by the inability of members to give the Board's affairs sufficient attention. Appointment of the executive group will give industry full-time representation in Washington, similar to that already enjoyed by consumers and labor.

Witherow refused to speculate upon the policies which may govern the new program. He nevertheless agreed that the tendency would probably be toward simplification of the codes.

SAMARITAN DAY LAUNCHED HERE

"Good Samaritan Day" is now a national institution.

The inaugural celebration of the day, which Leo G. Altmayer, Pittsburgh's "watermelon king," had proposed to encourage kindly acts by people throughout the country toward their less fortunate neighbors, was held at Leech Farm yesterday.

Among the men, women and children who joined in the program of music, speeches and other entertainments, were former Mayor John S. Herron, former Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, the Rev. Carl A. Voss, pastor of the Smithfield German Evangelical Protestant Church, and Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, of New York.

Mayor William N. McNair, in attendance throughout the ceremonies, commended Altmayer and spoke favorably of his idea.

MERRY CROWD HURLED INTO FIELD

Driver Held, Blames 'Old Break' in Spring; Probe Started

Twenty-six of 52 picnic riders injured when a truck in which they were riding overturned one mile south of New Texas on the New Texas road near New Kensington, were in the Citizens General Hospital today.

The accident occurred yesterday afternoon when members of the St. John's Greek Catholic Orthodox Church, of East Pittsburgh, were en route to a picnic at Center Beach, Benton. They had been invited by Benton parishioners. The majority injured were members of the choir and were to give a concert.

The first intimation of danger to the merry party was when the truck started to careen going down a slight grade. It then swerved to the right, barely missing a guard rail, and then swerved to the left, turning over on a five-foot embankment. The occupants were scattered on the road and into the field.

AMBULANCES CALLED

Witnesses called the Unity telephone operator, who notified Fire Chief Edward Clausen at New Kensington. Clausen sent Capt. Walter Bartlick and Fireman Walter Gier to the scene with the fire company's emergency wagon.

Arriving at the scene, they placed calls to New Kensington, Arnold, East Deer Township and Oakmont for ambulances, and started to administer first aid.

The firemen, assisted by John Pazey, 24, of Whitaker, the choir leader, who was riding beside the driver and who only suffered scratches and bruises, moved some of the injured from the road to the Malley farm. The ambulances removed them to the hospital.

According to the Rev. J. N. Kozakevich, who was following the picnickers in another machine but was too far behind to see the accident, they left East Pittsburgh at 2:45 o'clock for the picnic. The accident occurred almost an hour later. The truck was owned by the Valley Transfer Company, of East Pittsburgh.

DRIVER HELD

New Kensington police detained Jacob H. Jessup, 48, driver, of 304 Bush street, East Pittsburgh. He suffered slight laceration of the arm and leg. He was later turned over to Patrolman T. D. Gillespie, of the state highway patrol. He will be detained pending an investigation.

According to Jessup, as the truck reached the top of a hill the accelerator stuck for an instant, speeding the truck to about 30 miles an hour. It then started to swerve, causing him to lose control, he said. A hurried investigation revealed a broken front spring which was apparently an old break due to the presence of crystalization, he reported. This could have caused the swerving, Jessup held.

At the hospital, the entire staff was summoned immediately, and upon arrival of ambulances, the critically injured were rushed to operating rooms.

CONDITION SERIOUUS

MUSKOSKI, ANNA, 14, 219 Galloway avenue, East Pittsburgh; fracture and laceration of the right leg.

GEZZER, KATHERINE, Pennsylvania avenue extension, East Pittsburgh; possible skull fracture.

KENDRICH, ANASTASIA, 15, 1809 Murdock avenue, North Braddock; skull fracture.

HOURS GRANTED FOR INVENTORY

James H. Greene, secretary of the Retail Code Authority of Pittsburgh, today made public a ruling by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, regarding inventories.

Under the ruling, code provisions as to consecutive hours of employment may be suspended to the extent that employes especially skilled in inventory may work any number of hours or any days in the week or weeks selected as as "peak-period weeks," provided the maximum weekly employe hours be not exceeded.

In event the maximum daily hours are exceeded, the worker is to be paid time and a half for overtime.

The week in which the inventory is taken is considered a peak-period week even though the inventory period covers only one or two days.

Navy 'Lung' Victim Former Pittsburgher

J. R. Griffin, 24, United States Navy fireman, who died when he lost his "escape lung" Friday in the Naval submarine base training tank at New London, Conn., was a former Pittsburgher.

He was a resident here until a year ago, being born in the Fifth Ward. His father was a postal worker and until last year resided at 7313 Bennett street, Homewood. The family moved to San Diego, Cal., that it might be near the naval base there.

Inmate at Mayview Dies; Seek Relatives

Morgue officials today sought to locate relatives of John Bauer 70, an inmate of Mayview Hospital, who died of a heart attack after he was stricken ill Saturday. His home address was unknown.

WOMAN FLEES HOSPITAL

Held for observation after she had received treatment at Passavant Hospital, Magnolia Banks, 39, Negro, of 834 Bryn Mawr road, fled from the hospital last night and walked to her home in her stocking feet, police reported.

The patient had swallowed poison in her home, police said, and was rushed to the hospital. She was being wheeled to an elevator when she arose from her cot and escaped doctors and nurses.

She was later arrested in her home on a disorderly conduct charge, police said.

Homestead Swimmer Hits Head In Pool

Charles Malishako, 15, of 436 Cherry way, Homestead, was recovering today from injuries of the head received when he dived into the West street pool of the Monongahela River, Homestead, yesterday. He was taken to Homestead Hospital for treatment.

Bullet Explodes, Hurts Boy's Finger

Fred Kohler, 16, of Altaview street, was recovering today from slight injuries received when a cartridge he had found near his home exploded. Dr. N. E. Green, of 32 Wabash avenue, reported that the boy suffered a punctured finger.

2 Girls in Parked Auto Injured by Hit-Runner

An alleged hit-and-run driver was being held today as the result of an accident in which two girls, sitting in a parked car on Ardmore boulevard, Wilkinsburg, were injured yesterday.

The victims were Margaret Mitchell, 18, of 2032 Tustin street, and Ada Arris, 18, 2036 Forbes street. They suffered injured ribs. Wilkinsburg police arrested William Bing, 62, of 423 Braddock road, Braddock Township, when they recovered a damaged license plate near the scene.

Both girls were sitting in the rumble seat of a car owned by Ernest Walkney, 7441 Finance street, police said.

Joseph Orlando, 18-year-old newsboy, of 44 Carver street, was injured last night when struck by an auto driven by Ralph Exler, 22, of 5125½ Holmes street, at Penn avenue and Euclid street, police said. After treatment at Pittsburgh Hospital, Orlando was sent home.

A youth and a girl were taken to Pittsburgh Hospital after their auto collided with another car at Penn avenue and Beechwood boulevard last night. Elmer J. Knaus, 19, of 1026 East Ohio street, suffered a forehead injury, and Olga Zupan, 17, 924 Spring Garden avenue, a companion, a nose injury.

Said to have run in front of an automobile at East Ohio and Nash streets last night, five-year-old Ruth Guiste, of 835 Guckert way, North Side, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital in a critical condition. She is suffering from a possible skull fracture and broken right leg.

N. H. Woltz, 63, of 139 Clearview avenue, Crafton, alleged driver of the car, was held without bond at North Side Police Station.

Betty Hessinger, 13, of 2106 Sarah street, was taken to South Side Hospital last night with a broken collarbone received when an auto, in which she was riding, collided with a Carrick street car at South Eighteenth and Mary streets.

Edward J. Knight, 30, of 715 Loretta street, and William Ruble, 35, of 1033 Mirror street, were injured when Knight's car struck a parked auto on Forward avenue, near Murray avenue. They were treated at Pittsburgh Hospital.

A six-year-old boy was seriously injured when he ran in front of an auto driven by Carmine Mercurio, 22, of Demmer avenue, Forest Hills, in Lenhart road, Churchill Borough.

The victim, Louis Orosz, 1303 Grant avenue, North Braddock, was taken to Columbia Hospital with a fractured backbone and possible skull injury. Mildred Lagorga, 22, of 318 State street, Wilmerding, riding with Mercurio, was slightly injured. Mercurio was arrested on a reckless driving charge by county detectives.

Knifed Leaving Park, Blame 'Peeping Tom'

Slashed by a Negro, believed to be a "Peeping Tom," as he was leaving Herron Hill Park last night, Andy Malock, 22, of 3396 Ridgeway street, was taken to Passavant Hospital, where six stitches were required to close a wound in his right arm.

Malock had just left some friends when his assailant stepped from behind a bush with a razor. The Negro escaped.

Hawaiians Want To Be 49th State To Get Millions

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The President's visit to Hawaii is a reminder that the Islands want to be the forty-ninth state.

It might be interesting. We never had a state made up of islands before. The closest to it is New York which is attached to the administration by a narrow peninsula of patronage.

If Hawaii got in, then Alaska would want to make it an even fifty. That's all right too. The surest way of simplifying bookkeeping is to increase the expenses.

How about the Philippines, Porto Rico and the Isle of Yap? The Republicans might like that for the novelty.

Let Hawaii in, if only to find out if its two Senators will demand ten million dollars to deepen the Pacific ocean.

* * *

A good way to keep the youngsters quiet, cool, and calm on the hottest days! Give them something to amuse them . . . an "airflow" car! (Flying high, eh what?) But anyway. . .

We mean it! A red or green airflow car that winds up and really, truly runs. . . silently on balloon tires. A grand automobile for young eyes to watch whilst young tummies are stretched out quietly (for the moment!) on the floor. Besides . . . it has lights, too . . . that work when you put in a 10c-or-so battery. Another item of interest, and all for $1.00.

* * *

Now to get personal . . . gather 'round, irls, and come into the other room with us while we relate the latest. That one of the stores has turned super-considerate . . . hyper-delicate . . . extra-thoughtful of our feminine feelings (that have been dragged out and aired about so often more's the pity).

They have opened a woman's department in connection with their toilet goods. An idea that deserves enough orchids to make us wish we were a lady Winchell! A department presided over by a mature, understanding woman whose suggestions and recommendations have been wonderful help to hundreds of us. To tell the truth, we never realized how nice it could be . . . going to someone as woman-to-woman on personal matters where a bit of a suggestion can go such a long way toward smoothing out sometime troublous questions. Incidentally, there are some free booklets that feminine eyes will greet . . . yours for the asking.

* * *

Little man what now! Put one of the Babe Ruth caps on your che-ild and he'll feel big-league for once in his young life! These are navy wool caps (very lightweight) with "Babe Ruth" embroidered across the front of them in white. 25c . . . a clearance price, so hurry.

* * *

If, like Br'er Rabbit of Uncle Remus fame, you like your "loungin' aroun' " . . . then choose one of these lounge chairs that are going-going-gone these sale-y days for $19.75. Because, people, they're prizes at such a price.

Luxuriously upholstered in linen-like fabrics or rough ones that withstand wear far better than some of the more la-de-da types. In good shades . . . AND . . . with separate seat and back cushion. For bedrooms, living rooms libraries.

Miss Feldman Weds In Home of Mother

Miss Ethel Feldman, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Feldman Zweig, of Hobart street, and Abben Simon, of Knoxville, were married last evening at 7 o'clock in the home of the bride's mother by Rabbi J. L. Altert.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Isadore Werber, wore a white summer suit, and a small white hat with a veil. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant, Mrs. Hyman Klein, was in red with black accessories. Mr. Klein was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon will be at home in Murray avenue, Squirrel Hill.

WISPS FOR INFORMAL EVENING DATES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE SIMPLE, dressy gown to wear at home when entertaining by dark is the order of the revels, is something that no woman should be without. Hot nights one never knows what the end of a dinner party may bring—ideas for cooling off come as late inspirations and may lead to roof dancing, a road house or country club visit, or a hectic call on someone lucky enough to have a larger, cooler terrace.

* * *

BOTH LACE and chiffon are excellent bets for frocks of this comfortable, adventurous type. Evening damp does not make them swoon; sitting about in deep chairs with a dripping, cool drink in the hand does not make them wrinkle and spoil beyond easy repair, and there is no end to the variety of style one can find in them.

* * *

BESIDES THEIR use at home, women will find that such frocks pack beautifully, and are just the thing for the Saturday night party away from home, or for dinner on cruise ships. Inexpensive models are as common as pebbles on the seashore, and a nice taste in accessories for them will transform them into individual costumes. Often a girdle or sash of accenting dark velvet will turn this individual trick; charming sandals or effective jewelry are other tips.

Note the slenderizing manipulation of the print design in this misty gray chiffon with its pattern of tiny pink and blue flowers. The bustle peplum is amusing, and the jabot down the back decollete is good for too plump or too thin backs.

Pale pink is a lovely complement for tanned skins. The gown sketched center is dawn silk net with closet tucks through the skirt to fit it, and a tucked border around the bodice top. Right, sapphire blue lace is used for a model of Spanish feeling with a ruffled skirt and an upstanding flange around the bateau neckline. The back of the model is cut very low.

Greetings, Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen!

Today, right with this very column, we are going to launch a special summer membership drive. We want each member of the Junior Birdmen organization to aid in securing new members!

In spite of the warm weather we are going to leave the tail wind behind us and do some real flying. We want some real live-wire activity from now up until the time school starts.

Individual members, Flight Squadron members, boys and girls from Altoona, Pa., to Central, O., and from Erie, Pa., into West Virginia all are going to help to double our membership by the first of September. We have one month to do it—and we can!

Join or Orangize A Flight Squadron

We are going to start off by asking every member to either join a Flight Squadron Unit in their town or neighborhood, or organize one of their own.

If you have any difficulty Uncle Sam's postal service will bring me a penny postcard overnight and I will help you secure the seven other boys and girls you require to start a unit where you live.

Every member a Flight Squadron Member! That's our new special summer drive slogan. And, of course, our object, in addition to have you become associated with one of these units or build one of your own, remember, is to double our membership by September first.

There's your neighborhood friends, your school chums, your pals and associates—boys and girls both, they are all anxious to join an organization that continually fosters activities and presents features such as only the Junior Birdmen does.

Tell them about it. Show them the daily column and news stories of the Junior Birdmen in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. And see just how quickly they will send in that membership application for their wings.

I have had many requests from Flight Squadron Units to attend their meetings and talk to the boys and girls. I would like to visit each one. But this, of course, is quite impossible.

Yet, I am willing to give up my time, evenings and week-ends, to talk to you before your meetings if you are willing to do something, too. Just this:

I will pay a visit to each and every Flight Squadron in or near Pittsburgh that doubles its membership! Go out and get new recruits. Have them join the Junior Birdmen and then affiliate them with your unit. When you have doubled your present Flight Squadron membership, I will arrange with your Flight Squadron Commander to be present at your very next meeting.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock we will hold our first big outdoor meeting. A program that you won't soon forget will be presented for your entertainment, so don't miss it!

HAPPY LANDINGS!

LOUISVILLE ENTRANT'S 72 LEADS IN PUBLIC LINKS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Hunch Supports Ferrera • Greenberg Aids Detroit
Big Year for California | Yanks May Survive Loss
Must Beat Classy Field | Referees Have Hard Lot

Will California's impressive parade of sports champions for 1934 pick up another addition in the big tournament for the nation's public links golf title, opened today on the South Park course? Rival entrants seeking to unseat Charley Ferrera, the defending champion, who captured the title at St. Paul, Minn., in 1931, and at Portland, Ore., in 1933, are basing their hopes partly on the fact that of all the previous crown-wearers only Carl Kauffmann, local star was able to bag the honors in two consecutive years. Kauffmann did it three times in a row. Nobody else ever succeeded in repeating once, and Ferrara's competitors figure that in their efforts to dethrone the reigning king they will have an ally in tradition.

Charley Ferrera

But it might be well to remember that Ferrera hails from San Francisco and that beating Californians in any sport this year has been quite some job. Championships have shown an unprecedented trend toward the Golden State. Two of the major golf titles already have been taken there by Olin Dutra in the United States open and Lawson Little in the British amateur. Figure in the championship victories of Max Baer in the prize ring, Stanford in track and field, University of California on the water at Poughkeepsie, Lester Stoefen and Gene Mako in tennis, besides a flock of other achievements, and it will be seen that it is an exceptional bit of news when a title gets away from California this year. And there are 27 other Californians to be reckoned with if Ferrera falls down. However, the class of the field from this and other sectors opposing the far westerners at South Park also is unusually high, and California probably will be harder pressed to keep up its streak in this tourney than in any other competition of the year.

GREENBERG'S IMPROVEMENT AIDS TIGERS

The development of the Detroit club into an American League pennant contender this year has been credited to various factors. One item generally overlooked, but which has had considerable to do with it, is the improvement in First Baseman Hank Greenberg. That big youngster has come forward impressively in both hitting and fielding. There never was much wrong with his hitting, but at that he is better with the stick than in 1933, and his fielding brace has been remarkable. Greenberg was probably the weakest fielder among the American League first sackers last season, but today his defensive work is about as good as you will see.

Hank smote the ball so hard in 1933 as to make 75 extra bases on 135 hits, but he is a much harder hitter this year. Detroit fans insist that the American League's slugging Big Three is now the Big Four, and that Greenberg must be ranked right up with Foxx, Gehrig and Ruth.

LOSS OF COMBS MAY NOT STOP YANKEES

While the Yankee machine admittedly lost a valuable cog when severe injuries put Earl Combs out of the game for the remainder of the season, if not for all time, Joe McCarthy's club is not without a chance to come through for the pennant. Other teams have won out under similar handicaps. The Braves went on to make the first four-game sweep of a World Series in 1914 after losing Third Baseman Red Smith on account of a broken leg at the end of the regular season. The Indians took the pennant and World Series in 1920 after Shortstop Ray Chapman was fatally injured by a pitched ball. Only last year the Giants kept on to reach the heights after an appendicitis operation deprived them of the services of Third Baseman Johnn Vergez.

Earl Combs

The big leagues have known additional cases of the same nature, so there is a possibility that the Yankees' pennant chance may survive the loss of even so valuable a player as Combs. The chief obstacle in the club's path is the schedule, as after Labor Day the McCarthys will have to play away from home in all except four of their games, whereas the Tigers, during the same period, will be privileged to play on their own grounds in all but four of their engagements.

REFEREES AND UMPIRES HAVE HARD JOBS

The active career of Jesse O'Brien, a veteran boxing and wrestling referee, has been terminated by injuries suffered when he was knocked out while officiating in a grappling match, which leads Wilbur Wood to observe that the referee or umpire in a sports event often puts in more hard work or takes more hard knocks than the contestants themselves, to say nothing of taking the jeers of the customers, no matter how conscientiously he labors.

The only boxing referee to get much of a break is Jack Dempsey, who will handle a couple of the preliminary bouts at the Dundee-Yarosz show here on September 11. Dempsey's decisions seldom are questioned by either fighters or fans, and Jack is so well paid that over one stretch of 12 months he picked up a couple of hundred thousand dollars for acting as third man in boxing and wrestling shows.

OFFICIALS SOMETIMES MUST TAKE PUNCH

However, even Dempsey has not escaped some damage in wrestling bouts. On one occasion—and it was not part of the act, as such things sometimes are in the mat game—a grappler took a punch at Jack and the latter promptly flattened him with a right to the jaw, whereupon the wrestler's wife climbed into the ring and almost tore off Dempsey's clothing, as well as several square inches of skin. When Harry Greb was fighting Mickey Walker, Referee Eddie Purdy suffered such a severe knee injury that he went to the floor several times during the bout. Once a stray punch knocked out the dental bridgework of Referee Mike Hylas. Several others have been tipped over when they got in the way of wild wallops.

Jack Dempsey

It is no easy job to referee 40 rounds of boxing on a hot night. The late Lou Magnplia used to train harder than most boxers. A baseball umpire, wearing a protector and mask behind the plate, has a hard time of it when the temperature is up around 100. Football referees do more work than any single player in a game, chasing up and down the field countless times. The same is true in soccer. Hockey officials have to do a tremendous lot of skating. Even a billiard referee does more work than the cueists. On the face of it, the tennis umpire has a soft assignment and need not bestir himself, but he has to put up with more fault-finding than officials in any other sport. There are many easier ways of making a living than by working as a referee or umpire.

W. D. MANSFIELD — GANSON DEPEW — CHARLES C. M'GOVERN

The National Public Links golf tournament was opened with a bang at South Park this morning with fitting ceremonies as County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield hit the first ball and was followed by Carl F. Kauffmann, local star, three times national champion, the first player to leave the starting tee. County Commissioner McGovern and Ganson DePew, of Buffalo, chairman of

LOTT - STOEFEN WIN IN DAVIS CUP DOUBLES

WIMBLEDON, England, July 30.—(AP.)—George M. Lott, Jr., and Lester Stoefen, as expected, today defeated Harold G. N. Lee and George Patrick Hughes in the doubles encounter of the Davis Cup challenge round, 7-5, 6-0, 4-6, 9-7, to give the United States a fighting chance against Great Britain in the five-match series.

Their victory in the third encounter sent the decision to the final two singles matches tomorrow between Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, and Frank X. Shields and Fred Perry.

BRITONS RALLY

Perry defeated Wood in a bristling five-set encounter Saturday in the opening singles and Austin humbled Shields in straight sets.

Lott and Stoefen received unexpected opposition from the makeshift English team, Lee having been substituted for Perry at the last minute to save the latter for singles duty.

It looked like the match was all over as Lott overcame Stoefen's uncertain play to win the first set, 7-5, and the second at love, but the Britons rallied there to play brilliant tennis, the substitute, Lee, outdoing himself in the torrid forecourt exchanges, and take the third at 6-4.

STOEFEN STARS

With the pressure on, Stoefen rallied his resources to stand like a Rock of Gibraltar against the British onslaught, and it was the veteran Lott who erred at critical times to send the match into deuce. He was of little use in the last two vital games, failing to return Hughes' service no less than four times, but the big blond from California more than made up for his partner's lapses.

A crowd of 7,000 saw the match under sunny skies.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: THE BEARDED GOLD STAR MOTHER—Mme. Lestienne, a well-know figure of Boulogne, France, where she runs a ginger bread stall, had seven sons fighting for France in the World War. Six of them fell on the field of honor. The old lady, now about 90 years old, served as a cantiniere in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. Her face is adorned with a fine white beard. MATTHIAS BALDWIN—This most important figure in the development of the American locomotive (1795-1866) was originally apprenticed to a firm of manufacturing jewelers in Philadelphia and became the best workman in the shop. At the age of 24 he became an independent manufacturing jeweler, but abandoned this vocation six years later. After engaging in the manufacture of tools and hydraulic presses, he began to construct heavy stationary engines and finally devoted his energies to the devolpment of locomotives.

Ollie Keeler, of the Long Branch team, one of the favorites to win the Harding Cup team trophy, was in second place with a 76. Al Priebe, St. Paul, had a 77 and Carl Kauffmann, Pittsburgh's three-time winner of the title, was in fourth place with a 78.

Kauffmann played his irons well in the heavy wind, but had considerable trouble with his putter. He never was up on the first putt and three times slipped past the cup with his second, giving him a number of three-putt greens.

He was three over par on the outgoing nine and dropped the same number of strokes coming back.

Allison, Van Ryn Win Doubles Crown

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 30.—(AP.)—Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, former United States Davis Cup doubles pair, won the Seabright men's doubles championship yesterday by befeating Berkeley Bell and Gregory S. Mangin, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

The match was called because of darkness Saturday after 98 games in which the score stood Allison-Van Ryn 6-4, 11-13, 14-16, 6-4, 12-12. Not satisfied to start where they left off, the two teams began all over again.

Allison and Elizabeth Ryan, Californian recently returned from England, won the mixed doubles championship from Mr. and Mrs. Van Ryn, 6-1, 6-4.

Senior Golf Stars Open Tourney Today

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 30.—(AP.)—More than 100 members of Virginias Seniors Golf Association tee off today in the first round of the sixth annual three-day championship tourney.

Most of the contestants played practice rounds yesterday, including Elmore D. Hotchkiss, Jr., of Richmond, Va., the defending titleholder. Those who reported practice scores included Dr. J. S. Compton, of Bluefield, W. Va., who had an 81.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

While the tired and crippled Pirates rest today on top of their exacting ordeal of the past three weeks, kindly step into their Forbes Field dugout for a quarter of an hour.

It is shortly after the noon hour on Sunday. The Oaklanders have won two in succession over the flag-hunting Redbirds and naturally the boys are feeling a bit better.

Manager Pie Traynor, still ill with sinus trouble, comes along to check up on his sharpshooting division and this is the extent of his inventory:

STAFF CRIPPLED

Heinie Meine has several bruised fingers, the result of a line drive which almost bowled him over; Red Lucas has a sore pitching arm and asks to have an X-ray taken; Leon Chagnon turns up ill, but is in uniform; Ralph Birkofer is being treated for a sore arm and Hal Smith has not been able to pitch right since he underwent an operation weeks ago. Sounds like a jelly bean squad, doesn't it?

Traynor shook his head sorrowfully as he gazed at Larry French, Waite Hoyt and Bill Swift, who really constitute his staff at present. None of the three has yet had three days rest and Pie had pleaded with his players to "win this game."

Waite Hoyt is still a bit groggy from his heroic feat of the previous day when he smacked down Dizzy Dean and the Redbirds; Swift had achieved a shutout success on Friday and, of course, was not booked to start, while French had only two days of rest following a victory over the Phillies.

French says he is eager and willing to pitch in an effort to make it a clean sweep over the Redbirds, but the boss apparently doesn't wish to ride a willing horse too far. Pie speaks up:

"Ed Holley will start this ball game and I hope he can get through. I would like to have somebody on edge in the bullpen, but I don't want any of you fellows who have been in there in the past couple of days."

French jumps up and exclaims:

"Cap, if you order anybody but me to that bullpen, I'll take the ball right out of his hand and run him out of there. Maybe you'll fine me for insubordination or something, but I know how you want to win this game."

Swift tells Pie that he'll be only too glad to do the relief trick and Hoyt, tired as he is, puts in his oar:

"I'll be able to go again today, Pie."

Now there wasn't much dissention in that talk, and none of it was done for the purpose of staging an act, as no newspaperman was handy when the sketch was being enacted.

LOSE TO CARDS

Traynor was eager to make it three out of three from the Cardinals and French and Swift actually did swing into action with Hoyt limbering up in the "pen," yet despite all this display of team spirit, the Pirates had to bow in defeat, 9 to 5.

Holley, in the second frame, made the bad mistake of giving Spud Davis a curve-ball on the inside corner with a Cardinal on base and when the sphere was last seen, it was passing into Schenley Park by way of the left-field fence.

The first round-tripper of the fight had a big bearing on the ultimate result. One pitch often will ruin a game and Holley's pitch had disaster written all over it. Ernie Orsatti followed Davis with a liner that almost took off one of Holley's finger and the new pitcher had to retire as French came prancing to the scene.

So you will see there was considerable drama packed in a ball game witneesed by seven or eight thousand fans who enjoyed the contest.

When Paul Waner drove a homer into the rightfield stands in the seventh to force a deadlock, the fans saw visions of another Pittsburgh victory. But Jim Collins, the Redbirds home-run king, was eager to show his Nanty-Glo friends a big time in that they were on hand to honor him, so the popular coal miner duplicated the Waner smash in the eighth to win the contest.

Twelve bracket champions have been crowned and another championship will be decided today in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament. The first round robin ended last Saturday. Bracket winners and the runners-ups qualify for the playoffs, which get under way Wednesday.

American Fruit Growers, Glenfield A. A., Campbell Shamrocks, Elizabeth Produce, Commercial Garage, F. J. Broads, Weise Newsies and Wilmore carried off senior division honors. The Gabbel Cycles won the intermediate division title. The Goldenson Vanities won the diadem in bracket I of the girls' division and the West Newton Scholastics led the teams in bracket II of the same class. Calvary won bracket I honors in the junior section.

The Frank Christy Club and the Pioneers, of Carnegie, will meet this evening to decide the bracket II title of the junior competition on the Schenley High School field. Regardless of the outcome of this contest, both teams will see action in the playoffs.

Pitcher Zora Malik snapped the Allenport girls' winning streak as the Modern Food team, of Bracket I of the girls' division, defeated them, 10 to 2, on the Oakhill Field yesterday. The Allenport team, Washington County champion, boasted a string of 27 straight wins. Nora Bradley and Ruth Cargo played well for the winners. A return game will be played at Washington on Sunday, August 12.

SOFTBALL SLANTS

John Mahouski, of the Snubs A. C., of the South Side, has hit four home runs in the last three softball games played. His homer with one on in the Snubs-Commercial game tied the score and his team won out in the tenth inning.

Manager Eddie Rice's Fort Black Community Club has been playing a fine game. After losing its first contest to the Commercial Garage softballers, they managed to come back and win the next six. They lost to the Commercials in the playoff for the Bracket V championship.

Bleachers to be erected for the finals of the Amateur Softball Association national tournament in Chicago, September 8, 9 and 10, have a real history. They are coming from Soldier Field, and have been used on such occasions as the Dempsey-Tunney fight, the Army-Navy football game, the British vs. America track meet, all of the historic Notre Dame football games and other events held in the huge stadium. Now another chapter is to be added with a national softball championship.

The national championship in softball will carry with it a trophy equal to that played for in any sport. William Randolph Hearst has authorized a perpetual trophy to be made up in a special design of sterling silver. It will be held for a year by the winning team, but each player on the championship club will receive a gold metal and a small replica of the huge title trophy for permanent possession.

BOUTS POSTPONED

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—(AP)—The boxing bouts scheduled for the Phillies' park tonight, in which Cisto Locatelli, Italian champion, and Frankie Klick, San Francisco, are to meet in the windup, have been postponed until tomorrow night because of threatening weather.

High Wind, Cloudless Sky Mark Tourney Opening

By TOM BIRKS

SOUTH PARK, July 30.—There wasn't a cloud in the sky as Pittsburgh's National Public Parks golf tournament got under way here this morning.

A large gallery was on hand as County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield sent a screaming drive down the No. 1 fairway to officially inaugurate the event, the thirteenth annual national competition for the free linkers gathered from all over the country and Hawaii.

Carl F. Kauffmann, three times champion and one of Pittsburgh's five contenders in the field of 184 players, was given the signal honor of leaving the starting tee first. Off he went with a large gallery in his wake. Following him was Charley Armstrong, Honolulu's colorful representative.

WIND OFFSETS DRIVES

A strong wind was blowing across the course, and indications were that it would play havoc with the drives and cause high scores to be posted for the first 18 holes of the qualifying round which are being disposed of today.

Charley Ferrara, of San Francisco, the defending champion, was one of the first to feel the effects of the elements. His tee shot on the first hole was carried off line. However, he made a good recovery out of trouble.

Ganson De Pew, of Buffalo, chairman of the Public Links Section of the United States Golf Association, was on hand as the field began its week-long battle, and complimented the local officials upon the condition of the course.

Tonight the players will be the guests of the Pittsburgh Public Links Committee at the annual banquet. A number of prominent golfers will speak. The talks have been limited to five minutes. The public is invited to the affair, which gets under way at 6:30 o'clock.

VALUABLE PRIZES

Valuable prizes will be awarded stars in the tournament by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The eventual victor will be awarded a suitably inscribed gold watch and chain. The runner-up will get a fine wrist watch. The medalist is to be rewarded with a camera.

The winner in the consolation event will get a gladstone bag and toilet set; the second man a gladstone bag and zipper set; the third a mantel electric clock and the fourth a traveling clock in a leather case.

EISENBEIS CHAMPION

A 37-hole victory over R. F. Frenger yesterday won the Edgewood Country Club golf title for E. A. Eisenbeis. The loser squared the match on the thirty-fifth hole and lost when he required three putts on the extra green.

HAUSER LOST TO MILLERS

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30.—(AP.)—The shroud of the mourner mantled the shoulders of Minneapolis baseballdom today as it considered what effect the loss of Joe Hauser would have on the Millers' chances for the American Association pennant.

Hauser, the slugging first baseman whose home runs this year already totaled 33, was lost for probably the rest of the season when he suffered a fracturpd left kneecap in the first game of yesterday's twin bill with Kansas City.

Particularly effective in the Millers' small home park, Hauser has won any number of games this season with his big bat and is in considerable measure responsible for Minneapolis being on top of the torrid Association race.

HonusSays:

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

Now take this chap who tried to climb Mt. Everest and was not heard from again (at least not up to press time). He is supposed to have got 23,000 feet up, and had 6,141 feet to go. Most people would say such a fellow was nuts to try to pull that stunt, but I don't think so. He wanted to plant the British flag on top. There is the answer. He loved his country so much he was willing to take a million-to-one chance he would make it. It is people like that that have made this world what it is.

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER.

TIGERS BOOST LOOP LEAD

Associated Press.

The Detroit Tigers regained the American League lead over the past week-end and picked up the margin of a full game over the Yankees. They got into the "goofiest" sort of an affair in the first half of yesterday's bill with the White Sox. Leading 5-0 going into the fifth, they fell behind when the Hose scored six runs. The stunt was repeated in the seventh, Chicago scoring seven times to gain a 13-11 lead and finally Lyr.wood (Schoolboy) Rowe, who had pitched a three-hit game the day before, was called in to check the Sox's eighth inning rally and won another decision for himself by belting a home run to put the Tigers on the right side of a 16-15 score.

TIETJE VICTOR

The second game was a different tale when Les Tietje outpitched Fred Marberry to give Chicago a 6-4 victory.

The Athletics came to Detroit's aid by smashing the Yanks down into 6-3 defeat.

The third-place Indians registered the day's big gain when they twice defeated St. Louis, 11 to 5 and 6 to 3, and placed themselves 5½ games behind the lead. The double defeat dropped St. Louis to seventh place, two points behind Washington, as the Senators' game with Boston was rained out.

The National League's Sunday program brought several shifts in the standing, but none of them bore upon the New York-Chicago battle for the lead as both the top-ranking clubs divided double bills. The Giants dropped the opener to the Phillies, 4 to 2, but came back to win, 2 to 0, when Carl Hubbell broke his three-game losing streak by holding the Phils to four hits in a duel with Johnson.

CUBS, REDS SPLIT

The Cubs reversed the order. They almost ruined Chuck Dressen's debut as Cincinnati manager by trimming the Reds, 7 to 5, in a free-hitting contest which saw Pat Malone as a more effective flinger than Si Johnson. Cincinnati saved the afterpiece, 4 to 2, as Chick Hafey swatted a homer at the right time to help Tony Freitas out.

The third-place Cardinals bumped Pittsburgh around, 9 to 5, with a 16-hit attack featured by Jim Collins' twenty-third circuit swat. That decision, coupled with Boston's brilliantly pitched double victory over Brooklyn, put the Bucs in fifth place behind the Braves. At the same time the Dodgers dropped back of the Phils into seventh.

After winning the opener, 5-2, behind Ed Brandt's seven-hit hurling, the Braves got the benefit of a one-hit game by Flint Rhem and won, 1 to 0, when Pinky Whitney drove him Randy Moore with the only run young Johnny Babich allowed.

MUNGER VICTOR

EASTERN POINT, Conn., July 30.—(AP.)—Jack Munger, 19-year-old youth from Dallas, smothered Norman Lyman, of Darien, Conn., with a streak of par golf yesterday to win the 36-hole final of the Homecomett Cup invitation tournament, 13 and 12.

Personalities In Softball

Johnny Field is Manager William (Bid) Schwarzkopf's leading slugger. He plays first base for the St. Peterites in Bracket I of the Junior Division in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's amateur softball tournament. The St. Peterites are composed of members of Schwarzkopf's Sunday School class. The Saints battled hard, but lost all three games they played in their bracket. Calvary won the championship, with Waverly second.

Johnny Field

William (Ramsey) Ramsden, who has the biggest pair of hands in local softball circles, is the star third baseman of the Harris Reds team in Bracket III of the Senior competition. He is more than 6 feet tall. While attending Allegheny High School for three years he played football, basketball and baseball and also went in for swimming and other sports.

York Nine Takes State Legion Title

READING, July 30. — (AP.) — York Juniors won the American Legion baseball championship of Pennsylvania yesterday, taking the second game of the series from Bethlehem, 10 to 7. The Roses won the opener Saturday, 9-7.

Ken Diehl started on the mound but was relieved in the sixth after Bethlehem made eight hits and five runs off his delivery. Dick Kern then went in and was succeeded by Ken Raffensberger after three pitches. Raffensberger, pitching for th seventh time in 11 days, held Bethlehem to four hits for the rest of the game, fanning five in his four frames on the mound. The score by innings:

DISTRICT RING STARS BOX TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Joey Speigal vs. Tiger Joe Randall and Mike Barto vs. Johnny Burns, 10 rounds each; Jimmy Belmont vs. Jack Dalcherone, 8 rounds, and Nick Malloy vs. Chuck Mullins, 5 rounds, Hickey Park, Millvale.

Tony Marino vs. Dick Maddox, 10 rounds, Avalon.

Dizzy Day vs. Franklin Hollis, 10 rounds, and Barney Ross vs. Phil Scalzo, Duquesne, 8 rounds, Olympic.

Tom Jones vs. Harry Taylor, 8 rounds, West Newton, Mass.

Steve Dudas vs. Justin Gillis, 10 rounds, Jersey City.

Henry Firpo vs. Joe Lipps, 10 rounds, Charleston, S. C.

Jimmy Perry vs. Sterling Green and Henry Barnes vs. Pablo Flanagan, 10 rounds each, new Orleans.

Simon Valensky vs. Henry Kelly, 10 rounds, Dayton, O.

A flock of district boxing stars strut their stuff at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight, following more than a week without fistic activity in the Pittsburgh sector.

Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, and Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, good welterweight performers, appear in an elimination in the 10-round main bout.

In another 10-rounder, Mike Barto, of New Kensington, recently ordered by the boxing commission to meet a sterner list of opponents because of his penchant for scoring stirring knockouts, meets Johnny Burns, of Oakland, subbing for Jimmy Vaughn, of Cleveland, who reported a hand injury.

Both Speigal and Barto are southpaws.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, meets Jack Dalcherone, up-and-coming young middleweight, of Springdale, in an eight-rounder and Chuck Mullins and Nick Malloy box the five-round preliminary.

TUBERS DEFEAT GENERALS, 8-7

Scoring four runs in the seventh inning, McKeesport nosed out Washington, 8 to 7, in a Penn State Association tilt at McKeesport yesterday. Bill Washington third sacker, led the slugging with three hits, getting a single, double and triple.

At Monessen, the home team nosed out Charleroi, 12 to 10, in a slugfest, and at Greensburg Jeannette pounded out a 14-to-2 victory over the Cardinals.

Two Race Drivers Die in Accidents

TOLEDO, July 30.—(AP.)—Richard G. Rosenthal, 24, Toledo automobile racing driver, was injured fatally yesterday afternoon when his car crashed through a fence at the Port Miami track and struck a pole.

WINCHESTER, Ind., July 30.—(AP.)—Charles H. Haskell, Lincoln (Neb.) race driver, was killed instantly yesterday when his racing car hit a concrete retaining wall and hurtled over the southwest turn at the Funk's Lake half-mile dirt speedway near here.

SHARON, Pa., July 30.—Jack McFaden, of Strattanville, auto race pilot, is fighting for his life in the local hospital as the result of injuries received yesterday when his car crashed through a guard rail at Sharon Legion Speedway.

Dr. John Burton Cannett, 57, former all-American football star at Penn, and later grid coach at United States Naval Academy and Virginia Military Institute, died in a Philadelphia hospital yesterday of pneumonia.

The Yonkers Canoe Club, of Yonkers, N. Y., yesterday won the national championship on the Delaware River at Trenton, N. J., by piling up 45 points to 39 for the Washington (D. C.) Canoe Club, which was second.

Chicago's oldest race track, Hawthorne, today opened a 30-day meeting with the Berwyn Handicap the feature of an eight-race card.

Harold A. Shover, 27, a pitcher on the "farm" list of the St. Louis Cardinals, died in Harrisburg yesterday of injuries received in an automobile accident at Fastang, Pa., Friday night.

Manager Bill Terry today announced that the New York Giants would do their spring training at Miami again next year.

Leslie MacLachlan, a sandlot baseball player, was killed when struck with a thrown ball in a game at North Attleboro, Mass., yesterday.

Walter McCredie, 56, manager of the Portland baseball team of the Pacific Coast League, died at Portland yesterday on the eve of a baseball game scheduled in his honor.

LENORE & CO. KEEP SWIM LAURELS

DETROIT, July 30.—(AP.)—Four women swimming stars from Homestead, Pa., left for home last night taking with them the team and highest individual standings of the women's national A. A. U. swimming and diving championships concluded here yesterday.

Lenore Kight

Miss Lenore Kight, 21-year-old free style star, won the individual trophy with 18 points. Katherine Rawls, of Miami Beach, Fla., was second with 11 points and Mrs. Dorothy Poynton Hill, of Hollywood, third with eight. The Carnegie Library Club team, of Homestead, led by Miss Kight, successfully defended the team title, scoring 31 points to 26 for the Miami Beach Club in the final revised standings.

Yesterday's events saw a new national champion crowned in the 220-yard breast stroke. Miss Anne Govednik, 15-year-old Chisholm (Minn.) girl, beat Katherine Rawls by inches in the time of 3 minutes 18.3 seconds. The title was not defended by Margaret Hoffman, of Scranton, Pa. Miss Kight successfully defended her 880-yard free style championship by beating Miss Mary Lou Petty, of Seattle, Wash., in the time of 11 minutes 50.7 seconds.

Mrs. Hill demonstrated her right to the title of national highboard queen by scoring 90.84 points to win the national platform diving championship with Cornelia Gilissen, of New York, second with 81.07 points.

Alice Bridges, of Whittinsville, Mass., who won the 220-yard backstroke title earlier in the meet, swam the 200-yard distance in two minutes and 42 seconds to beat the American record by seven seconds. She swam against time. In another attempt at a record, Olive McKean, of Seattle, failed to break the 50 meters record. Her time was 37.7 seconds as compared to a record of 31 flat.

BOOK TOSSERS SEE ACTION

Seeking to avenge an early season defeat, Immaculate Heart will invade Olympic Park this evening to tackle the Book nine in the only game scheduled in the City League.

Books, back in the lead by virtue of a thrilling victory over Dormont, are not taking the Greater Pittsburgh champions lightly.

Mt. Oliver put a decided crimp in Homewood's second half hopes yesterday, defeating the Dalzell-Daley entry, 9 to 6. Mt. Oliver came from behind to win after getting away to a five-run lead in the first inning.

Playing at Greenville, Dormont defeated the Greenville Independents, 4 to 1, and the Vaughans tripped the Cochranes in an exhibition tilt, 2-0.

Kunkle Elected To Heller's Post

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 30.—A school board battle over a vacancy in the Johnstown High School teaching and coaching staff caused by the resignation of Warren Heller, former Pitt football star, has ended in the election of Ellsworth Kunkle, son of one of the school directors.

With Coach Joe Harrick asking for an assistant who knows football, one faction sought to elect Paul Abele, former Duquesne University athlete and outstanding coacher. After several ballots, however, the majority support which was his was thrown to Kunkle.

JOE CONDE WINS

MEXICO, D. F., July 30.—(AP.)—Joe Conde, 132, former Mexican featherweight champion, outpointed Gus Espinosa, 133, Filipino, of Los Angeles, in a 10-round fight Saturday night.

SPORT VIGNETTES

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

Welcome, publinks golfers from all over the United States and its possessions, gathered here for your national tournament at South Park this week.

The South Park course, it is said, is at least the equal of any on which this championship ever has been played, and far above the average.

A keen battle is anticipated between Carl F. Kauffmann, the local star, and Charley Ferrera of San Francisco, with Ferrera trying to match Kauffmann's record of winning the title three times and Kauffmann seeking to snare his fourth conquest and give the boys a real mark at which to shoot in the future.

SOFTBALL RULES PRAISED

Local playgrounds directors are loud in their praise of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's amateur softball tournament, which, they say, has resulted in a finer spirit of sportsmanship among teams. Playing under strict rules, rowdyism has been almost entirely eliminated from the games and both the players and spectators get a bigger kick out of their play.

A writer in Collyer's Eye, a Chicago sporting publication, after seeing Ted Yarosz defeat Tait Littman, of Milwaukee, there recently, writes:

"If Ted Yarosz is a 'second Harry Greb,' the first one was a bum. Yarosz is the poorest excuse for a good middleweight I have seen in 10 years."

That's one man's opinion. What a bunch of tramps the other middleweights must be if Yarosz can outclass them the way he does.

'WHO'S A BUM?'

Speaking of Yarosz' bout with Littman, Ray Foutts, his manager, says:

"Littman is a counter puncher, who stands back and won't lead. Teddy had to do all of the fighting and take all of the chances, and he was clipped a solid blow which shook him up in the tenth round. In addition, the night of the fight was very hot and the ring lights were so strong that they almost blistered the boxers. No one could be at his best under the combination of circumstances Teddy faced that night."

There's a big scramble on for the job of publicity director for the Yarosz-Vince Dundee title fight, to be fought at Forbes Field on the night of September 11. The promoters have a big job on their hands getting enough money in the box office to take care of their huge outlay and will have to get a good man to handle this phase of their venture.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

WESTINGHOUSE SHOWS NET PROFIT

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company reports net profit for the three months ended June 30, 1934, of $1,744,427 compared with net losses of $1,776,152 in the preceding quarter and $2,078,424 in the corresponding period of 1933.

In the first six months of 1933 net loss was $31,725 compared with a net loss of $5,569,996 in the first six months of 1933.

ORDERS GAIN

The report for the second quarter of 1934 shows orders received totaled $33,655,022. This compared with $20,237,588 for the previous quarter and $17,557,964 for the second quarter of 1933.

Sales billed for the second quarter of 1934 totaled $27,287,545 compared to $17,894,045 for the previous quarter and $15,926,335 for the corresponding quarter of 1933.

Unfilled orders at June 30 were $31,892,155 as compared with $24,705,173 as of June 30, 1933.

F. A. Merrick, president, said:

"The encouraging improvement in business noted in our report for the first quarter of the year has continued through the second quarter. Orders received during the quarter ended June 30 show an increase of 92 per cent over the same quarter of 1933. Orders received during the six months ended June 30 show an increase of 77 per cent over the corresponding six months of 1933.

SALES INCREASE

"Sales of practically all products have shown some improvement in recent months, but the major increases have been in seasonal lines such as household refrigeration and other similar goods. There has not been a strong demand for machinery for production purposes and other so-called capital goods.

"The electric public utility companies are not purchasing large machinery in any substantial quantities. If public utilities are able to secure the necessary funds for additions and betterments, it is reasonable to assume that there will be substantially increased purchases of Westinghouse material by this industry."

Agency Reports Gain in Sales

The Pittsburgh agency of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company reported an increase of 59 per cent in paid new life insurance sales over the first six months of last year, also an increase of 464 per cent in annuities during the same period. The first six months of 1934 exceeded every similar period in the history of the Pittsburgh agency with the exception of one year.

Tariff Treaties by U. S. Shrouded In Secrecy

(Paul Mallon, whose signature usually appears over this dispatch, is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Hearings granted to domestic interests in connection with the foreign trade agreements with foreign countries negotiated by the State Department, have turned out to be just what was expected by the discerning. When the bill, giving the President power to negotiate agreements involving changes in tariff rates, was first drafted and introduced, it contained no provision to give those industries affected by the agreements a chance to be heard. The Republicans raised a big outcry over this and insisted they would not permit the bill to pass, would filibuster against it if necessary, unless the bill was amended so as to include hearings.

Democratic leadership hearkened to the plea, or threat, and obligingly adopted the feature demanded by the Republicans. But it was, nevertheless generally believed by those familiar with such things that the hearings would not amount to anything and that they were just a sop thrown to the high tariff people.

The first hearings under the new act are now being held by the Tariff Commission on the Cuban commercial treaty, and the proceedings seem to justify the predictions as to their value. What the Cuban treaty contains has never been disclosed to Congress or the public and neither Thomas W. Page, vice chairman of the commission presiding at the hearings, nor any other government official will tell witnesses what its provisions are. This puts prospective witnesses wholly in the dark, because they do not know whether their business is affected or not.

A Connecticut tobacco grower came before the commission and wanted to find out if his product was affected by the terms of the agreement, but Mr. Page told him he could not give him the information. Thereupon, the Connecticut Yankee thought he had better be on the safe side and protest anyhow. Other witnesses have followed his lead and have testified as if their products were not only going to be affected but affected adversely.

Witnesses must tell their own stories because they are not permitted to have attorneys argue their cases for them. The hearings are nominally public, but that does not mean you can walk right in without any formalities. No one is allowed to enter unless he fills in a slip of paper giving his name, whom and what he represents, and the reason he wishes to testify or be present. Those who imagined there would be a repetition of the old congressional tariff hearings, where witnesses appeared with a battery of legal counsel, filed immense briefs, had rolls of charts, exhibited their wares and made stump speeches to the committees, find the new methods strange and disappointing.

INVESTIGATIONS

Despite adjournment, a considerable number of members of Congress could still be occupying themselves with public affairs in ways already marked out for them. Twelve Senate investigations authorized by the Seventy-third Congress were continued into the Seventy-fourth, and 11 house investigations are still alive. With the usual membership of five on each committee, these 23 investigations, if all were active, would require the attention of 115 legislators. Most of them, however, have suspended operations for the summer and some are doing the work preliminary to starting up in the fall.

One of the latter sort is the special committee to investigate the munitions industry, which is headed by Senator Nye, of North Dakota. Scores of investigators for this committee are at work gathering materials for the opening sessions of the committee later in the year. Perhaps a half dozen or so of all the committees are carrying on by holding hearings during the summer. Certain ones in the list don't look so awfully serious and give off an odor suggestive of junket. The burdens of the Senate committee investigating "Conservation of Wild Life" would appear to be not very depressing nor would the "Committee to visit the Philippine Islands" find the work exhausting unless the members were poor sailors.

But, when they all get to work and begin digging into the subjects of oil, crime and criminal practices, bankruptcy, campaign expenditures and even tin, it should not be long before the tide of revelations begins to flow again.

CALLED BACK

Recently, W. W. Husband, who had been for a long time Assistant Secretary of Labor specializing in immigration matters, resigned his post and thought he would have a rest from public duties for a while. But, just as he had settled down in Vermont for a pleasant summer's holiday, he was summoned to Washington to undertake some special work abroad in relation to immigration.

SITTING IN

Since Donald Richberg moved upstairs out of the NRA to become President Roosevelt's coordinator-in-chief, the NRA is being guided through the morass of legal intricacies by a young Californian, still in his early thirties, Blackwell Smith.

Smith came to the NRA from a big New York law firm, started as a member of the legal staff, and, within a year, rose to become assistant administrator for policy and chief of the legal division. Tall, amiable, and hard-working, he is regarded as one of the brighter stars in the new deal's legal firmament.

His name figures prominently in those whispered speculations about "the new commission that will eventually take over both the NRA and the federal trade commission." There are no plans yet for such a commission, but when, as, and if such a board is created, "Blackie" Smith is expected to land there.

WOMAN'S $375, MAN VANISH

Promised a half interest in a restaurant by a stranger, Sylvia Ricketts, 38, of 465 Belonda street, Mt. Washington, went to the Kirkwood Hotel, 5939 Kirkwood avenue, East End, with a $375 check in her purse to meet the man.

Her would-be benefactor, aged about 50, told her to wait a minute while he ironed out some difficulties in connection with the purchase of a restaurant at 109 Whitfield street.

When he did not return, she notified police, who learned the man had cashed the check in the hotel and departed.

Japanese Prince Cancels Brazil Trip

TOKIO, July 30.—(AP.)—The imperial household announced today that Prince Kaya, head of one of the collateral branches of the imperial family who is now in Germany on a world tour, had cancelled plans to visit Brazil and other South American countries.

The announcement did not state the reason, but is was authoritatively learned Brazil's recent enactment of a constitutional provision drastically restricting Japanese immigration influenced the decision.

420 Girls Present Field Events Today

NATIONAL NET HAS SHARP INCREASE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

NATIONAL STEEL CORPORATION, which established the outstanding record for its industry during the depression, reported a sharp gain in earnings for the second quarter.

After deducting depreciation, depletion, interest and taxes, net earnings were $2,593,369; equivalent to $1.20 a share on 2,156,832 shares of stock outstanding. This exceeded official predictions that earnings would amount to at least $1 a share.

Earnings for the quarter represented a gain of nearly a million dollars over the preceding quarter and of more than a million dollars over the corresponding period of a year ago. In the first quarter of this year net profit was $1,642,328 or 76 cents a share. In the corresponding period of 1933 net profit was $1,532,466, equivalent to 71 cents a share.

* * *

Profit Doubled In Half Year

NET PROFIT for the first half of this year was more than double the first half of last year. It amounted to $4,235,697 as compared with $1,813,311. Earnings per share for the first half of 1934 were equivalent to $1.96 compared to 84 cents for the first half of 1933.

The sharp decline in steel production at the beginning of July and the relatively small recovery since that time indicate that third quarter earnings will show a sharp decline compared to the second quarter. National Steel, however, is the only leading steel producer with plants in the Detroit area. In spite of the seasonal decline in automobile production, the motor car builders still provide the principal support of the steel industry. National's strategic position for serving this industry makes it quite likely that the company is feeling the current decline less than many of its competitors. National was the only outstanding steel producer to show a profit throughout the depression as well as the only steel company to pay quarterly dividends on its capital stock.

Plans to Build New Strip Mill

IN ORDER TO further entrench its position, National is planning to build a new continuous hot and cold strip mill in the Detroit district. This will cost about $12,000,000. It will be equipped to produce strip in widths which until recently could be made only on the old type of sheet mills which were fed by hand. The exact width to be produced has not been determined, but it will probably be in the neighborhood of 75 inches. Under present plans the mill is to be ready for operation in 1935.

The company is in a strong current position and will be able to finance this improvement without the sale of any additional securities. Provisions have been made for bond sinking fund requirements for 1934.

The total working capital is in excess of $33,000,000, an increase of more than $5,000,000 since the December 31, 1933, report. The strong liquid position of the National Steel Corporation is indicated by the fact that of the total working capital, more than one-third, or $12,350,000 is represented by cash and short term investments showing a gain of approximately $5,500,000 since December 31, 1933.

Child 'Hitch-Hikes' On 'Luxury' Train

NEW YORK, July 30.—(INS.)—The grand adventure of 12-year-old Margaret Irene De Bus—that of speeding from Baltimore to New York on a deluxe train without paying a cent of fare—has ended. Her father today was speeding back home with her.

She explained to police she simply stepped on a B. & O. "luxury" train and no one asked her for a ticket.

Pirates Rob Boat Passengers at Fair

CHICAGO, July 30. — (AP.)—Three pirates boarded the speedboat Michigan at the World's Fair last night, overpowered the pilot and held up several passengers while en route to the Michigan avenue link bridge. The pirates forced the passengers ashore on the navy pier and sped away in the boat.

Pie Found Assuming Novel Personality For Summer

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Modern development of all kinds of kitchen devices, plus an ever-growing demand for variety in food, has resulted in a distinctly new culinary trend.

Especially noticeable with the advent of the mechanical refrigerator, is the 1934 housewife's dexterity at the preparation of luscious summer deserts in wide range. Something comparatively new in this line is the modernism-fostered pie, which came to the fore forcefully this season.

There is nothing particularly new about ice-box cakes and cookies, ices and ice creams and such, but when pie takes to the refrigerator, it's something to talk about. And that's exactly what Mr. Pie has done—so now, instead of being heavy and wintry, he has a summer personality, too.

Below you'll find two of the new species, prize-winners in today's Prudence Penny Contest. Try 'em and in the meantime why not delve into your own cooking archives and try for one of the 11 prizes—one $5, five $1 and five honorable mention cook books — offered in this column? Send your recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. CHARLES E. KING,
2843 West Carson street, Pittsburgh.
FRUIT AMBER PIE

Two tablespoons granulated gelatine.
One-quarter cup cold water.
Three-quarters cup hot water.
One cup sugar.
One cup orange juice.
One-quarter cup lemon juice.
One-half cup shredded canned pineapple.
Two bananas.
Two egg whites.
One cup whipping cream.

Line a pie plate with rich pastry. Prick the entire surface with fork. Bake in a hot oven 10 minutes. Soften the gelatine in cold water, dissolve in the hot water, and combine with the sugar and fruit juices. Set aside to cool. When mixture starts to congeal, beat well with an egg beater. Add the pineapple and bananas, cut in thin slices, and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Chill until the mixture holds its shape. Fill baked pie shell and set aside until stiff.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. J. W. NELSON,
South Erie street, Mercer.
SPICED GREEN TOMATOES

Five pounds small green tomatoes, or large ones sliced medium thick.
Six cups white sugar.
Two cups vinegar.
One tablespoon stick cinnamon.
One teaspoon whole cloves.
One teaspoon allspice (whole).
One tablespoon white mustard seed.

Wash tomatoes but do not peel. If small ones are used, prick slightly. Combine sugar, vinegar and spices; bring to the boiling point and pour over the tomatoes. Allow to stand 6 hours, or over night. Drain off liquid and cook until it coats spoon. Add tomatoes and cook until clear. Seal in clean, hot jars.

MRS. R. BENDIX,
727 North Euclid avenue, Pittsburgh.
PAPRIKA RICE CHICKEN

Cut three-pound stewing chicken into large pieces. Cut two small, or one large, onion into small pieces and fry in skillet. When brown, turn into a large pot. Put more fat (preferably chicken fat) into the skillet. Sprinkle salt and pepper on each piece of chicken and fry until the skin is browned. Add fried chicken to the fried onions. Add one large teaspoon paprika and three cups of water, adding water as needed while it cooks. Soak a full cup of rice in water. When chicken is almost tender (about one-half hour before it is done), add the soaked rice and black pepper and salt to taste. Boil until rice is soft, stirring occasionally after rice starts to cook.

MRS. PHOEBE SHEESLEY,
R. F. D. 1, Mahaffey.
BAKED ORANGE MARIE

Eight oranges.
Eight dates, stoned and chopped.
One tablespoon raisins.
One tablespoon chopped English walnuts.
One tablespoon cocoanut.

Wash oranges and remove tops. With a sharp paring knife hollow out a small portion of each near the top, then work knife around to lift out pieces of remaining pulp until orange shell is clean. Combine orange pulp with dates, cocoanut, raisins and nuts and return to orange shells. Place oranges in a baking dish with one-half inch of water in bottom of pan. Bake in a slow oven 45 minutes.

MISS CLARA McCARNICK,
Kirama.
ENGLISH TOFFEE ICE CREAM

One-fourth pound plain English toffee candy.
One can sweetened condensed milk.
One-half cup cold coffee.
One-half pint whipping cream.
One and one-half teaspoons vanilla.

Put candy through food chopper and add to milk. Add coffee and mix thoroughly. Fold in whipped cream and flavor with vanilla. Pour into refrigerator freezing tray and freeze 35 or 40 minutes (until mixture begins to harden on bottom); stir until smooth and continue freezing about three hours, stirring when necessary.

AUGUSTA FISCHER,
R. D. 2, Monongahela.
TUNA FLYES WITH ASPARAGUS

One can tuna fish.
Twelve almonds, finely chopped.
One teaspoon onion juice.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon white pepper.
Three egg whites.
One cup whipping cream.

Shred tuna fish, leaving oil in fish, and add chopped almonds, onion juice, salt and pepper. Mix and beaten egg whites gradually, fold in whipped cream and turn mixture into buttered individual molds. Place in pan of warm water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Turn out on hot platter and serve immediately with fresh asparagus and hollandaise sauce.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

One-half cup butter.
Three egg yolks.
Juice of one-half lemon.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One-half cup boiling water.

Cream butter and egg yolks; one at a time and beat well. Add lemon juice, salt and pepper, and about five minutes before serving, add boiling water a little at a time and stir well. Place bowl in saucepan of boiling water and stir until sauce thickens.

Honorable Mention

MRS. J. M. O'CONNOR,
5345 Kincaid street, Pittsburgh.
PINEAPPLE ICE

One small can pineapple juice, unsweetened.
Two egg whites.
One and one-half cups granulated sugar.
Juice of one lemon.
Two cups water.
Dash of salt.

Boil sugar and water to a thin syrup. Add pineapple and lemon juices. Partially freeze mixture. Remove to bowl and beat two egg whites until mixture becomes light, then fold in beaten egg whites to which salt has been added. Freeze.

MISS DOROTHY LARK,
124 Summer avenue, Pittsburgh.
PEANUT POTATO CANDY

One tablespoon mashed potatoes.
One box powdered sugar.
Peanut butter.

Mix sugar, a small amount at a time, with potatoes. More sugar may be added, if necessary, to make mixture stiff enough to roll. Roll one-quarter of an inch thick on well-sugared board and spread on with peanut butter. Roll up, as in making a jelly roll, with a spatula or long knife and slice one-quarter of an inch thick.

HELEN CHLUBZINSKI,
734 Wilson avenue, Beaver.
OXTAILS A LA TARTARE

Three oxtails.
Two eggs, beaten.
One cup bread crumbs.
Salt and pepper to taste.
One quart stock.
Bouquet of sweet herbs.

Cut oxtails into four-inch pieces and boil with stock and sweet herbs. Allow to simmer two hours. Drain and cool. When cold dip in the eggs and then in bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat to a golden brown. Place tartare sauce in center of a cold dish and arrange the oxtails around it. Garnish with parsley and serve.

MRS. T. B. HARVEY,
520 Sixth street, Oakmont.
APPLE NUT WHIPPED CREAM PIE

Line a pie pan with pie dough and bake. Make enough applesauce to fill, but do not pour into crust until ready to serve. When ready to serve fill pie shell with apple sauce, one-half pound English walnuts, chopped, and cream, whipped and slightly sweetened. Serves six.

EMILIE FARHART,
Avonmore.
GREEN SALAD.

One tablespoon gelatine.
One-half cup cold water.
One-half cup hot pineapple juice.
One-half cup blanched almonds, chopped.
One-half cup sugar.
One-quarter cup mild vinegar.
One-half cup stuffed olives, sliced.
One-half cup sliced pineapple, cut in small pieces.
One-half cup small sweet cucumber pickles, thinly sliced.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Green vegetable coloring.

Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatine on top. Add sugar, salt and hot pineapple juice and stir until dissolved. Add vinegar and green coloring and cool. When mixture begins to stiffen, add remaining ingredients. Turn into individual molds that have been rinsed in cold water.

Flock of Starlings Killed by Lightning

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 30.—A bolt of lightning struck a tree in the residential district during a severe electrical storm. The next morning residents found several score starlings dead on the ground and many fluttering around dazed. It was the first instance known here of a flock of birds killed by lightning.

RUNYAN WINS PRO TITLE

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 30.—(AP.)—Paul Runyan, the 130-pound wispy White Plains, N. Y., star, became the American professional golfer champion yesterday when he defeated Craig Wood, Hollywood, N. J. husky, 1 up in a thrill-packed 38-hole match.

Although Wood's prodigious drives gave him a decided advantage, it was the former Arkansas caddie's well-gauged putting that kept him in the running and won the championship on the second extra hole.

With Runyan leading by one hole and a gallery of 4,000 forming a horseshoe around the thirty-fifth green, Wood struck a niblick shot to within 18 inches of the cup. Runyan's ball was on the edge of the carpet 45 feet from the flag. He chipped up and almost holed out. Wood tapped his in to square the match.

Dressen to Work Slowly With Reds

CINCINNATI, July 30.—(AP.)—Charles (Chuck) Dressen, who came from down Nashville way to manage the cellar-holding Cincinnati Reds, watched his new charges split a double header with the Chicago Cubs yesterday, but was not hasty in forming any opinions as to what might be wrong with the club. He said:

"I have never seen the Reds of this season play and it is going to take time to correct any defects."

What is to be done about Bob O'Farrell, deposed manager, remained an unanswered question. Indications were, however, that he would be given a waiver of his contract.

STOCK LEADERS SUPPORTED ON DROP

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP.)—Stocks gave ground rather easily today and the heaviness of a number of past bell-wethers apparently tended to accentuate the hesitation in most share groups.

Although the trading volume was relatively low, leading issues yielded 1 to around 3 points before steadying under moderate support. There was little news that might have acted as a further depressant to sentiment. Considerable drought-fed pessimism continued to prevail, but the European situation seemed to be less tense.

Grains at Chicago moved forward around 1 to 2 cents a bushel under the leadership of corn, which touched new highs for the season. Cotton firmed as private crop reports estimated production at much more restricted levels than had been previously forecast. Silver was about even and rubber improved. Bonds were quiet and irregular. United States Government securities recovered after an early decline, but secondary corporation loans sagged. International dollar rates were a trifle stiffer.

Shares of American Telephone, Sears Roebuck and Santa Fe dropped 2 to 3 points each to new 1934 lows. Santa Fe, however, was ex-dividend. Allied Chemical lost 3 and others, down major fractions to around 2, included Consolidated Gas, American Sugar Refining, General Motors, Chrysler, Case, Loew's, United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, American Can, National Distillers, Goodyear, United States Smelting, American Smelting, Howe Sound, New York Central, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Some brokerage quarters felt that selling in American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Consolidated Gas and other so-called "pivotal" leaders was due partly to the belief that profits of many corporations will show an appreciable decline during the latter part of this year unless unforseen developments intervene.

While admitting the economic situation is a little muddled at the present time, various analysts voiced the opinion that the current business sag would not touch the October low level.

In support of this it was recalled that government agencies are now prepared to spend an unlimited mount of funds for relief and recovery, if necessary; that there is an unprecedented credit base with a plethora of investment funds; that a deficit exists in both durable and consumption goods as the result of five years of subnormal production, and finally, that the vast unused portion of the government's inflationary machinery can still be an important factor.

GRAIN ADVANCE LED BY CORN

CHICAGO, July 30.—Led by corn, the grain market averaged higher early today. First hand reports by leading experts said the corn fields of Northern Illinois were never before so unpromising at this stage.

Opening ⅜ to 1 cent higher, September, 68¾@69 cents, corn later held near the initial range. Wheat started at ½ to ⅝ cents up, September new, $1.01¼@1.01⅜, and subsequently altered little.

STOCK REACTION WARNS AGAINST DEFLATION

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, July 30.—Last week the stock market again cracked twice, this time on Monday and Thursday. The net loss in the averages at the close ran between 4 and 5 points. Bonds also declined notably on Thursday and the current recession in such issues has now developed into the sharpest since last August.

After trying to hold above 90 on Tuesday and Wednesday, the industrial average plunged through on Thursday, marking a new phase of the recession. It meant the clearing out of many small margin accounts, especially in low priced issues. There has been a great deal of interest in shares selling under 15 during the past few months, and evidently the holders were not really investors, for they were suddenly shaken out.

The declines in some of the low priced issues have exceeded 50 per cent.

In the face of all this, several of the old leaders have had relatively good support. Du Pont, for example has held above the critical level of 80-81. American Can has held so far at its critical low of 91, and Atchison similarly at 51. This serves to emphasize the general liquidation throughout the list.

NOT TECHNICAL REACTION

In fact, the market lost most of its "selectivity" last week. All sorts of stocks went down including precious metals as well as utilities and steel. I conclude that this is no mere technical reaction. Furthermore, it is not due to doubts that inflation will occur, nor to war scares.

A good many stocks have, like some bonds, been selling ridiculously high.

The railway stocks had an illogical and unwarranted rise.

There had even been a recovery of utilities on the assumption that they were "low enough."

Some weak positions revived in the liquor issues, which were shaken out by poor earnings. Then there was the indiscriminate buying of "cheap" stocks.

All this made a situation that put too heavy a load on such a thin market.

Finally came several heavy straws to break the camel's back. The immediate one was the realization of poor earnings, largely due to NRA, AAA and high taxes. The General Motors situation was an eye opener, and Consolidated Gas an added blow.

Back of this was the obvious intensification of the business recession by drought and strikes, while at the same time the fall outlook because, more dubious, and hopes of an artificial building revival dimmed. It is fair to add that growing disillusionment with the New Deal's economic experiment is apparent.

Stock market regulations have reduced the machinery of support. Pools can now do less. The banks fear the lessened liquidity.

Under such circumstances, war scare rumors added to the general discouragement and touched off selling, some of which was quite illogical.

Uncertainty remains great. It seems probable that some further unsettlement will occur. Any purchases should be moderate and very selective.

WOULD BUY STOCKS

But I am impressed with the fact that some of the recent selling has been indiscriminate and illogical. The volume on Thursday was of climax proportions for these days, and the amount of decline unusually large. The averages are now within a couple of points of the October, 1933, low, and this liquidates most of the New Deal bull market. (In fact, many stocks—including United States Steel—are at new bear market lows in terms of gold.)

Mr. Roosevelt can take action which would prevent penetration of the October lows.

So I would begin to look for stocks to add to my holdings as a hedge against inflation. The New Dealers are caught in their own machinery. If they don't inflate, they will have to go through deflation, which would mean political death to them.

WE HAVE MORE BUSINESS THAN CONFIDENCE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 30.—As Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the new Securities and Exchange Commission, pointed out, business has been better than confidence.

Mr. Rukeyser

Assassination of leaders in Central Europe and dramatic labor-employer warfare in the United States helped to make capital more timid—and to induce the flight from stocks into cash.

In the circumstances, capitalists were all too ready to accept at par the vague mutterings of new dealers against business profits and the profits system.

But, despite the summer slump and the bearish near-term implications of the excessive drought, business continues on a fairly even keel. It has by no means duplicated the spectacular crack that took place before the rally in speculative prices.

SOME BEYOND HOPES

In spite of the calamity howlers, building construction awards and steel purchases thus far this month have been beyond average expectations. In the steel industry, most of the orders continue to come from the automobile and canning trades. The railroads have stopped buying. Accordingly, the steel industry is in the throes of seasonal dullness, somewhat intensified by the forward buying in the late spring in anticipation of a strike and of a price advance.

The automobile industry was the banner performer in the first half of the year, with a gain of 75 per cent over the same period in 1933. In June production ran 25 per cent above June, 1933, though 8.5 per cent below May.

The chief recent improvement in building came from projects for large industrial plants. Residential building continues at a very low ebb, running lower than a month ago and lower than a year ago.

STRIKES HANDICAP

Since the problem of economic recovery is obviously concerned mainly with the re-employment of idle man-hours, the epidemic of strikes is an outstanding deterent to progress. The losses in payroll came primarily in the manufacturing industries.

The latest index of wholesale prices, namely for June, published by the United States Department of Labor, indicates that some meager further progress was made toward the goal of narrowing price gaps. The index rose to a new peak, representing a gain of 1 per cent over May and 15 per cent over June, 1933, and 25 per cent since February, 1933.

Of course, the comparison with February of last year, when gold prices were in effect, should be corrected to allow for the devaluation of the dollar. In terms of gold, the gain is actually reduced to a loss. In the month, raw material prices rose 3.5 per cent, semi-manufactured products declined 1 per cent, and finished products gained 1 per cent.

Pittsburgh Man Heads Life Group

At the seventy-fifth anniversary conference of the Equitable Life held in New York, John M. Pfiel, of Pittsburgh, was elected the first president of the Equitable's new Group Millionaires' Club. This organization is composed of Equitable agents throughout the country who sell annually a million dollars or more of group life insurance. Maurice B. Cohill, also of Pittsburgh, was elected to the board of governors. Both men are agents of the Edward A. Woods Company.

OBITUARY

Francis H. Richard.

Francis H. Richard, 63, former vice president of the old First National Bank of Pittsburgh, and later chief accountant for the Petroleum Securities Company, died of a heart attack in Los Angeles, Saturday night, according to word reaching friends in Pittsburgh.

Richard, prominent in Pittsburgh Masonic bodies, was born here in 1871. Except for a few weeks' employment with an industrial firm, he had been with the bank 23 years, first as a messenger, then as cashier, and finally as a director and vice president. He was a member of the Pittsburgh Club, Duquesne Club, various country clubs and the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

Mrs. Philomona Tessaro.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 30.—Funeral services for Mrs. Philomona Tessaro, 96, were held in the Lady of Grace Catholic Church here today. Mrs. Tessaro, a former resident of Pittsburgh, died Friday at the home of a son, Angelo Tessaro, here.

She was born in Italy. Besides her son, Angelo, she leaves two other sons, John, of Wayne, Pa., and Adam Tessaro, of Broughton; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Geager, of Monongahela; 17 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

Jacob Quallich.

Requiem mass for Jacob Quallich, 84, husband of the late Margaret Schwartz Quallich, of 509 Elizabeth street, Mt. Oliver, will be celebrated at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at St. Joseph's Church. He died Saturday. Interment will be in St. Michael's Cemetery.

Max A. Herrmann.

Services for Max A. Herrmann, 70, who died Saturday, were to be held at 3 p. m. today at his home, 1412 Rush street, North Side. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Bertha Zimmerman Herrmann, and a son, Oscar.

Age ..... Boy or Girl .....

TOMORROW BIG FRECKLE DAY

Tomorrow's the important day in the young life of the freckled face boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity. Tomorrow's the day when they get their freckles counted in the contest for the championship.

This big event is to take place at West View Park as the high spot in the National Kiddies' Day celebration in which Quin Hall's Junior Patrol and the Junior Birdmen of America will participate, each putting on a program of entertainment. This event is annualy sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph. Here is the schedule of events:

2:00 o'clock p. m.—Contest to select the freckled face champions of Pittsburgh and vicinity, hand stand.

3:00 o'clock p. m.—Junior Birdmen will fly their model planes on the athletic field.

4:00 o'clock p. m.—Entertainment by members of the Junior Patrol, band stand.

In the freckled face contest expensive bicycles will be given as first prizes for both boys and girls, and the second prizes will be outfits of clothing.

The free tickets for the rides and attractions are going like hot cakes. Kiddies only need two coupons clipped from the Sun-Telegraph to get a strip of eight tickets. There's a coupon in today's Sun-Telegraph. There are neighborhood stations listed where the coupons can be exchanged for the strips of tickets and where 15-cent street car passes can be purchased. These are good from any part of Pittsburgh.

DISCLAIMS 'AD' FOR TYPISTS

Herbert H. Cahoon, architect, of 7416 Perrysville avenue, Ben Avon, today denied he had authorized the insertion of advertisements for girl stenographers asked to report to:

"Mr. Cahoon, 9 Hartley Building."

The advertisements were inserted in Pittsburgh papers last week and girls who reported there were given copies of the All-America Party's new paper and told to return later.

Cahoon declared:

"The advertisements were inserted without my knowledge and I did not interview a single young lady for such positions.

"I had no knowledge my name was being used in this connection until I read about it in the papers."

30 Circus Employes To Leave Hospital

DETROIT, July 30.—(AP.)—The Board of Health announced today that 30 of the 74 employes of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey combined circus, recovering from suspected cases of typhoid fever in a hospital here were sufficiently improved to leave the hospital.

Dr. Don W. Gudakunst, of the health board, said 44 who are to remain in the hospital also are improving.

Africans Escort Bier of Lyautey

NANCY, France, July 30.—(AP.)—African troops with whose aid Marshal Louis H. Lyautey built the French colony of Morocco escorted his body today over roads lined with people to the Nancy Cathedral after a simple religious ceremony at Thorey.

The body of the military hero will lie in state here until Thursday, when a national funeral will be held.

Underground Gas Warning Issued

The danger of entering manholes and underground passageways without making tests for suffocating and explosive gases is being called to the attention of all Western Pennsylvania's city and county officials by letters sent today from the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, it was announced. The notice cited deaths being caused due to lack of precaution.

N. S. Bomb Scare Only Toy Cannon

Firemen, detectives and police rushed to the rear of 16 East General Robinson street, North Side, last night, when they received numerous telephone calls of a bombing.

They found a small toy cannon near a house—its owner and the persons who fired it gone. No damage was caused.

NEWSMEN FACE EIGHTH 'TERM'

DANVILLE, Ky., July 30.—(AP.)—Judge J. W. Harlan ordered Jack Durham and Wesley Carty back into police court today to ask them for the eighth time what they knew in advance about the hanging in effigy of Representative J. Sterling Towles.

For the eighth time, the two young reporters announced, they will refuse to answer. The expect to get another jail sentence of six hours for contempt of court.

During the 27 hours they have spent in jail Durham and Carty, employes of a Danville newspaper, have agreed that under no circumstances will they divulge their information, obtained as a newspaper confidence, and that anything one says may be quoted as "We."

They announced that so far as they are concerned the case will stay in police court indefinitely. If they should obtain a writ of habeas corpus, an injunction or a writ of prohibition, the case would go to the County Circuit Court, where $30 fines and jail sentences of 30 days could be given them for contempt.

Judge Harlan has said he has no thought of persecuting the reporters. His position is that it is his duty to uphold the authority of his court.

HOST OF DEATH SUSPECT SLAIN

OLEAN, N. Y., July 30.—(AP.)—Archie Moore, roadhouse proprietor of Bradford, Pa., who figured prominently in the investigation of the mysterious murder of Mrs. Marian Costanzo, beauty shop operator, last Thanksgiving Day, has followed her in death. His body, bearing six bullet wounds, was found yesterday on a highway near here.

The body lay on the little-traveled Blakeslee Hollow highway. His automobile, bearing a Pennsylvania license, was parked on the opposite side of the road.

During the investigation of the Costanzo murder, Moore told Assistant Prosecutor Walsh, of Erie County, that Pasquale Costanzo, the woman's elderly husband, was staying with him in Bradford at the approximate time Mrs. Costanzo was believed to have been slain. Costanzo, who denied knowledge of his wife's killing, was freed after being detained a week.

BLOW AT PLAY KILLS GIRL, 8

An 8-year-old girl was dead today as the result of a playful blow from the hand of a 5-year-old playmate.

She is Charlotte Ardolino, of 6427½ Frankstown avenue. The young girl died in Children's Hospital yesterday from acute peritonitis, induced, hospital officials said, by a blow in the stomach received while playing with Peter Iola, 5, of 214 Mayflower street, last week.

Charlotte became seriously ill last Friday. Morgue and homicide officials said the blow that resulted in her death was an accident.

The girl was a twin sister. She attended Lincoln School.

State Selling Auto Tags at Half-Price

HARRISBURG, July 30.—(AP.)—The Bureau of Motor Vehicles announced today advance applications for license plates at the half-rate will be filled after the close of business tomorrow.

Applications received today and tomorrow, if accompanied by checks at the cut rate, will be held until after tomorrow.

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER IX.

They set out to explore in the direction from which the sound of the bell had come. Thick jungle grew up to the edge of the plantation and they followed this round, hoping to strike a path. There was no path, but the growth was dry and not impenetrable. The ground sloped upward at an easy grade that was interrupted by ledges a few feet in height forming natural terraces.

Before long the undergrowth thinned and the going was easier. It was mostly of grape trees with scattered yuccas and larger trees spaced well apart. They skirted a marshy swale that appeared to be a pocket for the recent rains. Beyond there was a higher and steeper ledge that from a distance looked artificial, but proved to be an outcrop of ligneous rock deeply fissured and eroded.

As they climbed up and over the brim of this escarpment they found themselves on a plateau that swung in a circular formation like the flattened top of an ancient crater. It was the highest point of the island and except where interrupted by clumps of trees the sea was visible all about. A bright blue gleam of water showed that it contained a crater lake. Just below them less than a quarter of a mile a patch of vivid green and a glint of water through the tree-tops located their own house.

There was a low square crumbling tower, all that remained of a heap of ruins partly screened by some gnarled old cedars and other trees that were low and spreading. The orderly arrangement showed these trees to have been set out many years ago, three centuries perhaps.

Find Old Monastery

The top of the partly ruined tower was open, with high pointed Gothic arches on its four sides. Two of these had fallen in, and revealed more plainly a big bell that showed a fissure on the side presented to Jerome and Linda. Such as they could see of the ruins indicated a building that had been of considerable size, rectangular and buttressed rudely.

"An old monastery," Jerome said. "But nobody can be living in it now."

"Then there must be some other hang-out for this troupe."

"Back in the grove, perhaps. There must have been a colony here at some time."

They crossed the intervening space where the ground was hard and arid with outcrops of volcanic rock. There was no sign of any tenantry. Then as they approached the ruins there came a stir in the tangle that filled them. They caught a glimpse of a figure in a pale blue garment that scurried into the thicker scrub beyond.

"That looked like the shirt I was wearing when we landed on this crazy island," Jerome said.

Hear Cry Again

As he spoke the curious cry to which they were growing more accustomed welled out from some invisible source. This time it sounded less mocking, more angry, and it held a frightened note.

"I'll tell you what," said Linda. "Some of the early natives were left on this island and they've gone wild."

He shook his head. "Natives don't go wild. They keep on just the same."

"Then what is it? That thing had on your shirt. It was too big for a monkey."

"Much," he agreed. "There are no big apes in this hemisphere."

They left it unsolved and went over to the ruin. There was nothing to inspect but the tower and a sector of wall in which was a big doorway with a flattened arch the early Spaniards seemed to favor, and which has proved curiously resistant to time. The rest was hidden in cactus and creepers. Such old monasteries were to be found in remote locations like this round the shores of the Spanish Main.

Discovers Shoe

A narrow beaten path led to the tower. They followed this and entered an enclosure about 12 feet square. It was stone flagged and bare with long pointed arched windows and a narrow stone stair that spiralled to the bell tower. There had been another floor and the loft, but these had fallen in.

Entering from the vivid glare outside Linda stumbled on something. Then as her pupils reacted to the dim light she saw that it was one of Jerome's rubber-soled deck shoes.

He picked it up and carried it to the door, then he looked at the sole.

"This is what the fool was using to whang the bell."

"How do you know?"

"Verdigris on the new sponge rubber heel. That's what made the bell sound muffled—and the crack in it. Let's hunt round for the mate."

They failed to find it, but Linda found her other silk stocking which, having nothing else to do with it, she put on.

Jerome said, "We could put on a castaway comedy sketch. I in blue-striped shorts and one shoe, and you in a man's sport shirt, one stocking, and a pair of snappy shoes. It's the one stocking that gives the raffish touch."

Shoe Mutes Clapper

Linda grabbed his arm. "Look!" she pointed to the old cracked bell over their heads.

The sun was streaming in and diffused a little from the light grey stone, but the cavity of the bell was dark. Projecting from it was apparently the toe of a man's shoe.

"Gosh, that spells it! This bird it crazy. He's rammed the clapper of the bell into my shoe."

Jerome got up into the embrasure of the window beside the bell but could not reach the clapper. The height was not great but it was trying to look down into the dark interior. He came down and twisted off a tough length of vine with which he finally snared the shoe and dragged it off.

As they left the place Linda said, "How ever did he manage to jam that shoe on to the bell clapper?"

"I pass. A monkey wouldn't have the strength and besides he couldn't reach the bell. It's a double puzzle; how he managed to jam the clapper into my shoe and why the devil he should want to."

"Sheer lunacy," Linda said.

"A big sailor with long arms could climb out on the beam that holds the bell and reach down far enough to do the trick. But not the ordinary native."

They crossed the plateau and made their way to a point commanding a view of the crater lake.

Fish in Lake

"That's the source of our brook," Jerome said. "It fills up in the rainy season and funds the water that leaks out slowly through a channel underground. Before it drains the rains come and fill it up again. Even dry-season showers would probably be enough."

Going down to the edge they could see occasionally a silver flash in the water that was clear like that in a granite quarry.

"This lake is full of fish," said Jerome.

"How do they get into it way up here?"

"Hatched out from spawn, and carried in the maws or feet or plumage of birds," Jerome said.

He went on to explain the geologic formations and their significance. In his interest of the subject he did not notice Linda's glances from time to time.

She said finally when he paused, "Didn't know you were such a highbrow, Jerry."

"I'm not. They teach us a few things in the Academy besides the science and art of destruction."

"Do you know botany, too?"

"Enough to treat us if we get malaria. I've seen a couple of cinchona trees. There are some castor oil plants round the house, too. They're supposed to keep away mosquitoes."

"I wonder if anybody ever comes here."

"Nothing to come for. We're pretty well inside the power vessel course up and down the coast. Ships keep well clear of the Mosquito Bank."

Must Wait

"What if somebody finds the boat and reports us drowned?"

"Then we've just got to wait till this hermit comes back. It's tough on you to beat it from the yacht to get rid of me, then get marooned with me on an island inhabited only by crazy people that steal your clothes off your back."

"And you feeling the same way about me."

She was silent a moment, then asked, "What if he never came back? Something happened to him or he left for good. I suppose we'd go wild, too."

"Not very. There must be tools put away somewhere. With an ax and a saw I could make a dug-out to take us to the mainland. It can't be far. Besides nobody's apt to find the boat and then they'll send a searching party."

He did not tell her what an extensive job it would be to comb the islands of the far-flung Mosquito Bank. Instead he said, "There's nothing really to fear from this band of half-witted aborigines. They're prankish and shy."

"I wish though we could account for them," Linda said.

"They'll get used to our being here and show themselves before long," he assured her. "Every living creature, however furtive, craves the company of the superior race."

"That seems to be the trouble. Tonight we'll go inside and lock up as soon as it gets dark."

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young shipbuilder, and a lovely society girl, named Linda, escaped in a skiff from a yacht held in quarantine off San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda dislike each other; but, nevertheless, are willing to risk being mutually bored rather than endure an indefinite stay aboard ship. From the moment they land on a strange island, queer happenings occur. Their boat is set adrift, their clothing stolen; yet there is no other sign of a living human, except periodic cries from the jungle. Exploring, they come upon a small plantation and house having every appearance of being well tended but vacant. In it they find some priceless Spanish chests, a heavy whip, plenty of food, but no clothing. The cruel whip worries them. Suddenly a bell clangs and again weird screams are heard. Darkness falls and still no one arrives. Dozing on the porch, Jerry awakens with the creepy impression that something had brushed his face. Soon Linda shrieks—her slip had been torn off her by unseen hands in the dark. Then comes a slithering sound at the end of the verandah and again that mocking cry. Terrified, Jerome and Linda lock themselves in the house.

No Go On

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Picnic day tomorrow, fellows! Place, West View Park. Coupons have been printed every day in the Sun-Telegraph that are good for tickets. You should have the most fun for the smallest amount of money ever.

So we'll be seeing you, gang. We want every Junior Patrol member there. And be sure to wear your badge, fellows. There will be a special Junior Patrol program just for us in the afternoon. We're going to have a wonderfully good time, in a park where it is shady and cool, with a fine big lake.

Letters for this week's contest have been flooding in, and it looks like just about the best contest yet. The prizes are the same, too, $2.50 first, $1.50 second and $1 third. All you have to do is write a letter, not more than 100 words, and tell us what pet you would like to have the most and why.

And remember, this is a contest for Junior Patrol members only. If you don't belong now, and want to compete, send in your pledge, signed up, or else make a copy of the printed pledge in the paper and send it—that's just as good.

Contest letters should come to the Junior Patrol contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The contest ends Thursday night, midnight, so hurry your letters, fellows. See you tomorrow!

Wise Words

There is a certain noble pride through which merits shine brighter than through modesty.

Could we see when and where we are to meet again, we would be more tender when we bid our friends goodby.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

School.....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Dove Dance -:- Daily Short Short Story

By IVY O. EASTWICK

At the ebony table in her white-walled dressing room La Paloma sat, intent upon the choice of grease paints.

The call boy's voice sounded along the corridors:

"La Paloma! La Paloma!"

The dancer looked once more into the tall mirror, and what she saw there obviously satisfied her. She tossed her head defiantly at her image and, without another look, walked swiftly and lightly from the room. Once upon the stage a thunder of applause greeted her.

"The Dove! The Dove!" shouted and shrieked the gallery, and the occupants of boxes clapped in time with the magic words:

"What a delightfully appropriate name—the Dove!" commented a stately dowager to a smiling debutante. "She is charming—so shy! So timid!"

La Paloma bowed, it seemed a trifle nervously, to the audience. Then she smiled—a slow smile which irradiated her face, giving to it a glow of serene beauty.

When the clamor had died down she ceased to smile. Gracefully she spread the huge white fan and then began the wonderful dance which had held London in thrall for three complete months and as yet showed no sign of waning—the Dove dance. The slow movements of her, every turn, every sway, had the grace of a dove.

Michael Fenton, seated in the front row, watched her closely. Until now women had played little part in his life.

Now, at last, he had seen the woman who satisfied, to the eye at least, his critical tastes. He watched her every movement with interest—admired the slimness of her, the grace. That night he sent his card to her room, and she returned it as she had returned more than a dozen others.

Despite the first setback, he in no wise gave up the effort of making her acquaintance and, eventually, at a party of literateurs, artists and actors, he obtained his long-sought introduction to her.

They had supper together one night after the performance. Her innate grace and all-enveloping modesty delighted him.

"What shall I call you?" he inquired. "I cannot address you all the time as Paloma." He smiled at her across the table.

"My own name it not nearly so pretty," she answered naively. "Dulcie—Dulcie Verney." Her gray eyes questioned him—did he think it was a nice name?

"Dulcie?" he murmured, and then smiled as if accepting its delightful suitability.

It was agreed that she should give her last performance on the eve of their wedding. He demanded this, half-expecting she would demur, but, rather to his surprise, she acquiesced readily.

After the performance on the last night he suggested that she go straight home.

"You must not be tired for tomorrow, dearest. I shall be round for you rather early."

She kissed him by way of reply.

Next morning Penton drove round to her flat. He was too early by half an hour.

Her voice, sounding from the bedroom, broke into his thoughts.

"Oh! Michael! I'm nearly ready. Come and wait in here."

Reaching the room, he hesitated, then tapped lightly on the door.

"Come in, Micky!" called Dulcie.

He obeyed, feeling as he did so slightly like a clumsy schoolboy caught in the act of stealing apples. A gasp escaped him. La Paloma, in a vivid orange dress, hair cleverly but nonetheless peroxided, sat at the dressing table applying lipstick to a pale mouth. She smiled at him through the mirror.

"Why! What!" he stammered.

"Now, I'll bet you're just surprised, Micky."

"Surprised!" ran his thoughts. "Why! Good Lord! even her voice has changed."

But he only nodded.

"You must," she continued, "you simply must have been bored stiff with me before. Now confess—" she commanded brightly.

"Good Lord!" thought Penton.

He conceded the point in silence. Then:

"But why?"

She explained: "I am an artist first and last. And so I fit my life to the special—er—job of the moment. For instance, supposing during the last few months my dance had been of a Russian type—well! I should have smoked Russian cigarettes, drunk vodka, haunted Russian cafes. If a Chinese type—I should have lived on chop suey and China tea (which I abhor). If French——"

"I see! I see!" interposed Michael who as last saw only too well.

"But as it was the Dove dance—well, I had to act like a dove—be a dove at all times. Talk little, sing a little, eat little, flirt little and coo all the wretched time. It was a darn dull time too," she confessed ruefully.

"It must have been," he agreed miserably.

"But now, at last," she exclaimed, slipping into a very modish black satin coat—"but now at last I am free to be—just me!" She contemplated her silk-clad legs for a second and then blew a smoke ring into the air.

She crossed to his side, put her arms round his neck. He stood staring at her.

"Won't it be nice?" she said, coyly.

He nodded, but he disengaged her hands and looked longingly toward the door. Then he shrugged resignedly, looked at her scarlet lips and kissed her on the forehead. But it was a farewell kiss, for he had fallen in love with The Dove; this painted woman beside him was a stranger.

STARS AND STRIPES

Dog racing has become a popular sport along the New Jersey coast. Betting on a dog is like lending money to your best friend, except that you don't lose your dog.

"Baby Face" Nelson may be a nice name for a public enemy, but if that youngster wants the title of No. 1 he's got to come in and get shot.

The President got a great welcome in Hawaii. However, we can't imagine "Hail to the Chief" would sound so hot on a ukelele.

What a crime!

Prosecuting attorney: "Gentleman of the jury, you have just heard this prisoner admit he came from North Carolina. I ask you to return a verdict of 'guilty'."

Elizabeth Ryan, the tennis star barred from our Wightman Cup team, is absolutely right. Being born in California does not make her a European by at least six thousand miles.

Reds object to the Russians praying to God for rain. Under the Soviet laws, they should go to Stalin for it.

WE GIVE YOU DR. ADLER!

(Keep Him On Ice)

"The less you do, the more vitality you will have."—Dr. Wolf Adler, nerve specialist.

For good old Dr. Adler let us lie right down and cheer.
He's the cream that's in our coffee, he's the foam upon our beer,
Hurrah for Dr. Adler! Hurrah. Hurrah! Hear! Here!

For Dr. Adler's told us
Why we're resting here inert,
Completely he has sold us
On his idea very smert:
That we're lying here inert
Growing vital and alert.

For good old Dr. Adler let us murmur our applause.
Let us sigh "bravo" weakly, whisper "viva" and then pause,
While lying flat to show respect for gravitation's laws.

Dr. Adler knows we're tired,
Knows we're weary as can be;
It's a job that's long and hard
Hoarding such vitality. —Awk.

There He Goes on His Toes

Strange thing about a man working hard and building up a national rep as a steady, sincere bandit.

Once or smaller those front pages he is harder to get rid of than an ingrowing toe nail. His privacy is absolutely gone.

He can get to wishing for peace and solitude and go to hiding up in the Michigan woods. That doesn't do him any good, for people start seeing him all over.

Take Poppinger. Although nobody has done that yet. He is the fellow who escaped from jail by waving his hands like a striped bass. He looped-the-loop over the short route via the all-scenic tour and didn't stop until he was chinning himself on the Northern Lights.

Yet, inside of the last seven days, Poppinger was seen sticking up a bank in Mexico City. For that job he had parked his getaway car on the side of a road in Portland, Me.

That's true because a man in South Dakota got the number. He knew it was an American car because it carried a license plate from every state, all in all, and a man can't go wrong on that.

His look-out man was chased by a Newfoundland posse through Nova Scotia and only escaped by doubling back on his tracks around the Magellan Straits. It don't make any difference where a thing happens now because it is always in the vicinity.

His artillery chaperon, known as a gun moll in better circles, was picked up by the gun moll squad of the Siamese Twin Dragoons while trying to stash the plunder in the Far Eastern jungle. They grabbed her while she was indulging in the superhuman feat of trying to climb a shuttered bamboo stalk. She refused to sign any phonograph records for the Siamese coppers. She didn't talk that language or any other.

They knew that Poppinger was wounded, for a Mongolian herb doctor confessed that he had fixed up a tasty poultice of ginseng root, dwarf asparagus and comatose broccoli for a stranger who drove up on a besotted camel with the all-year-round tread worn off its feet.

This was corroborated by a deputy-chaser in Southern California who shattered a bicycle and all records for that instrument of torture while speeding along with the mail.

No matter where it was, everybody is certain it was Poppinger. He certainly covers more ground than the frost in December.

And, if there was a reward for seeing Poppinger, we would all be rich.

River Control Demanded

Congressional Nominees Call for the Improvement Of the Allegheny

It is gratifying to note that the opinion expressed in these columns a few days ago that the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh still has work to do has met with approval in influential quarters.

Commenting on the fact that the commission has seemingly been inactive in recent months, we remarked that there was need for storage reservoirs in the Allegheny Valley like the one that is to be constructed on the Tygert River in West Virginia for the protection of the Monongahela. We suggested further that if there is no hope of getting an appropriation from the Public Works Administration, the fight should be carried to Congress.

Encouragement to conduct such a campaign comes from two of the Republican nominees for Congress—Leon H. Gavin of the Twentieth District and Congressman Nathan L. Strong of the Twenty-seventh District.

Mr. Strong, who lives in Brookville, is president of the Allegheny River Improvement Association, and a member of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, says he is "intensely interested" in getting flood control for the Allegheny, which he declares is more in need of it than the Monongahela because it has a greater volume of water.

Mr. Strong points out that storage reservoirs on the headwaters of the Allegheny not only would control floods but by permitting the release of water when the stage is low because of drought, as at present, would mitigate the evil effects of stream pollution. This is a subject of particular interest right now because of the rivermen's complaints about the use of the rivers for sewage disposal.

Mr. Strong recommends that renewed efforts be made to obtain help from the PWA.

Mr. Gavin, secretary of the Oil City Chamber of Commerce, calls attention to Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes' refusal to grant three million dollars for the construction of Lock and Dam No. 9 on the Allegheny River, a project approved by the government engineers and for which plans and specifications have been completed.

Mr. Gavin contrasts this with the granting of thirty-one million dollars for irrigation projects to Montana, a state with only one-third the population of Allegheny County. Then he advocates that Pennsylvania's congressmen work as a unit to secure just treatment of the state by the Federal administration.

These gentlemen undoubtedly express sentiments that are shared by many persons. The demand for the improvement of the Allegheny with dams and storage reservoirs is a fair demand, and the Flood Commission should take an active part in carrying it to Washington.

The Special Session

Broadening of the Call to the Legislature Would Not Be Justified

Gov. Gifford Pinchot says that if he is forced to call the Legislature into special session to get Federal aid for unemployment relief he will not confine the program to this subject, but will broaden the call to include social legislation, public utilities legislation and other things that he has previously advocated without avail.

He says it will add little to the expense of the session to add these other things to the program, and that as many of the legislators will be up for re-election in November there will be a better chance now than formerly of getting the bills passed.

The Governor's statement is not convincing.

It is highly improbable that the lawmakers would pass quickly the highly controversial bills that they have heretofore rejected.

The Republican majority was not influenced at previous sessions by Democratic victories to enact all the social legislation favored by Gov. Pinchot and the Democrats. What reason is there to believe they will have a change of heart?

Prolongation of the session by broadening of the call would cost the taxpayers more than they are willing to pay, and would involve an unnecessary expense, since the next Legislature will meet in January in regular session.

Many of the policies advocated by Gov. Pinchot are issues in the campaign. If the people show that they favor them, it can reasonably be expected that the new Legislature will enact the laws.

If we must have a special session, let it be kept free of selfish politics.

The Passing of Truancy

Carnegie's Attendance Record Points to Attractive Schools

Don't school children "play hooky" any more?

The question is raised by the splendid attendance reports of the public schools. It would seem that truancy has almost passed into the limbo of forgotten things.

Shakespeare speaks of "the whining schoolboy, with his satchel and shining morning face, creeping like snail unwillingly to school."

But such boys are evidently scarce in the public schools of Carnegie, for Supt. N. L. Glasser reports a 98 per cent attendance record for the year just closed.

The total enrollment was 2,751. Of this number 1,006 not only did not miss a day but were not even tardy during the whole year. Of the 192 pupils in the eighth grade 131 had perfect attendance records.

This is a fine testimonial to the attractiveness of Carnegie's schools.

Women's Best Weapon

The Hatpin—And It's Coming Back.

The most dangerous weapon ever carried about casually by womankind is on the way back from oblivion to fashion. It is the long-spike hatpin.

The large-brimmed sailor hat, cartwheel and wagon-wheels hats are here and the long pin cannot be far behind. Crowns are no more than an inch or two high, and brims, in a few cases, more than 36 inches from edge to edge.

They are to be worn rakishly on the right side of the head and tilted over the right eye. In elevators men will presumably huddle together at the left to get out of range.

Frock Held Too Dressy

By Winifred Black

They wouldn't let her graduate the other day, the high school girl. And she had excellent marks and stood very high in her class.

It was like this.

A year ago in that high school there was quite a scandal at graduation time.

Four or five girls walked up to the principal to get their diplomas. It was broad daylight and the summer sun was shining through the great windows full upon them, and they were dressed in full evening dress, with their waists open down to their belts in the back, and not so very high in front. They wore bracelets and earrings and were otherwise bedizened and bedecked, and after the whole foolish affair was over it was discovered that two or three of these girls came from very poor families, and their mothers and fathers had made great sacrifices to send them to school at all.

So this year the principal sent notices to all the graduating class and asked them to dress as simply as they could.

He made his plea on the ground of the depression—and most of the graduates took his counsel in good part, and were glad they didn't have to worry over expensive dresses, and graduation purses and graduation watches and graduation gifts of all kinds.

And mighty pretty they looked, too, they said, the young girls in their fresh print dresses, some of them in pure white and some in primrose, and some in blue, but not a dress was worn that could by any means be taken for a party dress, and the simpler the dress and the cheaper, too—the prouder the wearer of it.

But one girl broke the new rule. She broke it all to smithereens!

She appeared in an elaborate dinner dress, with a gorgeous fur cape, and the very latest model in the newest sort of expensive summer hat.

The superintendent told her to go home and change her dress and come back and graduate with her class.

The girl refused.

She was very indignant and greatly insulted.

She said nobody had ever told her how to dress and nobody was going to begin telling her now.

So the superintendent sent her home and sent her diploma after her, and now they say she is going to sue the school and have a great time over the small affair.

Three times three for you, Mr. Superintendent, and four times three for you, Mr. Principal.

You made a stand not only for a decent kindness and understanding, but for good manners and good taste. You might as well wear a bathing suit to the theater as to dress in evening dress for a school graduation.

It's just about time we Americans began to learn a little something about good form when it comes to dress.

Most of the big shops now insist on simple dress for their clerks.

They have to do this or a lot of the girls would stand behind the counter dressed as if they were going to a ball, and that, after all, is really not exactly sensible of them, is it?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The Makings of Success

She wonders if she has a chance of success. And proceeds to enumerate her assets.

She describes her looks, her taste in dress, her health, her religion and political party where she's been, what she's studi l, the work she's done, her ambition, talent—

A serious, sensible letter. Yet there's not a word in it to show whether or not she has a chance to succeed! She might have ALL these assets, yet have one trait which would doom her to failure. She might have NONE of them, yet possess one quality which would open the way to success.

Generally speaking, success doesn't depend on the things you've done to YOURSELF—BUT ON WHAT YOU DO TO THE OTHER FELLOW.

A solitary genius might achieve fame although he affronted or neglected every other human being. But few of us are geniuses—or solitary. Most of us must live with, by and for other people . . . and we win or lose according to our ability to get along with other people.

"Getting along with other people"—just what does that imply? It implies something much deeper than surface gestures and polite patter. It means, first of all, an actual realization and recognition of the other fellow AS A HUMAN BEING.

Did you ever stop to consider your attitude toward a stranger? Even the stranger with whom you wish to establish a business contact? Do you think of that stranger as a PERSON—a sensitive, eager, somewhat bewildered person like yourself? It's dollars to doughnuts you don't.

We do not feel their lives as we feel our own—poignantly, passionately. We feel them only as we feel important instruments which we must manipulate.

Accordingly we parade our parlor tricks with exactly the same attitude which prompts us to drop a nickel in a slot machine. Maybe we'll win, maybe we'll lose—in either case the apparatus before us is just a slot machine, nothing in return for our nickel!

Why should we get anything? By the selfishness and stupidity of our attitude, we have disclosed our unfitness as a worker . . . and chilled and disgusted the stranger we wish to impress. For we may have every other talent under heaven . . . but if we haven't the talent of recognizing the other fellow's humanity, of what use are we?

If we haven't imagination enough to realize that the party before us is a person and not a machine, . . . or if we haven't tact enough to treat that party as a person . . . what would we do with a position of responsibility, where we are forced to contact not one, but thousands of strangers?

Often young people come to this writer seeking newspaper work. They are bright, charming, handsome, healthy youngsters. They have gone to our best schools—have excellent references—powerful friends. But as journalists they would be a complete flop, for they lack the ability to imagine any life, any need, save their own.

If you're seeking success, the ability to be a good listener is worth a dozen college degrees. For by listening you induce the other fellow to give himself to you.

And the more he gives of himself to you, the more important you become in his eyes and the wider and richer your own experience becomes.

This truth is not based on the other fellow's selfishness, nor can it be expressed by flattery. It is based on the importance of all life—everyone's life—the other fellow's as well as yours. And it can only be expressed by a sincere and sympathetic interest in other lives—an interest which lies deeper and reaches further.

So success often depends on some small expression of our inner attitude which we entirely overlook. Easy good fellowship—quiet reliability. Genuine interest in other lives—these are the makings of success. Yet, strangely enough, we're only beginning to recognize the importance of these things in our courses of education. Most schools teach everything on earth but the one most important thing—How to Get Along With the Other Fellow.

Marry Go Round

By Helen Rowland

This Way Out—of Love

The air has been filled with the fragments of broken engagements this past season—and most of them were smashed with as much noise and as little technique as a small boy uses in smashing his Christmas toys.

* * *

Men pride themselves on their "technique" in the love-game; but as Andy would say, "technique is the mostest thing they HAVEN'T got."

A man has so many changes of heart, that you'd fancy the first thing he'd want to learn is how to make a graceful exit from a flirtation, a foolish entanglement or a fading love affair. But the art of getting rid of a woman gently, dexterously and graciously, is seldom among the modern man's accomplishments. Falling in love is about the easiest thing he does—but crawling out of it is hardest and clumsiest.

* * *

A girl may be just as tired of a wilting summer romance as a man is; but she likes to put the finishing touches on love thoroughly and effectively. It offends her artistic sense to leave any loose ends.

A man, on the other hand, either rushes into and out of a love affair as though it were a subway station. Or else he leaves it hanging up in the air, like the body after a lynching party.

* * *

There is such a thing as painless surgery, even in love. It is not necessary to cut love off with a cleaver. It can be done much more effectively with a scalpel and the anesthetic of a few tender parting words.

Some men can tell a girl that "all is over," so tenderly and regretfully that she feels almost complimented. Others are so brutal or so awkward about it, that she feels as though she had been blackjacked. Some men can change partners in the love game as gracefully as though it were a Paul Jones—but most men tread all over a woman's vanity in the mad rush to get to the next woman.

* * *

Getting rid of a loving woman has never been an easy job—but let no man boast of his technique as a lover, unless he can make a graceful and becoming exit from a romance.

Tibet Is Again in the News With Mountain Climbing Adventures and Selection of Dalai Lama

By Edwin C. Hill

THE death of the intrepid Englishman, Maurice Wilson, high up on the icy slope of Mount Everest, the disaster to a German expedition on the neighboring peak of Nanga Parat, and the reports from India about a successor to the Dalai Lama make Tibet a place of current world interest.

Here is a country and people apart, 2,000,000 nomads in a domain of 450,000 square miles, about twice the size of Texas. For centuries it was a land unknown to the outside world, save for the visits of a few daring explorers and missionaries. A British military mission did get through to the Forbidden City of Lhasa in 1904, and a conquering Chinese army a few years later. But the English left as did the Chinese, and Tibet today, save for a telegraph line to India, remains remote, inaccessible and impenetrable.

Recently, Dr. Walter Koelz, of the University of Michigan, visited Tibet alone and spent some time among its people whom he found to be one of the most cheerful and most religious of the races which inhabit the globe. Harsh words, ostentation and envy are unknown to them. In fact, when a boy is born into a family, the announcement is made first that it is a girl for fear that the truth might cause regrets on the part of sonless neighbors.

* * *

Woman Rules In Tibetan Home

THE woman is the boss of the Tibetan home. The population has to be kept within bounds because of the scanty resources of the country, and to bring this about, polygandry is practised, particularly among the farming and herding class. A woman marries into a family of brothers and is a wife to all. About one-seventh of the population is in the priesthood and sisterhood of Tibetan Buddhism, living in the countless monasteries.

For all the religion about him, the Tibetan is a pleasure-loving fellow who likes to gamble, race horses and stage native dances and shows. His origin is unknown although he is probably of the original Mongol stock. He is a hardy individual—he has to be or would never survive—usually short of stature, but broad with light brown skin and black hair. He herds his yaks and he eats them and he drinks about 50 cups of tea a day, not with lemon or cream, but with butter and salt in it.

At the present time Tibet is in something of a turmoil about the matter of a Grand Lama. That position is vacant now, and has been since the death of the Dalai Lama in December. This supreme ruler, according to Tibetan law, is a reincarnation of Buddha and the owner of all the land.

Tradition provides that the successor to the late Lama shall be a child selected from among those born at the time he died and into whose body his spirit is supposed to have passed. A report from India last week had it that the child had been found, but a denial followed to the effect that no choice would be made until next year. In the meantime exiled in China is the Panchem Lama, driven out of Tibet by the recently deceased ruler. There is talk of his going back.

* * *

Devil Worship A Common Practice

DEVIL worship is practiced in Tibet and the gods of the land are many. Weird and fantastic stories are told of the powers of the priests and the Lama, and some of them within the past few months had its origin in the Tibet. It had to do with the removal of Dr. Alexander Cannon from his post in the London Mental Hospital because of his writings on Tibet which contained the assertion that he had seen a Grand Lama restore to life a man who had been dead for seven years.

Aside from the supernatural there is a story which is accepted generally about Tibet and which concerns an enormous gold field in the heart of the country. The discovery is said to have been made by a young native who had been sent to England where he studied engineering. Locating the gold mines he began to work them when a priest ordered him to restore what metal he had taken up and to cease operations. An appeal to the Grand Lama was in vain, for that personage upheld the priest and forbade the disturbing of the earth gods.

One of the last acts of the last Grand Lama was to inform England that there should be no more attempts to conquer Mount Everest. His reluctant consent had been obtained in the past for official expeditions and for the airplane trip of the Marquis of Clydesdale. However, the most recent attempt was followed by the worst summer that Tibet has known and the only thing to which that could be attributed was that the gods had been displeased by the mountain climbers.

Roosevelt Asked to Help Child Labor Amendment

By James T. Williams, Jr.

WHEN President Roosevelt gets back from his Atlantic-Pacific cruise, he will be urged to go to the support of the proposed child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution as the titular leader of the party in power.

When the prohibition repeal amendment was before the state Legislatures for ratification, Mr. Roosevelt sent his Posmaster General, Mr. Farley, who is also his chairman of the Democratic National Committee, into state after state to urge ratification. When ratification finally came, the administration claimed a large share in the credit for this victory and pointed to the campaigning by airplane and radio which Mr. Farley and other members of the cabinet did to encourage ratification.

The advocates of the child labor amendment insist that its ratification is as much entitled to the active support of the administration as was the ratification of the prohibition repeal amendment. They argue further that the leadership of President Roosevelt is all that is required to insure ratification of this progressive amendment between now and the next presidential election in 1936.

* * *

Provisions Of Amendment

THE child labor amendment, which passed Congress and was submitted to the states for ratification in 1924, provides:

"That Congress shall have power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age. The power of the several states is unimpaired by this article except that the operation of state laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by Congress."

Once this amendment is ratified and becomes a part of the Federal Constitution, Congress will be given the power to control by law the labor of persons under 18 years of age. Congress can fix the conditions under which such persons may be employed without injuring their health and without depriving them of that public education which is the birthright of every American under the flag.

Before 1933, only six states had ratified this proposed amendment. In 1933, 14 additional states ratified it. The legislative consent of 16 additional states must be obtained before the process of ratification is completed.

During the present year, ratification has failed in one or both branches of the following of the legislatures of the following states: New York, Kentucky, Virginia, South Carolina, Texas, Mississippi, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Louisiana.

But the fight for ratification will be continued with renewed vigor in all these states as a result of the temporary setback which this wise and human movement for the protection of American youth from exploitation has suffered.

* * *

Ratified By Pennsylvania

THE child labor amendment is strongly supported by 24 national organizations.

It has already been ratified by the legislatures of the following states: Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Enough legislatures will meet in 1935 for ratification to be completed in that year if the forces that are fighting to protect American youth can count upon the leadership of President Roosevelt and the assistance of his administration.

There is nothing partisan about this proposed amendment, nothing radical, nothing sectional and nothing sectarian. It was drafted by the great Democratic Senator from Montana who presided with such fairness over the Democratic national conventions of 1924 and 1932 and died on his way to Washington to take his oath as Attorney General in President Roosevelt's cabinet—the late Thomas J. Walsh. Assisting him in the drafting of this amendment were George Wharton Pepper, Republican Senator from Pennsylvania, and a representative committee of able lawyers.

Temporarily, child labor is prohibited by codes covering the greater part of industry. But these codes can be modified. They may be revoked. Congress passed a child labor law more than a decade ago which was declared unconstitutional. This made necessary the proposed amendment to the Constitution in order that Congress may have the power to subject the employment of minors to that legal regulation which will give them the protection that the American people wish them to have and that is essential to the future welfare of the nation.
